SZCHENYIS
COME TO LONDON

Friends Believe Gladys Vanderbilt Is Disheartened Trying to Win Court Entree

Met the Empress at Budapest, but Has Failed to Be Received at Vienna

LONDON, April 19.—Countess Szchenyi, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, has come to this city to make her permanent home. She is accompanied by the Count Szchenyi and their two children. Only their intimate friends know whether she is here in the hope of inducing her wife to change her plans and return to Vienna or because he has expatriated himself for love of her and their children. It is believed by their close friends that Countess Szchenyi has become disheartened in her efforts to maintain real estate to the inner circle of the Austrian court after a five years' campaign.

In any event it is evident that the romance of the little American girl who gained the title of countess after her wedding and who had ambitiously declared she would take the place to which her rank entitled her, has ended otherwise than she planned.

MILLIONS FAILED.

The millions of the Vanderbilts, spent lavishly in charities and entertainments in Hungary and Austria have failed to gain the long sought goal. It is true that the Countess Szchenyi was presented to the Emperor Francis Joseph and the Archduke and Archduchesses but not in Vienna. The presentation took place in Budapest, the capital, and was due to an understanding effected by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt before she consented to the wedding that her daughter should be presented to the emperor.

VIENNA COURT CLOSED.

At that it took three years before the red tape and exacting formalities of the Budapest court were complied with and the countess left, despite the advice of her wiser friends, that she had taken a long stride toward entering the inner circles of the Vienna court.

She has now discovered that she did not gain the stamp of highest social rank in her adopted country by meeting the emperor in Budapest. She might as well have met him at any semi-public function and did not receive any more distinction, after all, than is accorded to a provincial mayor or minor officials of the government. Birth alone, the countess is convinced at last, can maintain for her the supreme distinction of being actually "received" at court in Vienna.

Auto Turns Turtle;
1 Killed, 3 Injured

Students Are Pinned Beneath Car, Which Was Decending Grade.

YREKA, April 19.—An automobile driven by Earl Long and containing himself and three other students of the Siskiyou county high school, turned turtle two miles east of Montague, at 1 o'clock this afternoon, causing injuries to the entire party and resulting in the death of Long a few hours later.

Miss Dorothy Hooper, daughter of District Attorney Hooper of Yreka, is the most seriously hurt. She is suffering from internal injuries and the physicians believe that she has a chance of recovery. Of the others, Donald Eshbire suffered a wrenched leg, and Mildred Minaker of Montague received a broken wrist and bruises of the body.

While the machine was descending a grade Long lost control of it. The car turned over, pinning the occupants beneath it. They were discovered by E. D. Haight, a farmer, who summoned aid and lifted the heavy auto.

Long was hurried to Yreka but died soon after his arrival. He was the son of Frank Long, a farmer in the Little Shasta valley and is reported to have been the brightest student in the senior class in the school.

THOS. PRATHER IS SUMMONED
NOTED IN FINANCIAL WORLD

THOMAS PRATHER, PROMINENT CAPITALIST OF OAKLAND, WHO DIED SUDDENLY YESTERDAY AT HIS HOME ON ALICE ST.

Brief Illness, Followed by Heart Failure, Brings to Sudden Close Life of Esteemed Citizen

Thomas Prather, capitalist, whose illness during the last few weeks gave grave concern to his intimate friends and members of the family, was stricken with heart failure shortly after noon yesterday and died at his home at 1441 Alice street at 1:30 o'clock. Dr. D. D. Crowley was with him at the time. So were his two sisters, Mrs. I. Harrison Clay and Mrs. Harry East Miller. The sudden end of the prominent man was unexpected, even though the doctor had been feared by many since his condition had been pronounced seriously by his physicians, Doctors Crowley and O. D. Hamlin.

Mr. Prather's business associates and other members of the family were immediately notified of his death, but it was several hours before the news became general even among his close acquaintances. Since then many friends have paid their respects to the family and sent condolences to the sorrowing home on Alice street, where he had lived for many years.

KEEN BUSINESS MAN.
Thomas Prather was one of the best-known of that coterie of keen business men who have been so largely identified with the upbuilding of Oakland and have taken so great a part in the development of the city and its industries. He was born in Louisville, Ky., July 22, 1855, and with his parents, William L. and Laura C. Prather, came to California in 1870. They settled in Oakland and he attended the University of California for three years, where he became a member of the Chi Phi Greek letter fraternity.

He left the halls of learning before the conclusion of his full course to engage in the banking business in Word was received in this city today of the death of Captain C. A. Treuholtz of the United States medical corps, at Fort Bayard, N. M. Captain Treuholtz was a native of San Francisco, 35 years old. He had enlisted in the medical corps after graduating from Cooper Medical College in this city.

Captain Treuholtz was one of the most prominent of the army physicians and was considered an authority on tubercular diseases. He is survived by a mother, a widow, two sisters and a brother, all of whom live in Oakland.

Octogenarian Sails With Two Brides on Voyage
NEW YORK, April 19.—E. C. Benedict, former commodore of the New York Yacht Club and an octogenarian, will make a run of 12,000 miles, leaving here next Wednesday, in order to give two brides a honeymoon. Benedict has a 300-foot yacht named the Oakland, and until his retirement from this business seven years ago, he was one of the leading spirits of the local field of finance. During that time he passed practically through every phase of the business and held nearly every position of worth which this business affords, becoming both a director and later president. After his retirement from the banking business he opened offices in San Francisco and engaged in various enterprises that required large capital.

Socially Thomas Prather was well-known in the best clubs at all times and held life memberships in the Athenian Club and the Claremont Country Club. He was also a member of the Pacific Union Club of San Francisco and of the Oakland Elks Club.

MARRIED MISS ADAMS.
In 1885 he was married to Julia P. Adams, only daughter of Edson Adams, and so became related by marriage to Edson F. Adams and John Adams, brothers of Mrs. Prather, with whom he had already become identified in business matters. There were no children from the issue and his wife died in 1908, leaving him quite alone in the world except for his brothers and sisters.

There are two brothers, both living. Samuel D. Prather of Oakland and William L. Prather of Montague, Siskiyou county. Besides the two sisters, Mrs. Clay and Mrs. Miller of Oakland, he leaves another sister, Mrs. G. W. Waterbury, of Corona, Riverside county.

The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock next Monday from the family residence and will probably be directed by the family, although the complete arrangements have not been made. Interment will be private.

Albert H. Ackerman Answers Last Call

Death Comes Suddenly to Member of Pioneer Mercantile Family of Oakland.
Albert H. Ackerman, a merchant and member of a pioneer family of this city, died last night at the Kent Hotel as the result of a sudden attack of heart failure. Ackerman was manager of a department in an Oakland store and was the son of Hart Ackerman, a pioneer crockery merchant. He had been ill for only three days. He was a member of the Oakland Commercial Club and a graduate of Columbia University.

He was 47 years old and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ella Ackerman. The funeral will be held tomorrow.

POPE PIUS
BETTER

Condition So Far Improved That Faithful Sister Leaves and Bulletins Stopped

Fourth Feverless Day Fails to Bring Return of Physical Strength

ROME, April 19.—The Papal physicians have announced that no bulletin concerning the Pope's health will be issued tonight unless an unforeseen complication or relapse sets in. That the Pontiff has spent four feverless days is encouraging. Another favorable omen was the departure from the Vatican of Anna Sarto, the Pope's sister, who has remained almost constantly at his bedside during the recent relapse. It is expected that the presence of his sister was required, as she was the only one whom the Pope would obey. He strongly resented even the direct advice of the physicians.

Tonight an unofficial report states that his Holiness is much improved over his condition of yesterday, but is still troubled by coughing spells, which greatly exhaust him. The physicians are now striving to overcome weakness which prevents the Pope from lifting his arms or scarcely turning his head.

GREAT MENTAL VIGOR.
His physical weakness is in strong contrast to his mental vigor, which the Pontiff has maintained throughout his illness.

The physicians attending the Pope apparently anticipate a slow convalescence, as the Pontiffical mass, which was scheduled to take place in St. Peter's Cathedral on May 11 in connection with the celebration of the Constantinian jubilee, has been indefinitely postponed.

Angelo Sarto, the Pope's brother, at the Vatican, officially announced for the first time today.

Thousands of pilgrims are still in Rome, while many more are expected to come this coming week.

Three Attempts Made To Leap From Ferry

Mrs. Madeline Casalone Seeks to End Life in Waters of the Bay.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Mrs. Madeline Casalone of 2907 Webster street, Oakland, made three attempts to dive off a Southern Pacific ferryboat en route to this city tonight. The woman, who had escaped from a gutter-street sanitarium earlier in the day, is said by her husband, a cement worker, to have been seized with a fit of dementia three days ago. He placed her in a local institution and this afternoon, thirsting to see her 8-year-old son Paul, she hurried across the bay. Taking the youngster with her, she made the return trip and while the boat was off Yerba Buena Island she was seized with a suicidal mania. The youngster, clutching at her skirts she ran to the rail and attempted to jump. Deckhands restrained her and a watch was placed over her. During the remainder of the trip she tried twice more to throw herself into the water. When the boat reached a landing on this side she was removed to the Harbor Hospital, where she was held until her husband arrived.

Sailor's Hair Changes
Color While in Jail

Black to Gray, Caused by the Use of Bottle of Peroxide.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Ninety days in the city prison was a sufficient time to change black hair to gray in the case of Edward Piper, a former sailor. When he left jail today his locks had undergone a wonderful transformation and were almost entirely white. He is said to have stood daily in front of a mirror admiring his black locks until he noticed something wrong. This was Thursday. Then he went and got a shampoo from the prison barber, when low and behold a bottle of peroxide was used by mistake and the black hair was bleached.

MODESTO, April 19.—H. J. Menke, who lives three miles from Turlock, ran over and killed his own son named Charles, aged 9, while driving his automobile last afternoon. The accident occurred near the Menke home. The boy was riding in the car and when his hat blew off he jumped from the machine before his father could stop it, slipping under the rear wheels, which passed over his neck.

INCHES LONG

Owner Is Beautiful, Too, But Husband Wants Divorce

Mrs. Clara Smith Houston's foot is 8 1/2 inches long and 9 inches around the instep. It is the most perfect foot ever known. The woman is today adopted by the International Association of Chiropodists.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Sculptors and artists echoed with enthusiasm the verdict of the pedal surgeons. They went further and declared that Mrs. Houston's foot was not her sole claim to extraordinary beauty. They said her face was one of rare loveliness. And to prove it they painted her face in many moods and attitudes, and reproduced it on some thousands of calendars so that all the world might see.

Nat C. Houston, of Omaha, is the husband of that woman. And, according to the allegations in a separate maintenance suit today, he does not appreciate her at all. Mrs. Houston says Nat is secretary of the Western Livestock Commission Company of Omaha, that he is a banker, a broker, a rancher, a man of wealth. Then she alleges that he slapped her and was extremely cruel.

Nat Houston is a nephew of the celebrated Sam Houston, who was president of the old republic of Texas. Mrs. Houston's perfect foot started the trouble, according to the bill, after the verdict of the chiropodists had been made public. Nat is said to have given evidence that he was peeved. He sent his wife a telegram, it is alleged, saying:

"Why don't you send a picture of that foot of yours to the Police Gazette? May be the Sporting News could also find space for a picture of it."

Mrs. Houston's attorney says she has a pre-nuptial agreement to receive $5000 from her husband in case of marital unhappiness. She claims the time has arrived to execute the contract.

Recovers Pirate Gold
From Ancient Wreck

CHICAGO, April 19.—Pirate gold, recovered from the fire-blackened remnants of the craft which ran aground on a tiny coral reef four miles south of Miami, Fla., in the days of Captain Kidd, has been placed in a safety deposit vault here by E. C. Cole, a Chicago manufacturer, who happened upon the buried treasure while he was searching for a bit of coral. It was a gold ingot worth at least $1000.

OFFICIAL COPY OF WILL MADE PUBLIC

Wife and His Daughter Given Big Share in Great Holdings

$100,000,000 Is Estimated as Value of Huge Estate

NEW YORK, April 19.—The official copy of the will of J. Pierpont Morgan was given out today. The will is to be offered for probate Monday.

The extent of the fortune cannot be stated. It will not be known even to the members of the family until after an appraisal which is now under way has been completed. Conservative estimates place the total value of the estate at $100,000,000.

The son and namesake of the financier is the chief beneficiary, receiving the bulk of the fortune, including the great art collections, the contents of the Morgan wine cellars, the Adlon-Wald, the yacht Corsair and other personal property not otherwise disposed of, after certain specific provisions for the widow, daughters and a few others.

The sum of $3,000,000 was set aside for the children of J. P. Morgan, Jr., in equal shares.

WIFE'S LARGE SHARE.
Mr. Morgan gives to his wife, Frances Louise Tracy Morgan: (1) one million dollars in trust. She is to receive the income during her life and to have power to will it at her death.

(2) In addition she is given other property sufficient to give her an annual income of $100,000 a year.

(3) The widow gets the country place at "Cragston" and the town house at 38th street and Madison avenue for life, with all its contents, including the works of art except the family portraits.

To each of his daughters, Mrs. William Pearson Hamilton, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee and Anne Tracy Morgan, is left $3,000,000 in trust.

To Wm. Pearson Hamilton, son-in-law, $1,000,000.

To Herbert Livingston Satterlee, son-in-law, $1,000,000.

Of the art collections which are left to J. P. Morgan Jr., the will says:

FOR PUBLIC BENEFIT.
"I have been greatly interested for many years in gathering collections of paintings, miniatures, porcelains and other works of art and it has been my desire and intention to make some suitable disposition of them or of such portions of them as I might determine, which would render them permanently available for the instruction and pleasure of the American people. Lack of the necessary time to devote to it, has as yet prevented my carrying this purpose into effect."

The will was drawn January 3d, 1903, and was witnessed by John G. Milburn, John M. Blackmar and Lewis Cass Lodge, Jr., all of whom are now deceased. There is a codicil executed January 6th, 1903, witnessed by Joseph H. Choate, Albert H. Gary and Lewis Cass Lodge.

The executors and trustees of the will are J. P. Morgan Jr., William Pearson Hamilton, Herbert Livingston Satterlee, Con., on Page 18, Cols., 1-2)

Autos Crash; Woman Thrown Upon Street

Collision Causes Injury to Mrs. Helen Danforth; Others Escape Hurts.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—A head-on collision between two automobiles, Baker and Geary streets late this afternoon sent three persons to the street and partially wrecked the machine. Mrs. Helen Danforth of 639 Lake street was cut by glass from the wind shield and bruised by her fall, but the others escaped injury. One of the cars was driven by Miss L. Lisak and for her passenger she carried Mrs. Danforth, who is a guest at her home. At Baker street, as she was about to turn, Miss Lisak's car was struck by Walter Smith of 436 Golden Gate street. The impact was sufficient to completely turn one of the autos and throw the other to the sidewalk. Mrs. Danforth was picked up and removed to her home, a private physician being called in.

Suffragists Attempt

Bomb Fails to Explode; "Death in General Minutes," Placard.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., April 19.—A militant suffrage "bomb troop" attempted today to blow up the famous Smeaton tower on Plymouth Hoe. The tower is the original Eddystone lighthouse, built by John Smeaton in 1759, dismantled when it had become antiquated and re-erected on the Hoe as a historic relic.

As in many instances of recent date the bomb employed by the militants failed to explode. The cord of the usual cylindrical time fuse was attached with explosives and with a fuse attached to the top. On the cylinder the women had painted in bold letters the words: "Votes for women." "Death in ten minutes" was all around was scattered suffrage literature.

PROPERTY
BANK

Former Official, With Aid of Wife, Makes Restitution to Amount of $75,000

Beautiful Home Included in Transfer; His Family Is Deprived

EVERYTHING in the world owned by Charles F. Baker, defaulting assistant cashier of the Crocker National Bank of San Francisco, and his wife, has been deeded by them to the Savings Union and Trust Company of that city to make such restitution as is possible for his $207,000 embezzlement as well as for other debts.

The property, conveyed for the protection of Baker's creditors, will not total more than $75,000, but it is all that the disgraced bank official has—all that his wife has, too.

Baker goes into the United States District Court Monday a penniless man to receive a long sentence for his peculation. He goes to the penitentiary leaving his family without a cent. But he takes his departure with the knowledge that he has done what he could at this tardy date to right the wrong he committed.

DEEDS FILED.

The deeds filed by Baker and his wife yesterday in the Alameda county recorder's office, convey to the Savings Union and Trust Company their beautiful home, 86 Monte Vista avenue, Linda Vista Terrace. In the list are lots in Piedmont Park, on Corinthian Island in Marin county, and in Miramar Heights, Placer county. Then there is a half section of valuable oil land in Kern county. The deeds include a half interest in two lots in Redwood City, and lastly a one-ninth interest in a large area of land in El Dorado county, with the Gold Hill ditch and farming implements on the property.

PROTECTS CREDITORS.

All of Baker's worldly effects and those of his wife have been deeded to the savings Union and Trust Co., according to Attorney Charles A. Shurtleff, counsel for Baker, because it is the purpose of the self-confessed embezzler and his wife to protect all their creditors—the Crocker National Bank as well as all other institutions and individuals who may claim against his estate now, or during the time he is a federal prisoner, serving time for his crimes.

Friedmann Unmoved
By Government Note

Doctor Says He Returned to New York to Treat His Patients.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Dr. Friedrich Friedmann declared today that he returned to New York in accordance with his plans to continue the treatment of tuberculosis patients who have already received one inoculation with the turtle serum and that his return was in no way hastened by the letter from the government. "My movements are entirely directed by the work I have to do," said Dr. Friedmann. "I have no plans to return to Europe until my mission here is fulfilled. The treatment of the patients which have been submitted to me is my only consideration."

Dr. Friedmann today examined twenty of the thirty-six patients treated by him recently at Bellevue hospital. All information regarding the condition of these patients was refused. Dr. Friedmann said, however, that none of the patients was in condition to receive a second inoculation. It was learned that some of the patients have gained in weight, but not to a greater extent than several other patients who have not received the Friedmann treatment.

CATARRH OF THE KIDNEYS

A Settled Form of Catarrh That May Exist a Long Time Before It Is Discovered

Mr. Robert H. Norris

There are some things that medical science considers settled. For instance, that all of the organs of the human body are lined with a mucous membrane. Also that these mucous membranes, of whatever organ, duct or cavity, are liable to an inflammatory condition known as catarrh. Therefore, any internal organ, any internal passage, or duct, or cavity, is subject to catarrh. The kidneys are subject to catarrh the same as any other internal organ.

The catarrh may be slight, causing only an insignificant change in the function of the kidneys. The catarrh may be severe, producing a condition resembling closely Bright's disease of the kidneys. In such cases there is extreme weakness, maybe bloating of the stomach, bloating of the hands and feet, puffiness of the eyes. Albumen in the urine. Possibly blood and mucus.

Mrs. H. E. Russell, Box 2, North Sutton, New Hampshire, had been troubled for sixteen years with kidney and bladder disease. She said she had taken all kinds of medicine without relief. "I finally applied to Dr. Hartman, who diagnosed my case as catarrh of the urinary organs. He advised me to take Peruna. Even after taking one bottle I felt better. I have now taken six bottles and am cured of my old trouble of sixteen years' standing. Peruna has been a godsend to me. I shall praise it always."

How any rational creature is going to explain such a cure as that except by giving great credit to Peruna as an excellent medicine, how it can be explained in any other way I cannot possibly understand. Peruna is a great medicine and is constantly making great cures. Those who think otherwise would be easily convinced of their error by talking with people who have used it.

Let us take one more. From Ortonville, Minn., Mrs. Gus H. Carlson. She has taken Peruna for catarrh of the kidneys and bladder. She is cured and says, "I am very thankful for Peruna."

And so the list might be extended indefinitely. These testimonials have come entirely unsought, unsolicited, and represent the actual experiences of the everyday men and women who are doing the work of the world.

SYMPTOMS OF KIDNEY CATARRH

The symptoms of catarrh of the kidneys are as follows: First, backache. Second, dizziness. Third, occasionally nausea and vomiting. Fourth, pallor or puffiness of the face. Fifth, frequent disposition to urinate. Sixth, urine highly colored. Seventh, tenderness on pressure on each side of spine. Mr. Robert H. Norris, No. 1443 Henry St., North Berkeley, California, whose portrait accompanies this article, is also a friend of Peruna. He writes:

"We have never had any other medicine in our home but Peruna since we have been married."

"I suffered with kidney and bladder trouble, but two months' treatment with Peruna made me a well and strong man."

"My wife felt weak and was easily tired and was also troubled with various pains, but since she took Peruna she is well and strong."

SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS PAGEANT TO STARTLE OAKLAND NATIVES

IRENE MONTGOMERY, DARING EQUESTRIENNE WITH SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS, WHICH WILL BE IN OAKLAND APRIL 28 AND 29.

Of course when the Sells-Flo Circus comes here April 28 and 29 it will give a parade, which will probably come down the street about 11 o'clock in the morning with bands playing and banners flying and full of all the joy and gladness that it will hold.

Sells-Flo is the only big traveling organization that always gives its patrons the full benefit of this free spectacle. Others cut out the street parade at one time or another the real reason being that they did not have exactly what they advertised, but when the Sells-Flo Circus comes here, it is especially requested by the management that you go and see the street parade, because if you don't even care to go to the circus afterward, you will see much that is interesting, entertaining and educational while watching the parade. Some of the things that you will see and hear are as follows:

WATCH THAT PARADE
The famous Royal Scotch Kilt band from Toronto, Canada, the greatest organization of its kind in the world. You will hear the Sells-Flo concert band under the direction of Park B. Prentiss. At the line of march proceeds, you will notice Devlin's Champion Zouaves performing all kinds of intricate and sensational military movements. You will hear the Grand band of the Sells-Flo Circus, the largest instrument ever carried on wheels and featured in a parade. You will also notice that every case and den is open and each contains some remarkable specimen from jungle and plain. You will see Marguerite Ricardo sitting like Daniel of old in an immense den of lions and tigers untrifled and unafraid, while they crouch forward at her feet. You will notice the display of horseflesh the like of which you have never seen before and may never see again. Every class and species being represented from the sleek thoroughbred to the lordly Percheron.

CLOWNS TO BE THERE
There will be clowns without number, acrobats, a horseback and every other way there will be 10 hands. You will see the famous herd of trained elephants, followed by the racing camels hitched to their speeding wagons. There will be pretty women driving tandem and dare-devil chaperons with their swift couriers. There will be scared oxen from India and whole flocks of Shetland ponies to amuse the little ones, scores of champion riders mounted on the best horses that money can procure and a host of other things sufficient to make this wonderful spectacle nearly two miles long.

Even if you don't want to pay the 25 cents admission fee, which is just one-half that levied by every other circus of consequence, you are welcome as the flowers in May to come down to the street and watch the circus pass by.

SEEK PASSAGE OF AQUEDUCT BONDS

Los Angeles Boosters to Find Out Why They Met First Defeat.

LOS ANGELES, April 19.—Under the leadership of the city's administration, backed by powerful newspapers and the entire political power of the great Los Angeles Owens River Aqueduct organization, the fight is being renewed here for the consummation of the water project and power plans which went awry at the recent bond election. Temporary measures are being devised to provide funds with which to carry on the work on the aqueduct, where the funds are now exhausted, and plans are being perfected which tend to carry out the project as originally planned in the bond issues.

In the meantime the city council has been asked to look into the issue more closely and determine who it was that provided funds for carrying on the campaign which was made against the aqueduct power bonds and the largest municipal defeat. A long resolution calling for such an investigation was presented yesterday by Charles E. Warner, former member of the board of public utilities and president of the aqueduct investigating committee.

At a meeting of the people's campaign committee another resolution was presented by George H. Dunlop, author of the municipal newspaper, favoring another bond election should negotiations with the power companies come to naught.

GOVERNMENT SEEKS UNCLAIMED LANDS

Secretary Lane Has New Proposal to Settle Up Areas in the West.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Secretary Lane has under consideration a proposal that the unclaimed lands of the West be turned over to the Department of Agriculture for settlement and development as soon as the engineering works are finished by the reclamation service. As a result of today's meeting, reclamation service engineers and G. M. Bailey of Oregon, who came to Washington to present the proposal, the Secretary was told that settlement on the reclaimed lands could be largely increased and their usefulness greatly extended by a plan of supervision to compel their cultivation in the spirit of the law.

WARRANT IS ISSUED.
SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Police today issued a warrant for the arrest of John McHale on a charge of drawing a check on a bank in which he had not sufficient funds. The complaining witness is J. B. Marten, of 623 Fulton street, and the amount in cash is $15.

CLEAN-UP WEEK IS INAUGURATED

Mayor Harrison Asks Chicago Ministers to Help Make Week a Reality.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Most elaborate preparations are being made here today for official "clean-up week," which is to be inaugurated on Monday. At the request of the Woman's City Club Mayor Harrison named the week "official clean-up week" and all citizens were asked to make the week true of the name.

Clergymen have been asked to make "clean-up week" the subject of their sermons tomorrow. The street car and elevated companies have been carrying posters in their cars announcing "clean-up week" and have been busy cleaning their rolling stock and stations.

The idea of "clean-up week" was launched by the Woman's City Club and was then taken up by other women organizations. Then the fire, police and health departments of the city offered their co-operation and Mrs. Ella Flegg Young followed with the assurance of her own and that of the school children, all of whom have entered into the campaign with great interest. It is planned to have a "clean-up week" every month and to make Chicago the cleanest city in the country. The women's clubs, city departments and churches are not the only ones who have taken part in the plans for "clean-up week." Many business men are interested in it, including the Chicago Association of Commerce. It is expected that tomorrow Chicago will get such a cleaning as it has never suffered before.

CAUCUCUS REDUCES ONYX, BURLAP, VANILLA DUTY

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Through the efforts of Congressmen Baker and Church the Democratic caucus has reduced the burlap duty to 20 cents, thus maintaining the differential desired by the jute and burlap importers. The rate on vanilla beans was also eased from 50 cents a pound to 45 per cent ad valorem, as advocated by the San Francisco merchants. Onyx was placed on an equal footing with marble, the duty being fixed at 50 cents for each stone, instead of the original rate of 60 cents for marble and 65 cents for onyx.

'A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM'

Court Quotes Bible to Urge Bright Tot to Effect Reconciliation.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—"A little child shall lead them," quoted Superior Judge Graham today as he placed his hands affectionately upon little Beta Milano, aged 3, admonishing her to endeavor to reunite her parents, who appeared in court this morning fighting for her custody. The child, who is an exceedingly beautiful girl, has exhibited such evidences of acumen as to lead Judge Graham to the belief that she could reconcile her father, Giuseppe Milano, and her mother, Madeline, who, for three years, have lived apart.

"Have you ever read the Bible?" inquired the court, looking into the big brown eyes with their gaze fixed steadily upon him.

"Yes, my papa teaches it to me," she said.

"Do you remember what is said therein about 'A little child shall lead them'?" Beta replied that she did not recollect the passage, but she understood the court's meaning. She said she would rather stay with her father, but added, "It would be awfully nice to have mamma and papa both at the same time."

"I think so, too," replied his honor, and ordered that the girl be given over into her mother's care until Sunday night, continuing the case for two weeks.

Giuseppe Milano brought the action, charging his wife with desertion. The case had been submitted and the family were in court today endeavoring to see who would have the custody of little Beta. When the child said that she preferred her father, Mrs. Milano broke down and wept and her tears broke out afresh when the girl promised to try and reunite the couple. Mrs. Milano declared that the only reason she would not return to her spouse, who is willing to forgive and forget, was that she had feared to do so two years ago and that he had refused to receive her.

SINGLE COMPANY RUNS ENTIRE MART

Armour Grain Concern Sells May Wheat and Buys July and September.

(By JOSEPH F. FRITCHARD.)
CHICAGO, April 19.—The mart in the West pit today possessed the earmarks of the Armour Grain Company's office. There were many buyers of May wheat and there were many sellers of July and September wheat. This pit concern was credited with having sold all the May wheat that the market cared to absorb on the advance established. There was more than one reason for the market showing the white feather and declining, but those who sold early in the belief that the wheat was likely to remain the market on the basis of the whole before the season was an hour old, were given time to reflect later in the day, after they were driven off the short side with losses.

Instead of the dry weather complete coming from western Kansas, as has been the case for several days, that country was reported as having had light showers and scattering rains, with cloudy conditions over the entire state. Nebraska reported rain at several points, but there have been no complaints of a lack of moisture there so far.

INSECT INVESTIGATION.
There were additional reports of insects in the wheat fields of Missouri and of many grasshoppers in that state.

The undertone was also in corn, with fractional advances shown under fair buying by commission houses, with offerings scattered. The bull crowd in the May future was not in price save on the weak spots, when they picked up all that could be obtained without effort.

There was little in the oats market worthy of note. The movement continues active with the receipts at primary points 330,000 bushels during last week, which was nearly 100,000 bushels in excess of the same time last year. Shipments from these points were liberal.

The provision market was a strong affair, but the volume of business was small compared with the enormous trade of Friday. The lighter marketing of hogs was an important factor and further good advances on the hog was a help to the provision list.

POLICE FAIL TO FIND TRACE OF WARDEN'S SLAYERS

M. S. CLARK.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—M. S. Clark, the deputy sheriff and game warden, who swam for an hour on the bay Wednesday night following the duel with a band of fishermen, broke down and sobbed today at the funeral of his brother officer, Ernest A. Raymond. The services were held at the chapel of Halsted & Co. and after the ceremonies had been completed an opportunity was given those present to gaze for the last time on the face of the young warden who died in the performance of his duty. When Clark passed by the situation was too tense for him and his sobs were audible to everyone in the crowded edifice.

The police today began an investigation in an effort to find one of the alleged murderers of Raymond. An order was issued to all patrolmen to search every doctor's office or adjacent to the beach and to inquire as to whether anyone had sought treatment for a gunshot wound since Wednesday's battle. So far one man in the custody of the sheriff of Marin county, is the only one who could be connected even remotely with the crime.

PROGRESSIVES ARE MAKING POOR SHOWING, SAYS WASHINGTON POST

Are the Progressives drifting back to the Republican party? Are they hopeless of keeping the army together for four long years or until their leader, Col. Roosevelt, might again rally the forces for another three-cornered battle with the Republican and Democratic parties? Chicago gave Roosevelt 24,183 more votes than Wilson and 76,333 more votes than Taft at the November election. It proved itself the cradle of the Roosevelt Progressive movement by the size of its vote for the Colonel. Yet a few days ago, with a Progressive candidate for alderman in every ward, only three were elected, as against 22 Democrats, 11 Republicans and one Independent.

Now comes St. Louis with a similar verdict against the Progressive party. The issue was clean-cut at the majority election there. The Progressive candidate for mayor was Frank H. Gerhart, whose wealth made it possible for him to finance the Progressive campaign, and who received enthusiastic praise from Col. Roosevelt.

Henry W. Kiel, the Republican candidate, was one of the delegates to the Republican convention at Chicago, and he voted for the renomination of President Taft. Mr. Roosevelt in the recent majority campaign in St. Louis denounced Kiel bitterly for his support of Taft, and said he was not a fit man to be mayor. The issue between Gerhart and Kiel was plain and unmistakable. It cannot be argued that the Progressives stayed at home because they had not the incentive of voting for the Colonel himself. The total vote cast, about 125,000, was the largest ever recorded at a St. Louis municipal election. Yet the Progressive candidate received only 4611 votes. The Republican candidate, who had been denounced by the Colonel, was elected by a plurality of 5129 over Dr. John H. Simon, the Democratic candidate. The Socialist candidate, with 6000 votes, was ahead of the Progressive candidate, who was a bad fourth in the race.

However discouraging this result may be to the Progressives, Colonel Roosevelt cannot help feeling that it was a compliment to the potency of his own personality. The Progressive movement was mostly Mr. Roosevelt. When he ran for President, the Progressive party was a factor. When he is no longer a candidate for office himself the party ceases to be a factor.

As an organization, it is clear, the Progressive party is disintegrating. Its members are returning to the Republican party. At the congressional elections two years from now, it is quite possible that the majority of the Progressive party will be in the ranks of the Republican party.

BLIND AND ALONE, TRAVELS AT WILL

Indian Recluse Prepares His Meals and Bakes Bread, Although Sightless.

SPOKANE, Wash., April 19.—Totally blind and living entirely alone, two miles from his nearest neighbor, building his own fires and cooking his own meals, even to making bread, is Schunkmeln Paul, an aged Indian of the Colapet tribe, according to the story brought to Spokane by Father Louis Tashman, president of Gonzaga University.

Father Tashman, who a few years ago was a missionary to the Colapet Indians, said in a recent article, and makes frequent trips to their tented village on the Pand Oquille river, some 60 miles northeast of Spokane. But the old, blind tribesman lives apart from his people, a life of the utmost seclusion.

"I was amazed at the case of old blind Schunkmeln Paul," states Father Tashman. "I investigated the condition. He is stone blind and yet he lives entirely alone, two miles from the nearest neighbor. The wonderful part of his story is that he travels at will, visiting the people of the tribe, always going directly to the place at which he desires to visit. He never gets confused in roads by taking the wrong way."

"He lives in a small cabin that he built with his own hands. He builds all his own fires and prepares his meals. He can cut his meat or bake bread as good as most persons who have the use of their eyes."

"The only way in which I can account for his strange case is that the wonderful instinct, which every Indian has, has become so acute in him during the 40 years of his blindness that it has taken the place of his eyes."

"Among the Colapets there is a great deal of blindness and bad eyes, due to the smoke from their pipe fires. It has proved a great detriment to their moral and physical advancement. The old head chief, Mameah, is blind."

SEES RAT; SWALLOWS PIN; TO USE X-RAY

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—Miss Elizabeth Forsythe, a dressmaker, of No. 17 Head street, was fitting a dress on a customer last evening, when a rat ran across the floor. The dressmaker was so startled that she swallowed three pins.

Mrs. Forsythe was in such serious condition this morning that she had to be taken to Mount Sinai hospital. The surgeons there will use the X-ray to locate the pins, and hope to save her life by removing them.

BURGLAR BREAKS NOSE OF WOMAN WITH A BLOW

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 19.—Mrs. John M. Smurr, 1140 South Main street, Independence, was attacked by a burglar in her home early in the morning. Feeling a cold wind blowing through her bedroom, she arose and found an outside door open. As she was returning to bed after closing it, she was struck in the face by a burglar, who apparently had been ransacking the house. He made his escape. Mrs. Smurr's nose was broken by the blow.

BULMER HILL ROAD TO BE REPAIRED BY COUNTY

Supervisors Will Not Wait for Action by State Highway Commission.

Survey Lines Will Enable the Local Officials to Carry on Work.

The dangerous Bulmer hill on the Hayward Pass road into the Livermore valley, upon which so many people have been killed in automobile accidents, is to be cut down and repaired by the Board of Supervisors. The supervisors are not going to wait longer for the State Highway Commission, but will have the work done themselves. On Tuesday next District Engineer Loder of the State Highway Commission will visit Oakland and will be taken over this dangerous stretch of roadway by Supervisors Mullins and Bridge. County Surveyor Hayward and Chief Deputy District Attorney Leon A. Clark. The party will be joined in the canyon by Supervisor Murphy, in whose district lies a large part of the road to be improved.

There will be a careful inspection of the whole roadway and Loder has been instructed by the State Highway Commission to furnish the Alameda county authorities with all the information that may be at his command. The Alameda supervisors will then proceed and finish the work without more delay.

SIX SURVEYS MADE.
The delay in this work has been caused by the inability of the Alameda supervisors and the State Highway Commission to get together. The state commission has had no less than six surveys made over Bulmer hill to get a satisfactory route laid out. It is the policy of the state commission not to give out survey lines adopted because that would permit property owners to hold up the county for rights of way and never in the least have the Alameda supervisors been able to get the state commission to give them the benefit of its survey.

The highway commission has not money to complete this particular section of roadway and so, between the two, the road was left in its present dangerous state.

The state and county officials will now get together and work out a scheme for putting the road in first class condition. Supervisors Murphy and Bridge are both directly interested in this piece of work, because it is partly in the district of each. Both are anxious to go ahead with the work and the prospects are now bright for a satisfactory outcome.

COMMISSION TO ACT.
"The trouble has always been in getting the lines of the state commission," said Supervisor Murphy, "but I have now agreed to help us to any extent. This is one of the results of our recent trip to Sacramento when we conferred with the state commission upon all road matters affecting our county and the counties adjoining us. We are ready to go ahead and support the state commission in every way if we can only find out what they want."

ANXIOUS FOR BOULEVARD.
Supervisor Bridge had this to say about the coming meeting.
"I am very anxious to see the Hayward Pass boulevard completed into the Livermore valley. It is the finest piece of roadway in the state and I hope that we will be able to get together with the state officials and find some way out of our difficulty. We cannot complete the Hayward Pass route to a point where the state surveys diverge from ours and if we can reach any kind of a settlement with the state officials we will go right ahead."

Chairman Mullins said:
"We have accomplished something definite in regard to road work in our county. From now on the state officials will work in thorough harmony with us and no road work will be done in Alameda county unless it is permanent in its character and upon the lines that we approve. We are anxious to go ahead just as soon as the approve and settle the lines."

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Rev. Robert Rogers will preach at Park Congregational church, on Hayes street between Lyon and Central, on "The Sinfulness of Worry, the Salt of the Earth." At 7:45 p. m. at the Sunset Congregational church, Mr. Rogers will speak on "The Sinfulness of Worry."

Every Woman May Have Beautiful
Glorious Hair
Own Head

No woman can decorate her head with false hair in the shape of rats, puffs, switches and transformations and make it appear natural. Hair growing on the scalp is the only kind that always looks right. There is grace and beauty in natural hair which is not to be mistaken.

Newborn Hairdressing permits the luxuriant growth of beautiful hair. It endures the dandruff, preserves the hair and gives it life and brightness of true hair health.

EASTER CONCERT THIS EVENING

Program Will Be Repeated
Because Bad Weather Interfered.

Owing to the storm that prevented so many people from attending the Easter Sunday for the first time in the history of the church, the choir, under the direction of Eugene Blanchard, will repeat the Easter Cantata, by Max Bruch, this evening.

This most wonderful, brilliant and modern work was given here on Easter Sunday for the first time in the history of the church. From start to finish it breathes the true spirit of Easter in the music as well as in the words. Besides the cantata, there will be other special solo, quartet and chorus numbers, the soloists being: Mrs. Alma B. Winchester, soprano; Louis C. Nicholson, contralto; Hugh J. Williams, tenor; and Charles L. Lloyd Jr., bass. Miss Virginia de Fleury, organist.

The complete program is as follows:
1. Organ Prelude, "Fugate," Roman Symphony.
2. "The First Chorus," by Bruch.
3. "Great God Who Knowest Each Man's Need," by Dykes.
4. "Quartet, unaccompanied."
5. Anthem, "Behold, Ye Dreamers," by Parker.
6. "The Angel of the Lord," by Messers. Williams, Ames, Madden and Lloyd.
7. Offertory, "Why Art Thou Cast Down?" (Tenor solo).
8. "Easter Cantata," by Bruch.
9. "Easter Chorus," by Bruch.
10. Organ Postlude, "Triumphal March," by Archer.

KNIGHTS OF BEN HUR
ENTERTAIN VISITORS

Members of Oakland Court No. 6, Tribe of Ben Hur, entertained several visiting knights and ladies in the last meeting of the club. The business was rapidly disposed of and the remainder of the evening was devoted to entertainment. A banquet was enjoyed in a local cafe, where toasts were given by the guests.

The court meets every Thursday evening in Rino's Italian Seventeenth street San Pablo avenue, and convenes promptly at 8 o'clock.

CANAL WILL HELP STEEL BUILDINGS

Delayed Shipments Will Be Obviated, Says Commissioner Anderson.

With the opening of the Panama canal the delays so often experienced in building operations, due to the non-delivery of material, will be greatly obviated, was the declaration of Commissioner Harry S. Anderson during the course of his illustrated lecture on the new city hall which he gave before the Latham Terrace Improvement club at a meeting held in the Manzanita school Friday evening.

"Actual construction of the steel frame was commenced on January 2, 1912, and completed by August 2 of that year. Owing to the lack of railroad facilities and the congestion of those facilities existing in the erection of the steel work was greatly delayed through the non-delivery of material. Had this delay not occurred the new city hall would have been completed six months ago. Steel for the superstructure arrived long before much of that for the lower floors was delivered. With the opening of the Panama canal such delays will be impossible and the facilities for the handling of all kinds of building material and merchandise greatly improved as it will then be possible to ship by the water route, where vessels will not be delayed for the want of truckage room.

"Even with the delay experienced, think of the record when a municipal building, costing about $1,500,000 can be completed in two years' time and had the delay mentioned not occurred it would have been completed in the short space of eighteen months.

"One of the features of the steel frame are the two giant 55-ton trusses, which support the superstructure, so that columns are rendered unnecessary on the first floor and the rotunda gives a beautiful sweep of space for the grand staircase leading to the council chamber."

FAVORS DROPPING FRESHMAN YEAR

Head of University of Chicago
Makes Recommendation
in Address.

CHICAGO, April 19.—President Harry Pratt Judson of the University of Chicago advocated dropping the freshman year from the college curriculum. He advanced this opinion last night in an address on economy in education before a general session of the twenty-fifth conference of academics and high schools held at the university.

Professor Judson asserted that the first year of the collegiate course consisted too largely in duplication of secondary branches to be valuable. More than 500 teachers and students of academics and high schools were in attendance.

Among the speakers were William A. Jessup of Iowa university.

DISFRANCHISED MAY HAVE VOTE RESTORED

COLUMBUS, O., April 19.—More than 600 persons who were disfranchised by Judge A. Z. Blair as a result of an investigation of vote selling in Adams county upwards of two years ago would have the ballot restored them if a bill passed by the Ohio Senate yesterday is approved by the state house. The bill is known as House Bill 101.

WILL KENT BACK HENRY AGAINST JOHNSON?

AN FRANCISCO, April 19.—It is strange that in all the controversy over the anti-alien land bill nobody has taken the trouble to look up the facts as to the amount of land the Japanese have acquired in this State. Yet the figures are easily accessible in the form of an official report.

In his report to the Governor, Labor Commissioner McLaughlin gives the land holdings owned by Japanese in California as 12,000 acres. The amount held under lease by Japanese is given as 17,000 acres.

Surely these figures do not approach the dimensions of a peril. The Japanese do not own on an average of more than one-third of an acre apiece.

When we turn to the statistics of Japanese immigration, the figures give still less occasion for alarm. During the two years and nine months ending March 1st of this year, the Japanese in the United States decreased by 4933. This also is official. So much for the Japanese.

But a doleful cry comes from the mining counties that the proposed anti-alien land law will greatly handicap the mining industry. The money to develop the mines of this State comes principally from England and the mining industry is bound to suffer severely if English capital is driven out of the country. The copper industry in Shasta county is in the hands of English companies and, in many other counties, it is English capital that is developing the mines. Miners and prospectors are asking themselves who is to supply capital for mining development when foreigners are driven out of this field for investment.

Johnson or Heney for Senator

There is blood on the face of the moon. At least, that is the way the intense politicians describe the premonition of war in the Bull Moose Camp.

The army of the Lord on the field of Armageddon is about to divide.

It is all about that nice, plump United States Senatorship.

And, strange to say, the new Reform Measure—the amendment to the Federal Constitution, providing for the election of these political utilities by direct vote of the people, has brought this about. Had the old system prevailed, Governor Johnson would have had a walk-over.

The Legislature would have chosen him beyond doubt, and it would have done so after his term of office had expired, which would have accomplished the object according to law; but now, there are two difficulties: He has to go before the people as a whole, confronted by an army of enemies created by his administration, and the Legislature.

But, worse than all that! Francis J. Heney is a candidate for the job. His friends will not be denied, or otherwise comforted.

Heney wants it if he has to fight for it. And he is prepared to fight.

His people claim that all the honors are not for one man. They want Johnson to run again for Governor, on a ticket with Heney for Senator.

This would upset the program entirely, and is not Johnson's wish. He had arranged a program, with Eshelman for Governor, and himself for Senator.

Now, come the lawyers and point to Section 20 of Article V of the Constitution of California, which reads:

"The Governor shall not, during his term of office, be elected a Senator to the Senate of the United States."

As the election for Senator would occur during Johnson's term of office as Governor, his candidacy would be in direct conflict.

It is true that this section of the State Constitution is in direct conflict with the Federal Constitution, and, therefore, not legally binding; but it is part of the Constitutional enactments of California and morally binding on every citizen of the State, which the Heney people are carefully pointing out at this time.

The outcome of the controversy is anxiously awaited by the friends and enemies of both candidates.

Kent and Spreckels Back Heney

Friends of Heney give it out that Congressman Kent, the lone calf-moose of the California delegation, will back Heney for Senator against Governor Johnson. They say that Kent has agreed to finance Heney's campaign and that Spreckels will also go to the bat with his sack and moral influence to help Heney defeat the Governor.

Heney and Spreckels have had frequent interviews during the last two weeks which is supposed to confirm the stories being circulated on the street. No open break between Heney and the Governor has yet occurred, but it is quite certain that he cannot train long with Spreckels without breaking with the Governor. If Heney runs it will be as a Progressive candidate and he will endeavor to get the Progressive nomination.

Johnson, it is understood, will also make his fight as a Progressive. A bill is now pending in the Legislature to legalize the Progressive party. It is intended to release the Republican organization from the control of the Progressives, but not as an act of justice.

I am told the Governor thinks he would have a better chance to win out in a three-cornered fight than running as a Republican. His aim is to let the regular Republicans put up a candidate of their own and take charge of their party organization, for he knows that the great majority of them will vote for the Democratic candidate if the Progressives continue to control the Republican party organization and use the Republican party name.

Who will be the Democratic candidate has not yet developed, but it is said that Congressman Raker will get into the fight if he fails to get appointed United States District Judge. He wants the judgeship, but if he cannot get that he will make an effort to get elected to the Senate.

Prize for Harry I. Willey

It has just leaked out that Harry Ide Willey, ex-Surveyor-General and formerly one of California's prominent citizens, enjoys a very intimate association with the leading Democrats of the country, and stands so well in New York State that he is being mentioned in connection with very distinguished positions, both Federal and State.

General Willey retired from politics in the late eighties, and in 1896 transferred his headquarters from San Francisco to New York City, since which time he has only visited his native State a few times. Willey's administration of the office of Surveyor-General and Ex-Officio Registrar of State Lands is memorable for its purity and efficiency; and although there was a fortune in sight for him if he had gone into the land business after his term of office, he refused to do so in order to avoid even a suspicion of having used his knowledge for his personal gain. General Willey espoused the cause of W. R. Hearst and his "Independence League" and has been helpful in many ways, devoting himself exclusively to mining engineering since 1896. Willey attained a high position in his chosen profession, eventually securing a lot of very valuable mining property in Mexico, worth almost half a million dollars in 1906. The panic of 1907, followed by the revolution, later deprived Willey of all of his property, compelling a return to the practice of his profession.

Although over 60 years of age, Willey does not look a day older than in 1896, and is capable of the most effective efforts of his life. Occupying a prominent social position, a member of several clubs and societies, he has a host of friends in the east, as he had as a young man in the west. Any day we may learn of Willey's appointment to some distinguished political position, which he will surely fill with credit to himself and honor to his party.

Fight Between Rolph and Spreckels

The bitterness between Mayor Rolph and Rudolph Spreckels has become acute.

As a part of the general policy of war on the Mayor, Spreckels has taken complete charge of the fight, hitherto generated by Alphabet Troy and Modesto Easton, against the Lower Market Street Railway agreement.

Spreckels has made the announcement that whoever is not for him is against him, and this is creating new lines. It is also making a difference in the recommendations for patronage to Washington.

It was assumed that Phelan and Spreckels would join in making recommendations. Although the latter is not a Democrat, he has assumed that, through the negative work in dividing the Republican vote, as head of the La Follette movement, he was entitled to consideration from Wilson, and has arranged a slate of those he is for and those he is against.

Quite curiously, those who appear on the Phelan slate are not on the Spreckels slate, and there is great bitterness among some of those who thought they were safe.

It is now, "Under which King Bezonian? Speak or die." And the office-seekers do not know whether to cry "Phelan" or shout "Spreckels." This is very embarrassing.

As for the fight over the Market Street Railway: As far as indications can be obtained and straw vote taken, the proposed compact will pass overwhelmingly, thus forever cauterizing and healing what has become a running sore in the body politic.

The Recall Getting Cold Feet

The Judge Weller recall seems to have locomotor ataxia. It does not move very rapidly.

The great public has left the matter to a little oligarchy of women and two clergymen—the Rev. Dr. Aked and Rev. Charles Lathrop, Governor Johnson's chaplain.

The same names appear night after night at the announced meetings, and observation shows that the attendance at these meetings is largely the same, a certain fanatical body of men and women who follow up the speakers.

A demonstration of this was made when they called two meetings in one night at the same time. The audience at each was slim.

The sentiment of the people seems to be that the whole thing is too utterly insignificant to have invoked the mighty machinery of "Recall" with its consequent expenses and disturbance of the peace.

Nobody charges Weller with anything more serious than having made a mistake in judgment.

The voters think that the recall was intended as a rapid-fire measure for reaching something worse than this: Corruption or turpitude.

All the speakers, while challenging Weller's wisdom, concede his integrity.

Wiley Crist, his opponent, does not impress the average mind as judicial timber. He is a nobody, pulled in from nowhere, for the exigencies of the occasion, not because he was wanted, but because the Recall could not be put in motion without a candidate—therefore, Crist.

It is freely predicted that the result of this Recall will be a black eye for all Recall movements for a long while.

This has so impressed the people who seek the recall of Sheriff Eggers that, although they had the necessary signatures, they decided to postpone until some more propitious occasion, their filing.

It is expected that there will be a number of elections held on other questions, and the opponents of Eggers intend to select one of these days for bringing on his affair. They feel that next Tuesday will be an unpopular day for everything brought on the ballot by petition, and they don't want to go down in the deluge.

An Incident of the First Conclave

The Templar conclave which has just ended in Oakland reminds me of a story of Gregory Yale, the eminent pioneer land lawyer, and the first conclave held in California. It is so characteristic of the man and the time that it is worth telling again.

Prior to coming to California in 1849, Mr. Yale had practiced in Florida, which was formerly a Spanish province. He was well up in Spanish law and facile principles in applying its intricacies to land titles. Because of his familiarity with the laws on which many of the land titles in California rested, fees and practice flowed in upon him from the moment of his arrival.

He founded the Knight Templar order in California. Back in Florida he had been Grand Commander or grand something or other, and he brought with him a traveling dispensation empowering him to organize and institute commanderies. In San Francisco he organized the first commandery in California, was its first commander and bossed the first conclave ever held in the State.

When the first conclave was to be held, the secretary of the San Francisco commandery informed Mr. Yale that it would be impossible for the knights to turn out in regalia as the law of the order requires. Many of them were short of means and did not have plumes, uniforms and swords and were not in a position to supply them and provide themselves with mounts. Mr. Yale was a Virginian by birth with the expansive notions of dignity and generosity of the old school Southron, and he could not bear to think of the parade being made a failure. He had plenty of money, and the only use he had for money was to spend it. He told the secretary to provide all the paraphernalia and bring the bill to him. His orders were obeyed and the parade was a spectacular success.

The bill incurred by Mr. Yale's order came to $12,000. He paid it without question or murmur, and thought no more about it. The matter was attended to so quietly and delicately that it was never talked about save among a few of Mr. Yale's intimates in the commandery.

Gregory Yale was the father of Charles G. Yale, statistician of the United States Geological Survey. Perhaps some of the older members of San Francisco Commandery may remember hearing about this incident of the first conclave.

Lane's First Appointment

The first direct blessing extended by the administration to California Democrats took the form of the appointment of "Receiver of Public Moneys," at Sacramento, given to Samuel Butler, now of the Marysville Appeal, formerly president of the Miners' Union of Grass Valley.

This came from Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, not only officially, but personally.

When Lane was running for Governor, in the year when the scratched Democratic ballots of Riverside and San Bernardino Counties were not counted, and the failure to count such elected Pardee, Samuel Butler was a great factor in the campaign.

Hearst and his papers had a fight with Lane and his backers. As Hearst was the champion of labor at that time, he exerted a very great influence.

To offset this, Lane had many labor leaders actively in his fight. The most prominent, and decidedly most clever and effective, was Samuel Butler.

Lawlor at the Churchill Dinner

The politicians were astonished at the active participation of Judge William P. Lawlor at the Winston Churchill dinner.

He occupied a seat at the speakers' table, with the guest of honor and Governor Johnson, and when the Governor's enthusiastic followers launched his candidacy for the presidency four years hence, Lawlor joined vigorously in the applause.

The question being asked by many is: How can Lawlor be an enthusiastic supporter of Johnson's candidacy for the next presidency and have Senator Hughes of New Jersey and Rudolph Spreckels, at the same time, demanding his appointment as District Judge to succeed De Haven, from President Wilson?

However, these are the times of inconsistencies. To be consistent is to be out of politics.

Changes are so rapid and so many that it is a wise man who can place another on the political checkerboard for more than a day.

The New Judges

Unofficial information has been telegraphed from Sacramento that the four new judges for this city provided by the Legislature are to be:

Dennis Duffy, the Governor's law partner; Eustace Cullinan of the Bulletin; William A. Kelly of Matt Sullivan's office, and Police Judge Daniel Deasy.

The Governor wants to do something for Dennis Duffy, president of the Prison Directors, who has been attacked so much on account of his attitude towards the pardon of Abe Ruef. He feels that he could accomplish two things—lessen the attacks on the prison management, and, at the same time, treat Duffy decently, because he is very fond of him.

WELLER RECALL IS SUFFERING FROM LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA

At the same time, by placing Eustace Cullinan on the bench, it would placate Fremont Older, who has shown symptoms of restlessness and an inclination to jump the traces.

As for "Billy" Kelly, as he is called by his associates, that would be a present to the office of Sullivan & Sullivan & Roche.

As to Police Judge Daniel Deasy: Governor Johnson has always felt tender towards him since, as Police Judge, he issued the writ of search that enabled the police to break open Calhoun's safes. But that is not the reason for his appointment, if it is made.

He is a close associate of Al. McCabe, the Governor's secretary, and is a protégé of Bill Langdon.

After Walker raided the Continental Building and Loan Association and the whole matter was transferred to the Courts, Walker presented a complaint to the grand jury, not involving any shortage of money, but claiming that according to a technical construction of accounting, Corbin's statement to the Building and Loan Commissioner—although identical with that which the Commissioner had previously accepted, and being the same as had been filed for many years—was not a compliance with his ideas of the law.

In spite of violent activities of Harbor Commissioner McCallum, and a former attaché of the waterfront named Hutchins, both members of the grand jury, the attempted indictment was almost unanimously thrown out. Thereafter Walker made application to the police courts.

None of the other judges were inclined to consider the matter at all after the action of the grand jury, but Judge Deasy issued the warrant, and the matter has been dragging along these many months without any decision.

The administration felt very grateful to Deasy, and if he will finally hold Corbin to answer it will feel still more grateful.

Reform and the Fair

The defeat of the bill to make the exposition dry gives lively satisfaction in this city. It has relieved somewhat the feeling of gloom that was falling over the community because of the peculiar activities of the legislators at Sacramento.

"They are trying to kill the exposition" is an expression heard upon every side and a feeling of pessimism was beginning to manifest itself that was very depressing. San Francisco has been soaked at every turn during this session and the blows have come from the adherents of the State machine. The impression was gaining ground that there was a design in official circles to cripple the exposition, if possible. This is the first ray of hope that has come from Sacramento since the session began.

The defeat of the Kehoe bill is the first trick that San Francisco has taken during the session. Everything that San Francisco asked for has been denied. Everything she has protested against hitherto has been passed.

It is noteworthy that Senator Grant, the author of the redlight abatement bill, voted to make the exposition dry. Grant is a confirmed crank. He is as obstinate as a mule and his ideas on some subjects approach fanaticism. He is not open to reason and practically insults men who try to argue him out of his radical notions. He would close up the exposition if he could thereby close up the saloons.

But, happily, Senator Boynton, and even "Elsie" Gates of Los Angeles lined up against the Kehoe bill.

Still San Francisco is not out of the woods yet. The business men of the city are still sweating in fear of the passage of the workmen's compensation bill and the anti-alien land law.

Beauties of Japanese Art

Local art lovers are still talking about the collection of Japanese paintings and prints exhibited at the University recently by Professor William D. Armes. This collection was a revelation to many who had given no thought or study to the art of the Orient. Professor Armes is highly complimented for his taste in making this collection.

Even members of the art colony were surprised at the beauty of many of the paintings. The color prints are a revelation of the artistic talent of the Japanese. Professor Armes has thousands of these prints, but he only exhibited about a hundred, many of them rare and worth more than I would care to say. Only a man of taste and fine discrimination could have made such a collection. It is the accumulation of years made by a man of very modest means who has been guided solely by his love of art and his critical faculty.

What is to become of this collection is the subject of considerable discussion. It is agreed that it should be kept together and made a permanent exhibit in some public museum of California. It was made in California, by a Californian and is both unique and instructive. It ought to be exhibited at the exposition and should be permanently located either at the University or at the Hopkins Art Gallery. Just what Professor Armes intends to do with his art treasures is known only to himself. But it is to be hoped that some way can be devised to make it the property of the public and thrown open to the inspection of all lovers of the pictorial art. Eastern artists say that there is no single collection like it in the United States.

The Hotel Proves Its Value.

The Knights Templar conclave and the meeting of the State Medical Association were visible demonstrations of the value of the Hotel Oakland as a municipal asset. Had we not had the hotel it is not probable that Oakland would have been selected as the meeting place of either the Templars or the physicians. Because we had the hotel and therefore could furnish first-class accommodations for a large crowd this city was made the gathering point for two associations of representative men from every section of the State. Thus the hotel is bringing here precisely the sort of people we desire to enter the city's gates. The smaller hotels got a share of the business, a proof that a hotel of the first-class is a help rather than an injury to less pretentious hosteleries.

When the auditorium is completed Oakland will be still better equipped to accommodate large assemblages. The city will then be an attractive meeting place for conventions of all kinds. With ample hotel accommodations and an auditorium capable of seating from six to ten thousand people, Oakland will be in a position to invite gatherings of the largest class. Without these appurtenances of modern municipal life organizations like the Knights Templar and the State Medical Association could not be induced to come here.

The favorable advertising Oakland will receive by reason of these two gatherings is alone worth many thousands of dollars. We owe this directly to the hotel. Had the auditorium been completed the city would have been still better advertised. As large as the great ballroom of the hotel is, it was too small to accommodate the crowd at the Knights Templar reception. The auditorium would have been the proper place for that function, and it would have given the visitors a higher opinion of our city.

But in another year we will be better prepared to receive company. The auditorium and the city hall will be finished, and we will in many other ways be in better shape for inspection. However, the point we desire to make is that the hotel is justifying itself as a public institution. It is making possible things that were impossible before.

The Belgian strike is not a labor strike in the ordinary sense. It is prompted by political rather than industrial grievances. The laborers have ceased work throughout the kingdom to enforce a demand for manhood suffrage and a more equitable system of representation. Property qualifications and other restrictions limit the suffrage to a minority. The majority is virtually disfranchised. Ballot reform has been an issue for a number of years, but the conservatives have steadily refused to give ground. The minority will not surrender the machinery that enables them to control the government despite the wishes of the majority. The strike is a revolt against this condition. Industrial grievances are secondary to the legislative and electoral reforms demanded by the working class.

What the Vice-President Says.

Vice-President Marshall recently addressed the National Democratic Club in New York. Speaking of the men of enterprise and property in this country, he said:

"They talk about vested rights, and assume that they have both an inherent and constitutional right to pass their property down from generation to generation. Suppose a Governor and General Assembly in New York should repeal the statute of descents for real and personal property, and the statute with reference to the making of wills, how much vested interest would any relative have in the property which fell from their nerveless hands in the hour of death? The right to inherit and the right to devise are neither inherent nor constitutional, but are simply privileges given by the state to its citizens."

Mr. Marshall then continued to declaim against privilege. There are only two concerns of government whatever may be its form. These are the rights of person and the rights of property. It is true that any form of property exists solely by the consent of society, represented by the state, by government. If society say that real property may exist, so is it. If it say there may be personal property, so is it.

One incentive to the thrift and enterprise that win either form of property is the right to transmit it to the family or heirs of the winner. When this incentive is removed the acquisitive instinct is impaired, because, denied the right of such transmission, the individual is merely toiling to win that which will be taken from him by escheat to the state.

The Vice-President, by ranking the right of devise amongst the privileges, is pouring water on the Socialist wheel, and giving impetus to the denial of all the rights of property. He sees that some men have more property than other men, and promotes the assumption that they have no right to it, and that the state should take it from their heirs and divert it to the uses of the state by escheat.

There are others who believe that government is right in protecting the right to acquire and devise property, and that the nullifying of that right removes the motive for industry, enterprise, thrift and temperance. The Vice-President obviously treats success as a social crime, and in its extension his plan means the rebuilding of society on its diseases and failures, while treating its health and success as crimes.

If New York is to see such a Governor and such a General Assembly as he forecasts, his speech has done much to hasten their appearance.

A fearful story of Bulgarian atrocity is printed in the London Outlook, which charges the Balkan allies with the slaughter of women and children and other unspeakable barbarities. It pictures the Turks as inoffensive victims of Chuvavian savagery. Whence the Outlook derived its exclusive information is not stated. As the Outlook was one of the London journals that charged the Italians with similar atrocities in Tripoli, it may be that prejudice or some other ulterior reason is back of the attempt to create sympathy for the Turks and sentiment against the Christian allies. The Outlook acts very much as if it were employed as a publicity agent by the Moslem government.

Yes, there are Hobsons in Japan, but they are not members of the National Parliament.

THE TERROR

—NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

Mr. Curry Against the Pork Barrel.

Hon. Charles F. Curry has not been in Congress long, but he is already showing an interest in the affairs of government which shows that he is giving serious thought to the way the public business is transacted. He has proposed an amendment to the Federal Constitution which should have been adopted long ago. His amendment strikes at a legislative abuse that has been pointed out time and time again, but has remained uncorrected. Mr. Curry does not propose to alter our scheme of government, but to remove an abuse in the method of appropriating money. He proposes to introduce into the organic law of the nation a salutary provision of the State Constitution of California.

An appropriation bill carrying a number of items must be approved or vetoed by the President as a whole. He cannot veto items which he disapproves and approve others to which he has no objection. He must accept all or nothing. For example, Congress at every session passes a sundry civil bill carrying a multitude of items, all appropriating money. The whole bill cannot be vetoed without embarrassing many departments of the government and making it necessary to pass deficiency bills to legalize payments made ad interim without authority from Congress.

It is the same with river and harbor bills, public building bills, etc. The President cannot except to any single item. Hence each bill carries extravagant items, which the President cannot disapprove without cutting off the money supplies necessary to keep the government running. Mr. Curry proposes to correct this defect in the constitution by adding this provision to the second paragraph of Section 7 of Article I:

"If any bill presented to the President contain several items of appropriation of money, or contains several items of taxes, of duties, of imposts, of excises, or other items for raising revenue, he may object to one or more items, while approving other portions of the bill. In such case he shall append to the bill at the time of signing it a statement of the items to which he objects, and the reasons therefor, and the items so objected to shall not take effect unless passed over the President's veto, as hereinbefore provided. If Congress be in session, the President shall transmit to the House in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items so objected to shall be separately reconsidered in the same manner as bills which have been disapproved by the President."

Should this amendment be made a part of the constitution, it will put an end to the practice of log-rolling omnibus appropriation bills through Congress. It will knock out the pork barrel bills which have been prolific sources of scandal and extravagance, for it will give the President a chance to use the veto on each individual item which meets his disapproval; he will not be compelled to accept the bad with the good or kill good measures because bugs have been inserted in them.

Mr. Curry is showing the qualities of a good legislator. His boldness in tackling the pork barrel evil merits commendation. But it will hardly find favor with Congress, for Congress has never been willing to reform itself. The pork barrel and the franking privilege are pet grafts to which Congress has clung with desperate pertinacity.

The editor of the Richmond Record-Herald is either a man of observation or experience—we don't know which. He says booze and gasoline are a fierce combination, and adds that the only ingredient that can make it worse is calico. Nay, nay, brother; it is silk in the tonneau that makes the road sizzle. Calico usually has to jump for its life to keep out of the way.

With the tariff smashers at Washington hammering on one end and the protectors of the poor at Sacramento mauling on the other, California industries bid fair to have the life knocked out of them. It is both ends against the middle and no help in sight.

PRISON POETRY AND PROSE

Back of the gray walls and barred windows of prisons and reformatories the thoughts of prisoners often find expression in print. There are weekly newspapers printed, edited, written by prison inmates and they contain flashes of remorse, of sorrow, of grim wit, even of brightness and joy. They show that the man behind the bars is a most human creature.

Prison is a sad place. There's plenty of time for reflection and remorse: I sometimes think I'd rather be forgot Than be remembered by the things I've done; I've often wished my name were but a blot On mortal scrolls of battles lost or won. Or rather still, I'd like to be a child As innocent as in those other days When from stern duty's path I was beguiled. Here I had reached the parting of the ways. But still I see the folly of my fears, For something seems to say: "Tis not too late. For to whatever port the pilot steers, He may return. It is not left to Fate." Are you surprised that verse grows in the prison? Remember the days and weeks of cell life, the long nights, the age long Sundays, the memories of other days. Prison papers carry the deep undertone of remorse, but not all prison verse is gloomy. Some is cheerful, reminiscent of fairer days:

Do of no'rt wind again de cabin door—
Crashes!
Possum's in de pot, an' de sweet yam's in de ashes!
Fitch o' bacon in de pan—Lawdy, hear 't cryin'!
Hain't no sort o' music dat's near so satisfyin'!
Corn pone am not an' brown—pickanin-nies sighin'!
Whoo-who, how de wind de blow!

But all the philosophy is not confined to poetry. Prose has its share of contributory. Bear in mind that the prisoner has plenty of time to ponder on the frailties of human beings, including himself. Let me pick the following from a column of comments entitled "Pen Points": Many a rolling stone stops here. Some men who jump at conclusions land in here. One satisfaction our folks now have is the fact that they know where we are nights. The way to make money following the ponies is with both hands on the plow handles. —O. F. Lewis in the New York Sun.

WORLD IDEAS OF MODESTY

The variations in what modesty permits and requires constitute an interesting study. The Hereroes of South Africa insist that women keep their heads covered. As to what else they wear they aren't so particular. A German explorer found that a Herero lady didn't mind posing for a photograph with nothing much on except the head cloth. But she was terribly shocked at the idea of removing that.

It is the style among the Yakuts to wear nothing above the waist. But they consider bare feet immodest. Missionaries in China have written home asking that churches that send them boxes omit picture books showing persons barefooted. In China the exposure of the foot is deolite.

On the Uganda Railroad, near Lake Victoria, under the equator, Sir Harry Johnston found a tribe who considered clothing quite superfluous. The members wore ornaments, but nothing else. But they were regarded as "the most moral people in Uganda." Near them lived a tribe, the Baganda, who were exceedingly particular as to their clothing. But they had an unsavory reputation as to morals.

In Japan, until recent years, hot baths were taken by everybody in public. What no one could help, everybody was expected to ignore. But Japanese women who would bathe in public with no embarrassment were shocked at the dress which European women wore at evening parties.

It may be noticed that while we are shocked at the idea of promiscuous bathing by the Japanese, our ancestors did the same thing well into modern times. Church councils were repeatedly condemning the practice, but it did not disappear from Europe until 300 or 400 years ago.

Conventions on such subjects change from generation to generation. Dion Boucicault told Justin McCarthy that in his young days actresses were exceedingly proper in their dress, and that the abbreviated skirts and tights of a modern musical comedy would not have been tolerated. But they were given lines of a vulgarity that no modern audience in a respectable theater would countenance. The movement has been toward greater latitude in dress, but stricter propriety in speech.—Kansas City Star.

ANIMALS THAT COUNT

Nearly every one has seen trained animals that "count," or at least give the impression that they can count. Most of these are performed by signals the trainer makes which are understood by the animals. The gesture of the hand, the wave of the foot, the stamping of the foot, and various other signals will change a horse or other animal to pick out the number wanted, or stop "counting" at a given number, the counting being done by taps of the hoof.

But there are untrained animals that can count, and not up to the ordinary 6 or 20 numbers that about limit their ability in shows. Rather they can count to 50 or 100.

In some of the mines of Hainault horses are used to haul loads of ore over a little roadway and back by another route, as the tunnels are narrow. Thirty such trips constitute a day's work for the horse, and without a word from drivers these horses will start for the great incline that leads to their stable at the end of the 30th trip. In fact, many of the drivers do not keep account of the trips at all, knowing the horse will do so, and when at the end of the 30th trip the horses wheel suddenly and make for the outlet, these drivers have to jump and loosen the catches that hold the tugs to the little cars.

But even this is beaten by oxen. The stupid ox has become a well-known phrase the world over, and yet, according to Montague, the oxen employed in the great gardens of Suzo, to turn the wheels water pails are actually refused to do more than 100 rounds, as that was their day's work.

This work consisted in having the oxen travel in a circle, keeping the water-drawing wheel in motion, and without fail, on the hundredth trip around the circle the oxen would stop.

Nor could they be urged to make another round.

It is said that wild apes can count to four, and in order to hunt them at least five hunters go out and four leave the place in a manner that will attract the apes. After the fourth hunter has gone the apes will come out and are thus secured, but they will never go out from their cover until four hunters have been seen leaving the place. The same is also claimed by naturalists of rooks and magpies.—Tid-Bits.

AN ANCIENT COFFIN

There is an Inuit shrine in the town of Oksu, Barak prefecture, in the compound of which some building operations are going on. The laborers engaged in leveling the ground were digging the other day when they uncovered a large stone coffin.

The news was immediately communicated to the chief priest, who sent for the head man of the village. In his presence the cover of the stone coffin was taken off, and inside were found many gold rings and other treasures, such as kuletama, magatama and other ancient vessels. Judging from the construction of the coffin, it is 1500 years old. News of the discovery was forwarded to the local government office, and an official was sent to examine the articles found.

The shrine itself is a very ancient one, and in it Kutsine-tama-no-mikoto is dedicated to the gods. It was for a while removed from the village by the command of Mikasumi, Tokugawa, Lord of Mito, but in 1702 it was taken back to its former site. Some earth was taken from the compound of Kyoto, and placed under the main building of the shrine with formal ceremony. Since then it had been customary for the Daijyo of Mito to bear the expense for repairs to the shrine, and one of his retainers was always sent as a special messenger at festival times.—Japan Weekly Chronicle.

ELECTRIC GEAR SHIFTS VERY LATEST

1914 Models of the S. G.
V. Cars Arrive in San Francisco

Causing more comment, probably, than any other device yet attached to a motor car is the new system of automatically operating the gear shifts by electricity as is adopted on the new series of the S. G. V. cars which have just been received in San Francisco by the E. Stewart Automobile Company.

The new models, adopting this unique electric gear shift idea, which have just arrived, are known as the model P four-cylinder "36," developing 43 horsepower, and the model T six-cylinder "48" developing 60 horsepower. Both are of 1914 design and are electrically equipped from the gear shift to the lights and starter.

Frank F. Weston, sales manager for the S. G. V. factory at Reading, Pa., arrived in San Francisco in time to assist E. Stewart, head of the San Francisco house in demonstrating the electric arrangements on the new S. G. V. cars. Weston is very much pleased with the success of the new gear shift arrangement.

The S. G. V. cars are made in Reading, Pa., and up to the present time the cars are only sold in the larger cities, on account of the demand for them in New York and other Eastern centers. E. Stewart, secured the representation of the S. G. V.'s about two years ago for the San Francisco territory and on account of the demand for them in New York and other Eastern centers. E. Stewart, secured the representation of the S. G. V.'s about two years ago for the San Francisco territory and on account of the demand for them in New York and other Eastern centers.

"The new series of S. G. V. cars, which permit the elimination of the usual gear shifting lever. The operation of this device is accomplished by a system of buttons located on the spoke of the steering wheel, which are marked denoting the different speeds, as first, second, third, fourth, neutral and reverse, so that in operating this device it is only necessary to press the button corresponding to the speed it is desired to use.

"The method of this control is a system of electric magnets. There are five of these, one for each forward speed and one for reverse. Two switches are interposed in the line between the battery or generator and the electric magnet, first the one on the steering wheel corresponding to the speed desired, and second a switch automatically interconnected with the clutch pedal. This second switch performs the final operation of shifting the gears by applying the current to the electro magnet selected by the button on the steering wheel when the clutch is thrown. The shift is made instantly.

"These steering wheel buttons are so arranged that no two can be depressed at one time, exactly similar to the operation of the automatic button telephone. The combination of these two switches in the circuit makes it possible for the driver, when operating at third speed, in congested traffic to have the button for second speed depressed and be in a position to immediately drop back to this speed by throwing the clutch pedal. If, however, he changes his mind and desires to go into fourth, it is only necessary to depress the fourth speed button when the second speed button, already depressed automatically, flies back into its natural position. The mechanical interlocking of the clutch pedal lever with the gear box is such that the gears are always in a neutral position before the electrical contact is made, thus making it impossible to clash or strip a gear.

"This device permits the gas car to be operated with the ease and simplicity of the ordinary electric, and can be handled by a lady with more comfort, safety and pleasure than any other possible method in driving automobiles.

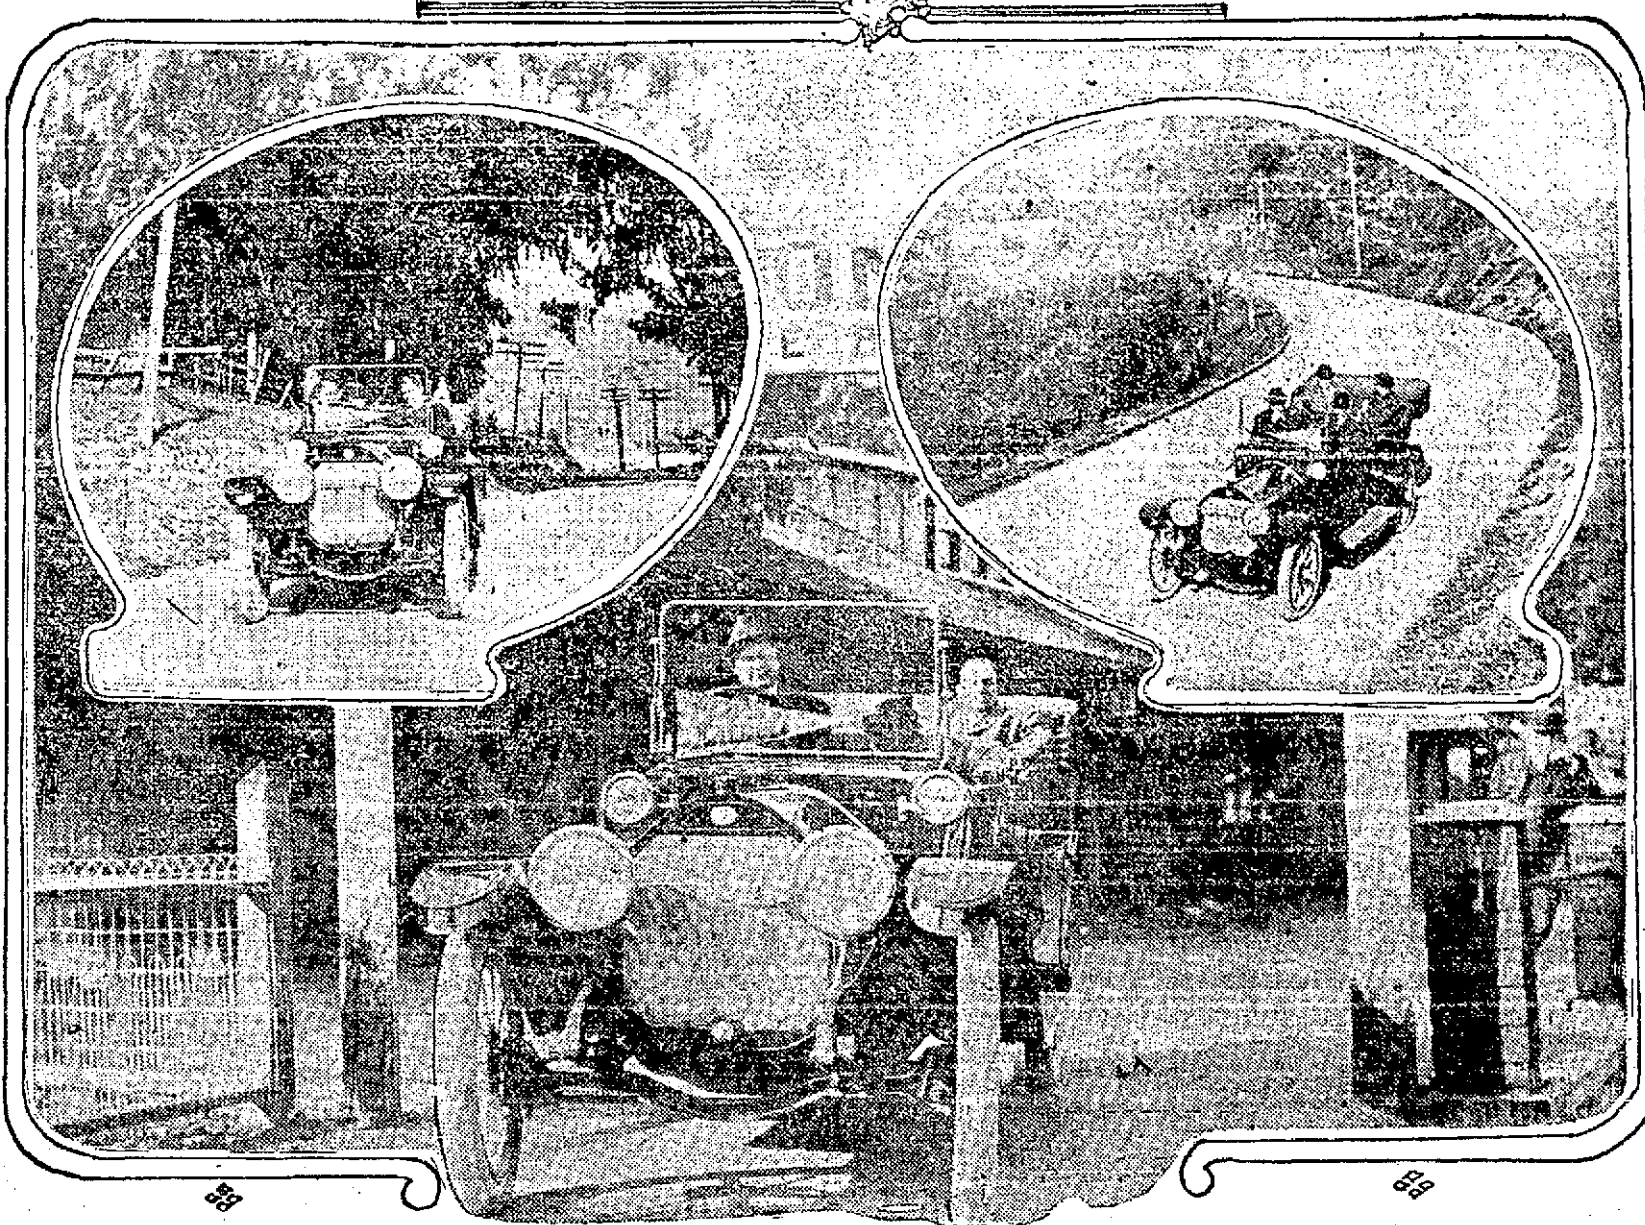

"A starting crank and gear shift lever are furnished with the car, so that if desired you can operate it in the usual manner.

ELECTRIC STARTER AND LIGHTER.
The S. G. V. car is equipped with the U. S. L. electric starter and lighter, the principle of which is that of converting the usual fly wheel into a motor generator, so that it shall become at once a motor for starting the engine and a generator for making electric current continuously, as the car is in service. As a starting system, it is made an integral part of the machine itself, the regulation cast iron fly wheel having been replaced by the cast iron of a special motor generator or dynamo. This revolves in the same manner as a fly wheel and in every way serves the capacity of a balance wheel. Upon the simple pressure of the foot button, operating through a switch box installed directly under the floor of the car, this converted fly wheel at once starts to revolve the engine at a speed of about 250 revolutions per minute, drawing its energy from the 24-volt storage battery, thus the engine is turning over with a gradual, smooth, noiseless continuous torque and not subject to any destructive strains or jerks on the crank shaft or connecting rods. There is not an additional moving part in operation, no gears, chains, sprockets, clutches or additional bearings requiring lubrication or adjustment, and as a starting motor it has sufficient power to drive the S. G. V. as an electric car, and has no moving parts without any explosions having taken place in the gasoline motor.

"As a lighting system, it is a complete electric plant, furnishing an unlimited supply of current for all lamps needed, thus eliminating the necessity for having a separate dynamo for lighting plant on the car.

"This conversion from starter to generator takes place automatically when the engine, having begun to operate under its own power, reaches about 300 revolutions per minute, thus recharging very rapidly the 24-volt battery and insuring an unlimited supply of electric current for all lamps needed for operation of the electric magnetic gear shift. The current supplied is so ample that the battery is maintained fully charged and current is furnished directly from the generator for lights and magnetic gear shifts."

KISSEL KAR RECORDS.

A New York owner of a 60-horsepower six-cylinder Kissel Kar reports to Manager C. H. McCauland, the remarkable fact that he has driven his car 15,000 miles with no mechanical trouble that his chauffeur could not repair. The car has consumed a gallon of gasoline to each ten miles of service, which he considers a great record for a motor of high power and large bore. He points out that he has traveled cross-country in Connecticut, Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey without finding a hill which his car would not take without changing gears.

NEW POPE-HARTFORD CATALOGUE ARRIVES

One of the cleverest catalogues to reach this city this season is the one just issued by the Pope Manufacturing Company, maker of the famous Pope-Hartford cars. The new book which deals in detail on all the Pope models is from a typographical standpoint, a work of art, and the illustrations are in harmony with the Pope car itself. Taking the book, all in all, it is a very interesting piece of work.

Forty-three new members have been added to the Toronto (Can.) Motorcycle Club within a month.

KELLY TRUCK STANDS HARDEST KIND OF TEST

The Providence public market of Providence, R. I., has had a three-ton Kelly truck in its service for three years. This truck during the Newport season is used to haul the produce from the market to the ships. It has a day shipping food-stuffs from Providence to Newport. Two sets of chauffeurs are always used during the rush season.

In this way the Kelly has covered two or three hundred miles a day steadily over a long period, and it has in no way impaired the efficiency of the truck. The Providence public market is the largest institution of its kind in the country and its endorsement of the Kelly carries great weight with it.

A new motorcycle club has been organized at Bayonne, N. J.

Equipped With United States Tires

THERE is no other car in the market that we could take greater satisfaction in showing you. There is no other car in the Paige price field—or ANYWHERE NEAR IT—in which we could feel such pride.

This is a remarkable car, this Paige "36." Remarkable in SEVERAL ways. It is just as extraordinary in its design and its workmanship and its splendid materials as it is in its equipment. And Paige "36" equipment is something the whole public is talking about.

Think, for instance, of a $1390 car equipped with the famous Gray & Davis Electric Starting and Lighting System. The same system that some of the very best high-priced cars are featuring.

The Paige "36" chassis was designed for this starting and lighting system. The equipment is a PART OF THE CAR.

Paige "36" offers you Bosch magneto, ventilating windshield (built into body), silk mohair top (tan lined), top boot and curtains, Stewart revolving dial speedometer, 12-inch electric headlights, electric side and tail lights, five demountable rims, robe and foot rails, tire irons, license brackets, horn, pump, tools, jack. Everything is COMPLETE. Heavy nickel trimmings throughout.

Try to match Paige "36" equipment if you can.

Sincerity Is Built Right Into the HAYNES America's First Car

LOOKING at it from your view point, in choosing your car you will consider several things, which are more important to you than the size of a manufacturer's factory, or how many thousands of cars he builds, or how many talking points he may have in equipment.

The Haynes factory (new plant built and completely equipped in 1911) has been called by authorities "one of the most efficient plants in the world." The Haynes output is large enough to earn minimum costs on parts and materials—not so large as to make Haynes cars common. Haynes equipment leaves nothing to be asked for.

But Haynes Sincerity means more to you than these things mean.

Haynes sincerity is possible only in such an organization as this, where the original builder of the original Haynes of 1893 still is, and through all these years has been at the head of the same organization; where the skilled machinists have grown up in the plant, inspired always by the Haynes spirit; where the same designing engineer has for many years worked out the logical development of the motor car; where every workman's wage is paid by the week and not by the piece; where for nearly a generation the business policy has been dictated by honesty of purpose and earnestness of effort.

No other car at a medium price can offer you such sincerity. Those who own Haynes cars know the tangible money value of this sincerity. You, too, can find in it an assurance of dependable service, comfort, safety and economy.

KRIT CAR MAKER VISITS OAKLAND

President Lawrence Moore is Highly Pleased With Prospects.

After personally going into every detail for conducting a progressive campaign having as its object making the Krit car as popular on the coast as it is at present in the middle west and eastern states, Lawrence Moore, president of the Krit Motor Car Company of Detroit, left this city yesterday for the northwest, en route to the Detroit factory.

Moore and Coast Representative Warren, with C. F. Orra, the newly appointed representative for the Krit line in this territory, have been in close conference for several days and as the result Orra starts at once on the work of developing the Krit car in the territory of Northern California and the Hawaiian Islands.

Moore has been on the coast for the past three weeks, most of which time he spent in Los Angeles with the Krit representative for Southern California. He is enthusiastic over the outlook for the motor car trade on the coast and intends to develop it to the limit. While here he made all arrangements for the establishment of a parts service department with a complete representation associated with Orra.

"The Krit car has made wonderful progress wherever we have secured a foothold," said Moore before leaving. "We are now the second largest exporters of automobiles in the United States."

"Geo. A. Crittenden, of the Krit Motor Car Company, recently returned from an extensive European trip made in the interests of his organization. Mr. Crittenden, a keen observer, has many interesting things to report, among which were significant comments on the condition of the automobile industry in England."

"The American-made low and medium priced car, Crittenden says, has become a fixture in England, and he believes that owing to their peculiar manufacturing methods the United States will export more and more of these types of cars each year."

"Having the beautiful roads and practically no speed limit, cars must be built and designed to stand under the vibration caused by speed driving, whereas a car to be successful in the United States must be built principally to withstand great road shocks. A car designed and built to meet the combination of these demands is certainly an ideal one."

"The buying seasons in England are more pronounced than they were a few years ago, which I believe is due to the announcements of reasonable models by American manufacturers; and as soon as we do away with having any special time of the year in which to add the improvements English buyers will take as many more in the winter than they do now in the spring."

"Their selling methods are very interesting. It would be practically impossible to follow up a prospect either by correspondence or personally and ever sell his car. The Englishman must be left alone until he calls at the dealer's place of business and if he cares for a demonstration he will ask for one. If he does not buy during his first call, the dealer must wait until he either calls again or writes a note asking the dealer to call on him, and if he is bothered by the dealer, either personally or by correspondence in the meantime, the sale is surely lost."

"Although the Krit has been on the English market for two years it has met with wonderful success. The only worry of the London distributors is to get cars enough to supply the increasing demand."

TRACTOR PROVED PULLING POWERS

Fifteen Tons Over Eight Per Cent Grade Easily Handled.

That the Knox-Martin tractor could pull three trucks with a paying load of fifteen tons up an 8 per cent grade was the fact recently made by Charles R. Culver, sales manager of the Knox Automobile Company, with C. H. Martin, the inventor, says Samuel M. Crim, the head of the Reliance Automobile Company.

"While Martin had no doubt of the tractor's ability to perform the huge task under normal conditions, he was skeptical of the outcome on the day on which the test was made, as the streets were in a very slippery condition from recent storms."

"With F. W. Clark, superintendent of streets of Springfield, Mass., as referee, the bet was pulled off on State street hill, which has a grade of 8 per cent and is one-third of a mile long."

"The tractor, which is recently named aptly nicknamed 'The tugboat of land commerce,' hauled, in addition to its own trailer body, loaded with scrap iron, a larger steel hopper truck full of stone, and behind that a heavy six-ton motor truck. The paying load was sixteen tons and the total load, including the weight of the vehicles, over 25 tons."

"In spite of the slippery road surface, the tractor negotiated the hill readily and steadily hauled its immense burden to the top without the slightest difficulty. In fact, the driver afterwards testified that he only had the throttle half open most of the way."

"The actual load over the driving wheels of the tractor was less than four tons and the demonstration was very conclusive, therefore, in proving that one-fourth of the total load is sufficient to secure ample traction on hills, even under adverse road conditions."

TIRES ARE IMPORTANT FACTORS WITH TRUCKS

"That the tire plays a most important part in the actual worth of the truck or delivery vehicle, is the contention of the majority of truck owners who have kept tabs on their truck expenses," says Howard Holmes, of the Holmes & Olson Firestone Tire house.

"If your tires fail to protect the truck from the bumps of travel, if they allow grinding weight of the truck and load to be carried entirely by the chassis and springs, expense and repairs must be necessarily pile up."

"There was a time when motor trucks were of light weight and were for light duty only. But all that has changed. Trucks have become heavier and their loads enormous. A motor tire, such as was made several years ago, would grind away and shred to nothing in a short time. It couldn't stand the burn of friction, nor the crushing weight of the load."

Olson says, however, that the modern motor truck is a different matter.

SIXTEEN CHALMERS CARS TO ONE FIRM

Manager Bunn of the Sacramento Agency Makes Record Sale.

Service in the automobile business, like in any other commercial proposition, counts. This was most forcibly illustrated in a sale made by R. D. Bunn, manager of the Pioneer Automobile Company of Sacramento. Bunn made a record sale of a Chalmers car in the capital city on April 3 which will stand as a record for some time to come. He sold to the Pioneer Fruit Company with headquarters at Sacramento and of which ex-Senator Ellis is president, sixteen Chalmers cars of different power and model. Some of these are to be used by the salesmen of the company, while the remaining six will be used by the directors and other stockholders. The cars will see service in all sections of the state following up the interest of the company. The greater majority, however, will be used north of Tehachap.

The sale of the sixteen Chalmers cars is the direct result of service. In 1911 Bixbee of Newcastle purchased a Chalmers of that year. He has used it continuously and was so well pleased with its performance that his report on the same was the direct cause of the directors of the company deciding in favor of the Chalmers car. They figured that if a 1911 car could perform so well and so satisfactorily that a car two years later must be more refined and able to give even a little better service.

Dinn, the Sacramento agent, is entered in the contest now going on among the Chalmers salesmen in the different parts of the country. He has been in third place close up to the leader and with the sale of the sixteen cars and others that he has recently made will unquestionably make him a keen contender for first place.

WORLD REMODELED BY AUTOMOBILE

Henry L. Hornberger of Oakland Car Tells of Joys of Machine.

"The motor car is remodeling the civilized world," says Henry L. Hornberger, manager of the Oakland Motor Car Company.

"The change is so swift, silent and forcible that it is hypnotizing mankind. The ideas, habit and conventionality of yesterday have been revamped over night. Somewhere has given away to a cheerfulness that is almost beyond conception. There is a buoyancy in every thought and action that would be impossible ten years ago."

"It is most strikingly seen in the dress of today, the brightness of costume of both man and woman and a riot of colors seems popular. The costume of today would have been thought somewhat bizarre a few years ago. Accepting this condition as the result of the existence of the motor car one looks around for the cause and why it should change man's ideas and habits."

"Take the motor car out for a day's spin through the country and see what the result is upon the mind and body. Consider that the day is being made by a business man who for six days during the week has plodded and worked and worried over business, living within the stifled confines of brick walls, breathing smoke polluted atmosphere."

"Once in the open the paroled mind jumps with joy at the sight of the green fields and the perfume of the sweet-scented flower-laden air. If it be spring time, as of today, the mind is made glad at the sight of the yellow, blue and purple of the lupin, the golden poppy, the scarlet of the Indian Paint Brush, the magenta of the periwinkle, the pure white of the wild strawberry blossoms are harmoniously blended by the master hand of the Great Artist. It makes one stand, figuratively speaking, in awe and admiration."

"This admiration of nature's handiwork is through the power of suggestion, reflected in the dress of today."

"While man has not been so reckless in this respect, although he has cast sedateness to the fore winds, it is, however, in woman's costume that the mirror is held up to nature."

"Ten years ago it was harmonious coloring that was the fashion. Today is contrast and a duplication of the color of these wild flowers mentioned that is popular."

"It is not only here that this evolution is to be seen. Consider the motor car as the conveyance of today and the horse-drawn equipage of yesterday. Yesterday black and the most somber colors prevailed, but today changes as exemplified in the Oakland product show the change. Consider the Oakland limousine, landaulet, coupe and touring car. There has been a brightening of the painters' finish, while these colors are more striking yet they are secondary and act as a foil to the dress of these the car carries."

"While it may be claimed that the motor car has made man think, live and work on the high speed pressure, burning up his energy and thereby shortening his days, yet it must be acknowledged that while taking him out into the open country through the flower-laden fields, through the pine-scented forest, across the lowlands and over the highlands, it has given him pleasure that more than offsets the hastening of the journey to tomorrow. The motor car has really made life worth living."

teen and others that he has recently made will unquestionably make him a keen contender for first place.

TRUCK COMPANY SECURES MANY PROMINENT MEN

Several men prominent in the motor truck industry have been added to the forces of the Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company of Springfield, Ohio, recently.

James Joyce formerly general manager of the Selden Motor Vehicle Company of Rochester, N. Y., has been appointed manager of the Kelly Philadelphia branch. A new showroom and service station is being built on Twenty-second street, near Race street, in Philadelphia, by the Kelly Company.

D. C. Hathaway, formerly sales manager of the Dayton Auto Truck Company of Dayton, Ohio, has been appointed manager of the Kelly Cleveland branch.

W. C. Prickett, formerly district manager for the Randolph Motor Company, will assist Mr. Hathaway at the Cleveland branch.

W. S. Jewell, formerly district sales manager of the R. C. H., has been appointed sales manager of the Kelly Boston branch, in the Shoe and Leather building, Cambridge.

PEERLESS DEALER HOME FROM VISIT

Harrison, Back From Factory Conference, Tells About Conditions.

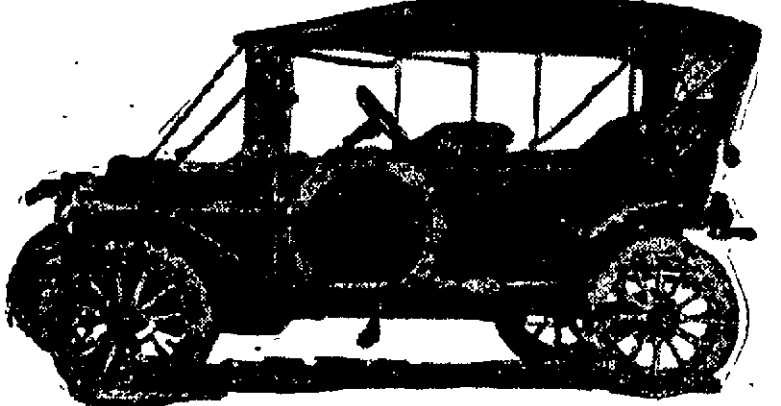

H. O. Harrison, the head of the H. O. Harrison Company, returned yesterday from the Peerless factory where he went to attend a sales conference of the leading agents of the United States. Harrison spent a week at the Peerless factory and returned full of enthusiasm over the line.

He heard addresses by the heads of the Peerless Company and was also called upon to tell of the wonders of California from an automobile standpoint as well as conditions generally. One of the purposes of the conference was to hear reports from

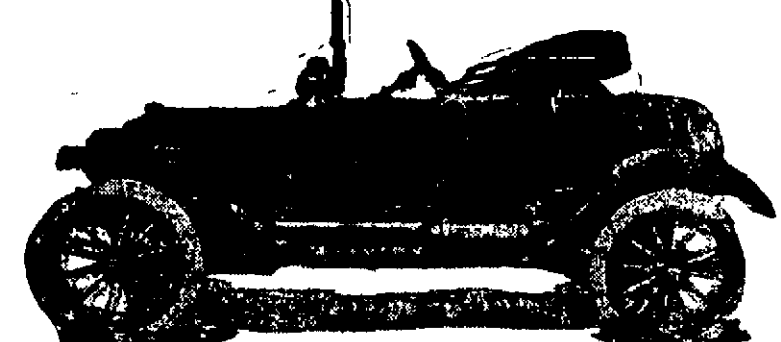

The Krit Motor Car Company of Detroit, Michigan, announces the appointment of C. F. Orra as the distributor for the famous, low-priced line of K-R-I-T motor cars in the territory of Northern California and the Hawaiian Islands. J. E. Warren, Pacific Coast manager of the K-R-I-T motor car, will make his headquarters with Mr. Orra, and a parts depot and service department will be maintained.

Price and Quality
In designing the K-R-I-T it has constantly been the aim to build a car of low price to meet every requirement of power, speed and comfort. In constructing a car to be efficient and durable, quality of the material is the first consideration by the K-R-I-T factory, and the prices paid for such material finally proves to be an investment yielding interest, because the K-R-I-T lasts much longer and requires fewer repairs.

NO TROUBLE FOR WOMEN TO DRIVE

Self-starters and Also Tire Service Stations Solve Difficulties.

"A few years back, whenever one saw a woman driving a motor car, they stopped and gazed in wonder at the driver, but now you can see woman operators in every city where you find automobiles."

"The reason for this is that the starting devices for motor cars have become so perfected, that the woman driver does not need to worry about having to crank her machine, which she would have to do at a great inconvenience if the self-starter had not made its appearance."

"The next thought of the woman driver was, what if I should have tire trouble, such as punctures, etc., what would I do; it would be impossible for me to remedy the trouble myself, as it would mean the ruining of my clothes and the putting me at a great inconvenience."

"Now, the question is answered by the factory branch service station such as the Fisk Rubber Company maintains. The women operators can drive to the service department or garage, have the tire trouble fixed, have the tires inflated with the proper pressure or even have them changed without leaving the seat of her car."

"The starting device and the Tire Company's service department have done much to make it possible for women to drive motor cars."

all sections of the United States and Europe on the conditions of the high class car trade.

"It was remarkable the spirit displayed," said Harrison. "There was not a man there who did not honestly expect to do a much larger business with the Peerless line this coming season than in the past year. The number of advance orders at the factory took care of the entire output for the next year and we were assured that there was nothing that could possibly make a motor car better from every standpoint that will not be found in the Peerless."

The Irrigation Department of Egypt is making use of motorcycles in its work. The department finds that its work can be almost doubled at a less cost than by using horses.

SHOW MONOPOLY OF EAST IS GUARDED

Sales Manager Says New York "Pre-motors" Are Against 1915 Show.

Considerable light on the reason for the formal dismissal of the plan to hold a gigantic automobile show during the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco is contained in a letter from E. F. Jacobs, Western sales manager of the Pathfinder "40," who is in the East urging a big shipment of Pathfinder cars to dealers on the coast.

"From what I hear," writes Jacobs, "the Easterners are not over-anxious to have the West snatch the glory of holding the first consolidated motor car exhibit away from the pre-motors in New York. The New Yorkers are extremely jealous of any effort to detract from the glory of the annual autofest in the Little Old Town."

"When the question of a Pacific Coast exhibition came up and forced the attention of the N. A. A. M., a circular letter was sent out to manufacturers asking their views on the question and how much space would be taken by each in even the building plan was successfully promoted."

"A number of Indian companies, including the K-R-I-T, Stutz and National, guaranteed their support of the project. However, the only official statement from headquarters was to the effect that the proposition had been turned down. Statements from any Eastern auto concerns show that the idea is a popular one and if properly followed up would result in the biggest exposition of motor cars the world has ever seen. It appears to me that the clique of New Yorkers is only too glad to see the matter quietly dropped for all time."

KISSEL CAR PRODUCTION.

President George A. Kissel of the Kissel Motor Car Company has confided to a reporter of THE TRIBUNE some highly interesting figures regarding the output of Kissel Cars since the company's organization in 1906. In the first year of its corporate existence, the company put out 200 pleasure cars, the second year, 550. In 1908 the number was 1,250, in 1909 to 1,100, in 1910 to 1,500 and in 1911 to 1,700. Last year 2,200 pleasure vehicles were built, and the number this year will easily reach 4,000. The first commercial car was turned out in 1910, and the output in 1912 was 400, with the schedule for 1913 nearly doubled.

Power and Endurance

During the three years the K-R-I-T has been on the market it has made a record for power and endurance, of which thousands of K-R-I-T owners will testify. We lack space to give a complete list of the many cars which the K-R-I-T has been and is being used by, but we will give a brief mention of the wonderful list of K-R-I-T records.

Model "KT" Touring Car

In the Model "KT" five passenger touring car, as in the other K-R-I-T models, the cost of production has not been lavished upon uncalculated for luxuries, but on essentials which compose the fundamental parts of a good car. No freak ideas have a place in its make-up and it represents the greatest value possible to embody in a car. Elegance and harmony are manifested in every line of the body, and its finish compares favorably with many cars costing double the price. The rear seat is wide and roomy, with ample accommodations for three people.

Comfort and easy riding are the requisites of touring car. Easy riding is a question of proper distribution of weight which is also the result of correct design—and proper spring suspension. The Model "KT," with its ample wheel base and full elliptical vanadium steel springs, has these easy riding qualities and the power equipment which makes all roads possible.

The drop-frame permits carrying the weight close to the ground, thus minimizing the danger of skidding and turning turtle, and gives that long, low appearance so much desired in up-to-date construction. The K-R-I-T touring car is easy of control, with comfortable room on the footboard, which makes driving pleasant and easy—no cramping or crowding, no muscle straining, nerve-racking efforts are required to operate the car.

Model "KR" Roadster

This is a model which, for service and convenience, demands the attention of every one interested in a two-passenger car. It has plenty of power to meet every demand, it is easily handled in crowded traffic and with plenty of speed and power on the hills and in the heavy pulling a car well suited to the professional and business men who desire to cover considerable distance each day.

The seat is very wide, deep, and high at the back. It is almost in the center of the chassis, making the car exceptionally easy riding and distributing the weight to the best advantage. The windshield filler board is a part of the body, thus eliminating those objectionable squeaks and rattles and is so constructed that no stay rods are required for the windshield.

A tank at the rear provides a capacity for 25 gallons. Other controls are the inside controls, demountable rims with spare rim, rear tire holders, adjustable for one or two tires, and a large trunk with capacity for two suit cases.

Model "KD" Covered Delivery

In answer to many and repeated demands and in order to supply K-R-I-T dealers with a complete line, we offer the Model "KD" Covered Delivery Car.

The chassis is the same as that of the Model "KT" touring car and "KR" roadster, and the equipment includes three oil lamps, two gas lamps, Prest-O-Lite tank, mohair top with side curtains and top cover, windshield, horn, demountable rims with spare rim, rear tire holders, adjustable for one or two tires, spare rim, tire holders, windshield, tool kit with jack and tire repair outfit with pump.

The metal body used on this model not only lessens the weight of the car, but provides those necessary qualities of strength and durability. The doors in the rear are of full size, with large windows giving plenty of light.

The loading space is exceptionally large, being 51 inches long in back of driver's seat, 45 inches wide and 52 inches high.

AUTOMOBILE IS MONEY-MAKER TO FARMER

Healdsburg Man States How He Uses Buick to Advantage

"We hear a great deal from time to time regarding the enormous amount of money that the farmer is wasting on automobiles," says G. H. McCutcheon, head of the Howard Automobile Company's Buick interests in Oakland. "That this talk is worse than nonsense will be evident to anyone who gives the matter the slightest consideration. In the first place there is not a class of people who can better afford an automobile or who can run one more economically than the farmer."

"He has been used to machinery all of his life and the mere fact that he has succeeded to a point where he can spend thousands of dollars or more for an automobile proves conclusively that he understands and can successfully operate the machinery employed in the running of his farm and the same care and attention that will keep a mower, a self-binder or a cultivator running will insure uninterrupted service in an automobile provided it is properly designed and constructed. When one who is not familiar with the existing conditions thinks of a farmer owning an automobile they are liable to decide that the only use he will make of it is for his own and his family's pleasure. This is absolutely not the case, however, and one has but to talk to a farmer owning a machine to find that the uses to which he puts it are practically unlimited."

"I was talking to a Buick owner last week who lives about eight miles out of Healdsburg, Sonoma county, and the profitable uses he puts his car to certainly opened my eyes. He stated that his farm consisted of 150 acres and that while fruit is his main crop his Buick enables him to make a good profit on a number of products which would be practically wasted were he forced to rely on the old horse and wagon method of transportation. He has several acres in alfalfa which he feeds to four cows and three horses. The cows produce more cream and butter than his family can use and before he bought his Buick it was a problem to know what to do with this surplus."

"He has about 100 chickens which cost him practically nothing to feed, as they consume the waste from the table as well as the grain and feed wasted by the stock, they lay more eggs than he can use, however, and under the old condition the eggs were allowed to accumulate for a week and were then taken to town and sold at whatever price could be gotten for them. He also has a garden in which he raises vegetables for his own use, but it produces more than can be consumed by his family. Formerly this surplus was a total loss. Now all of the oversupply is taken off and disposed of at a good margin of profit in the following manner: The cows are milked night and morning and the milk run through a separator to remove the cream. The eggs are gathered each evening and are packed for shipping at once. While gathering vegetables for the table is only a matter of a few minutes to gather a couple of sacks full for market. The surplus is sold at a profit."

"There will be a new Blue Streak tube added to the Goodyear line of motorcycle goods," says S. A. Falor, manager of the Motorcycle Tire Department, The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, O. "This tube has been made 20 per cent stronger than any tube used in regular tires before."

"This strength has been added to take care of the 1913 machines, which are being made heavier and faster. By combining Goodyear motorcycle tires and Blue Streak tubes, motorcyclists will get not only the service of the 20 per cent stronger and more enduring tubes, but also the lasting service and extra mileage of tires proved by hundreds of tests to be the most durable in existence."

"He disposes of his load and returns home in time to begin his regular work on the farm at 8 o'clock. He states that this is just one small item of benefit which he derives from his Buick, which is now three years old, and that if he were to make his trip with his team and wagon it would require at least half of his day and his horses would be too tired to work on the cultivator that afternoon."

"He also states that his experience with the automobile has been so satisfactory that he is now anxiously awaiting the perfection of the light gasoline tractor which will enable him to dispense with the use of horses entirely."

BRINGS COUNTRY NEARER CITY

Rapidity of Transportation an Important Aid to the Real Estate Business.

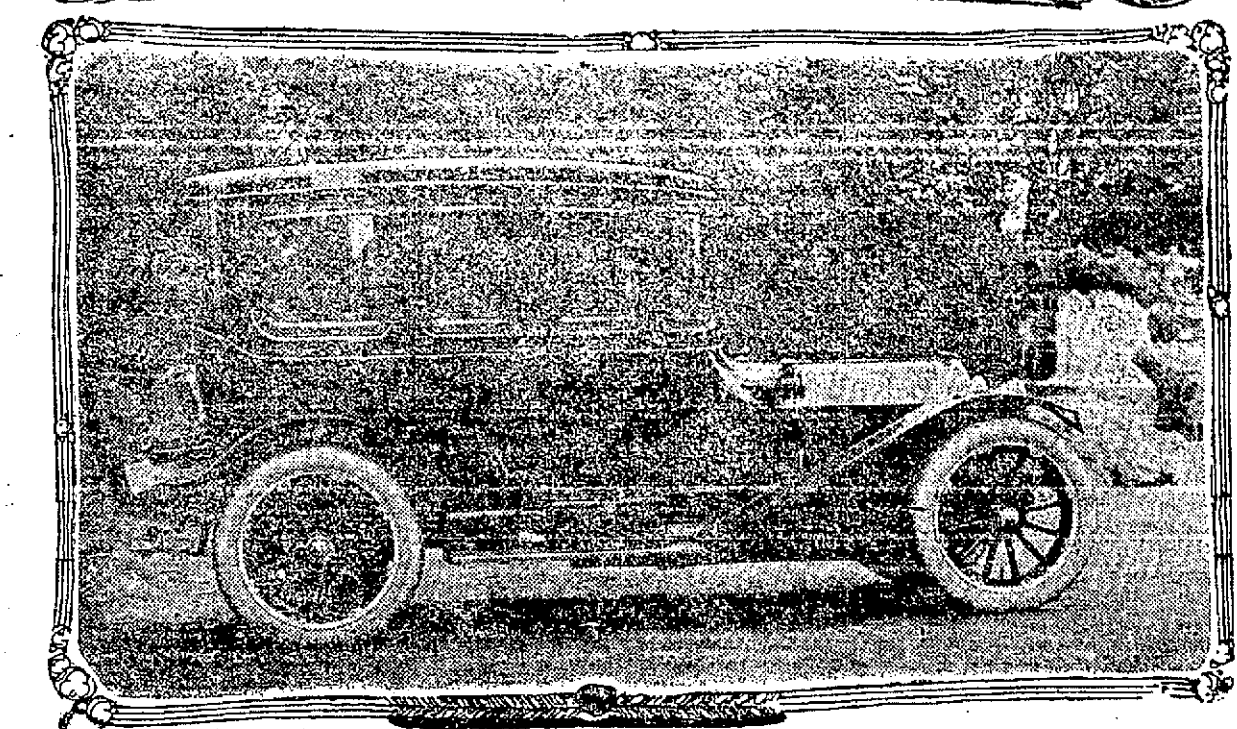

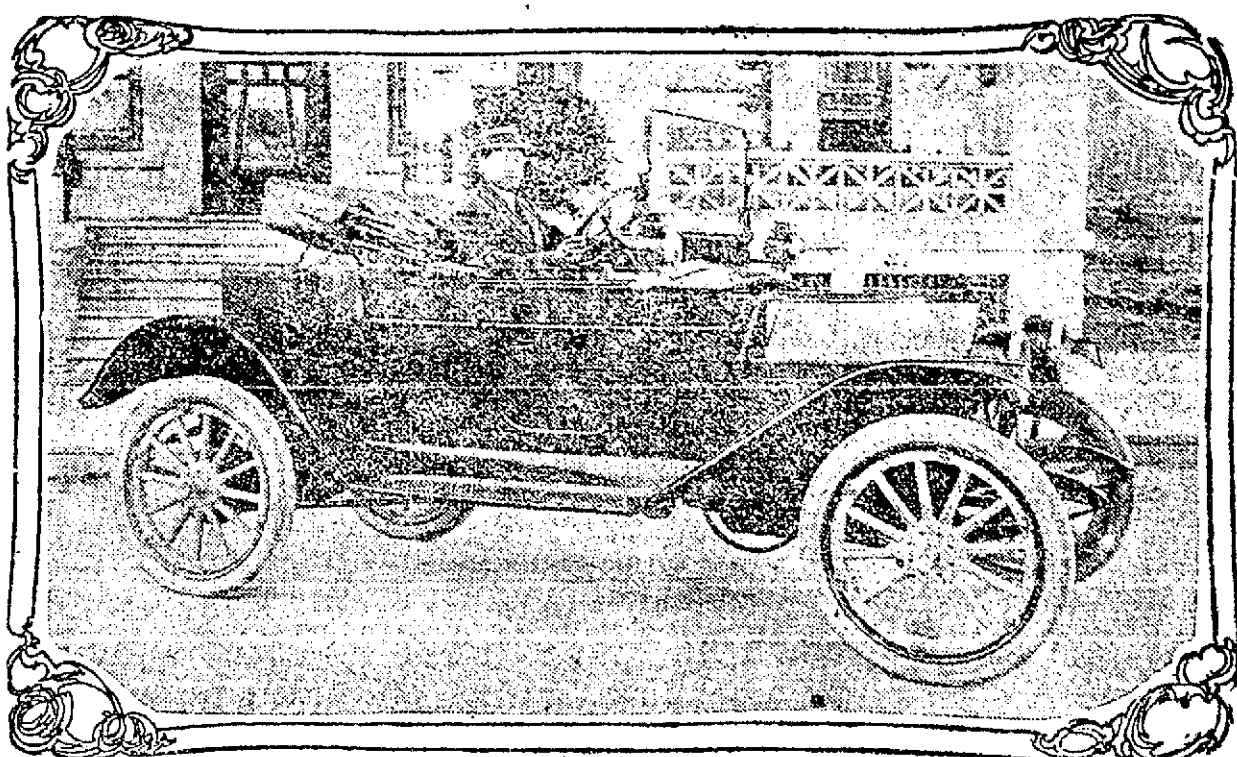

The utility of the automobile is particularly well exemplified in the real estate business, there being one firm in this city using six machines constantly. The T. N. Burgess Company, which is selling lands in the Mount Diablo country, are confronted with peculiar conditions. Their land holdings in this territory are so extensive that it would take several horses and buggy method.

As the situation is now handled, buyers are taken to Concord over the Oakland & Antioch Electric railway, where they are met by an automobile. Then they are taken through the Clayton, San Ramon and Moraga valleys. This trip covers from forty to sixty miles and includes the towns of Walnut Creek, Concord, Moraga and Lafayette. An early train is caught back to the city, this being made possible by the rapidity with which the ground can be covered by automobiles.

The automobile did yeoman service for the Burgess Company before the O. & A. was running. The firm's territory extends daily to the Mount Diablo country over the tunnel road. This road is closed at present while the steam shovel and gangs of men are putting it in the best condition. Thirty thousand dollars was voted by the Contra Costa supervisors for this work and when it is completed a magnificent boulevard from Oakland to the beginning of the mountain road now being pushed to the summit of Mount Diablo by the Burgess company.

The following machines are provided exclusively to the service mentioned above: Chalmers Six, Winton Six, three Standard-Daytons and one Standard-Dayton-Knight. In addition to these there are several machines in service which belong to officials and representatives of the company.

NEW BLUE STREAK TUBES ANNOUNCED

Motorcyclists Promised More Mileage by Goodyear Company.

"There will be a new Blue Streak tube added to the Goodyear line of motorcycle goods," says S. A. Falor, manager of the Motorcycle Tire Department, The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, O. "This tube has been made 20 per cent stronger than any tube used in regular tires before."

UPPER BROADWAY ROW TO BE INCREASED

A valuable addition to the upper Broadway automobile row will be made in the immediate future by the Gerard Investment Company, which is about to commence construction of three elaborate auto salesrooms at the southwest corner of Broadway and Orchard street.

Plans now being prepared by Rousseau & Rousseau, San Francisco architects, call for a modern one-story structure to cover all of 125 feet on Broadway. Plate glass windows and large skylights will supply a maximum of light. Cement floors and a wide rear drive, serving all three salesrooms, are expected to prove attractive features. The exterior of the building will be plaster finished with a liberal display of marble to lend added attractiveness to the front.

The structure will replace a number of signboards which have been standing for years, and is expected to be ready for occupancy early in June.

"MOVIES" OF MOTORCYCLE POLO

Motorcycle polo, the first game of which was played by the Kansas Short Grass Motorcycle Club, has created such widespread interest that pictures of the game will shortly be seen in a number of moving picture theaters. The Des Moines Motorcycle Club played the special game of motorcycle polo which was photographed by the Capitol City Film Company for use in the moving picture theaters.

PAYS BONUS FOR NEW PAIGE AUTO

Indianapolis Dealer Relates an Incident From Recent Motor Show.

The Indianapolis dealer of the Paige car had an interesting experience at the recent auto show in that city. A gentleman entered the room and showed a great deal of interest in the Paige "36," and after a thorough going over of the car, he was persuaded to place his order for one.

When the matter of delivery was taken up with him, he was greatly disappointed to learn that 15 others had placed their orders during the automobile show previous to his. He asked the dealer if he had any objection to his offering one of his customers a bonus of $20 if he would change places on the waiting list in order that he might get a car earlier. He was assured that no objections would be raised as long as it was with the consent of the other party. He succeeded in persuading one of the customers on the waiting list to swap places with him, and is now having a great time, regardless of road conditions, with his Paige car.

CADILLAC EXPERT INSTRUCTS STAFF

T. J. Beaudet Has Mechanics Attend Illustrated Lecture.

Since moving into the new Cadillac service building in San Francisco, Superintendent T. J. Beaudet has inaugurated a school for mechanics, the purpose of which is to lecture to the mechanical forces of the various branches and others who may be interested in this end of the Cadillac.

Beaudet finds that this is not only instructive to the men, but it enables the mechanics to discuss the various problems and obtain an even closer insight into their work.

The last lecture was devoted to the electrical starting and lighting system. "This has been proven the most perfect starting and lighting system," said the mechanical head, "but no piece of mechanism is absolutely perfect, and our men should understand thoroughly every part of the system and, in fact, every part of the car. The purpose of these lectures is to bring out any point that is not absolutely clear. We want to improve our force to the highest degree. We want every one of our mechanics to be Cadillac experts. That means that all work will not only be done better, but will be done quicker. This will enable us to do more work and will also be a big saving to the customers. We want no slipshod work in our departments. The factory is run and operated upon honor and efficiency, and that is the standard of our mechanical departments in all branches. Of late Beaudet has received applications from many drivers and owners who want to attend the lectures.

and Delivered in California Since Jan. 1

The official figures as given out by the Secretary of State show 520 1913 Cadillac cars registered since Jan. 1. Ask yourself, why did these 520 people buy Cadillacs?

Not on account of our advertising, for that has always been along the most conservative lines. Not because our salesmen are any better.

Five hundred people are not expending over two thousand dollars each without being pretty sure that they are getting the best value possible. It stands to reason that a very large majority of these 520 buyers made the most thorough investigation.

When 520 people within 90 days buy a car costing $2,125 that car must be right.

FLANDERS PUTS MAXWELL '25' IN FIELD

Michigan Motor Center to Be Scene of Huge Conclave

There'll be more automobile dealers in Detroit next week than have congregated there in many a long day, if one is to judge the present by the past, and has read the announcement just put out by President Flanders of the Maxwell Motor Company, Inc.

It is customary in these days to say that the automobile business has—or gradually is settling down to the prosy pace of other lines of industry, and there be those who protest that the dealer will not wax enthusiastic over the announcement of a new model as he did in the earlier days. But there is really nothing to substantiate this, and those best informed as to the real nature of the new Maxwell model just announced, predict the biggest stampede to Detroit that has happened since Flanders brought 3600 dealers there on special trains a year ago.

Just because dealers don't get excited over every new car that comes out, is no criterion for this case, say the experts. The dealer has a peculiar sense—a veritable sixth sense—by which he divines the difference between a new car that is just "another," and one that threatens to overturn present standards and revolutionize the trade.

Taught by the past, dealers know from whom to expect such announcements and with Flanders at the head of the Maxwell Motor Company, the word has gone around, "How something is liable to drop," so they will not be wholly surprised when they read the Maxwell ad that is full of mystery to the tyro, but full of significance to the dealer who leads between the lines.

It happens, too, that the new Maxwell '25' is just such a car as dealers have been crying for to complete their lines and one to meet the tremendous demand of thousands who want a car that will look as well as act the part—a five passenger touring car of snap and ginger and go, and yet selling at a price within the reach of their pocketbooks.

There has been little real competition in that class of car in the past, not because failed to see the opportunity but because such a car can only be made profitably at such a price when made in immense quantities. This calls for large capital, specially equipped plants and an organization of experts. These considerations, narrow the possibility of producing such a car down to the two or three largest concerns, and it is narrowed down still further by the fact that the other concerns that might attempt the feat, have their plants occupied with the making of larger models.

The new Maxwell Motor Company was fortunate in having "a clean slate." That is to say, the concern, which bought all the plants and equipment of the late United States Motor Company and the Flanders Motor Company, found itself in possession of capital, organization and plants admirably equipped for the making of light, low-priced cars in quantities, and without having to sacrifice any material or cars, in order to do so.

It is no secret in trade circles that Walter B. Flanders, who first introduced quantity manufacturing methods into the automobile industry, in the making of light, low-priced cars, but who has during the past four or five years been making higher priced cars, has always had an ambition to re-enter the former field. He well knew the terrific competition to be met and the necessity of having at his command the slowness of war in plenty, so has bided his time until he was in a position to go into the making of light cars on such a scale as would enable him to compete on even terms.

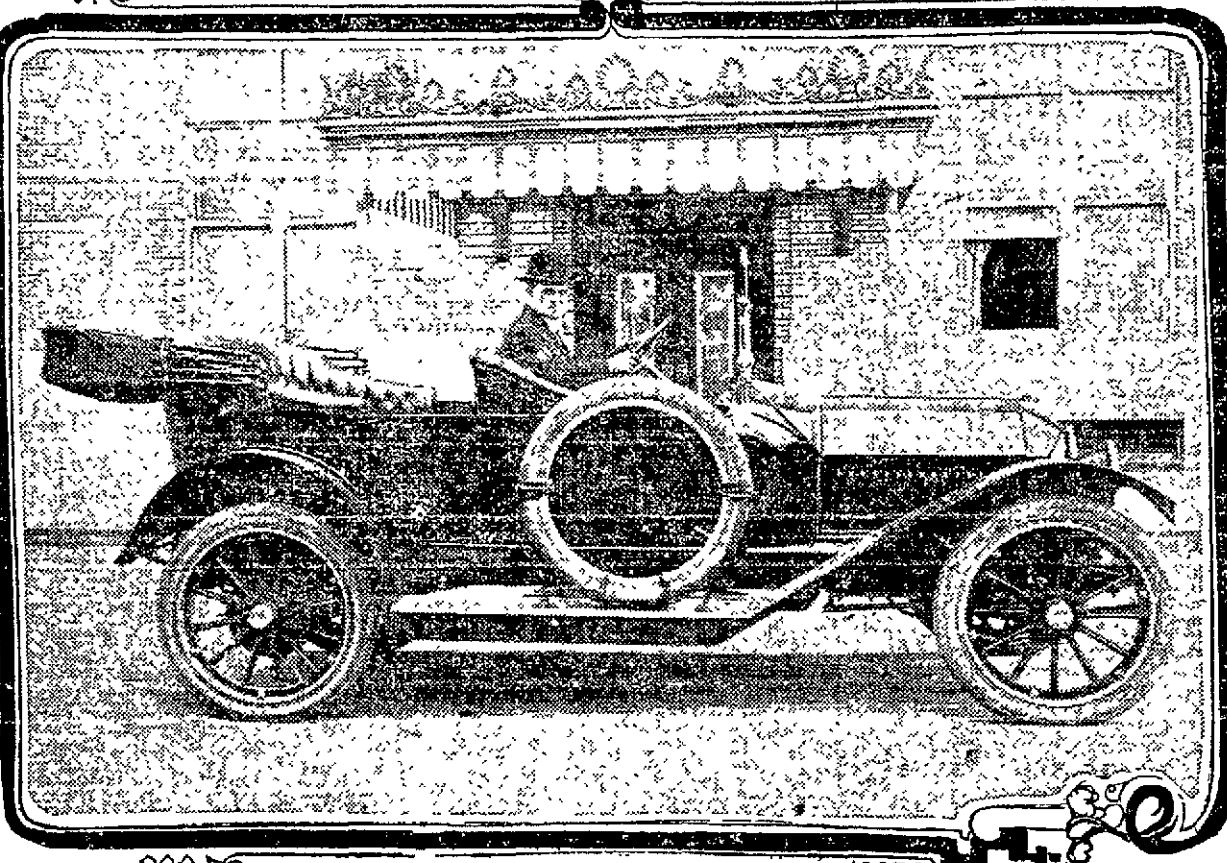

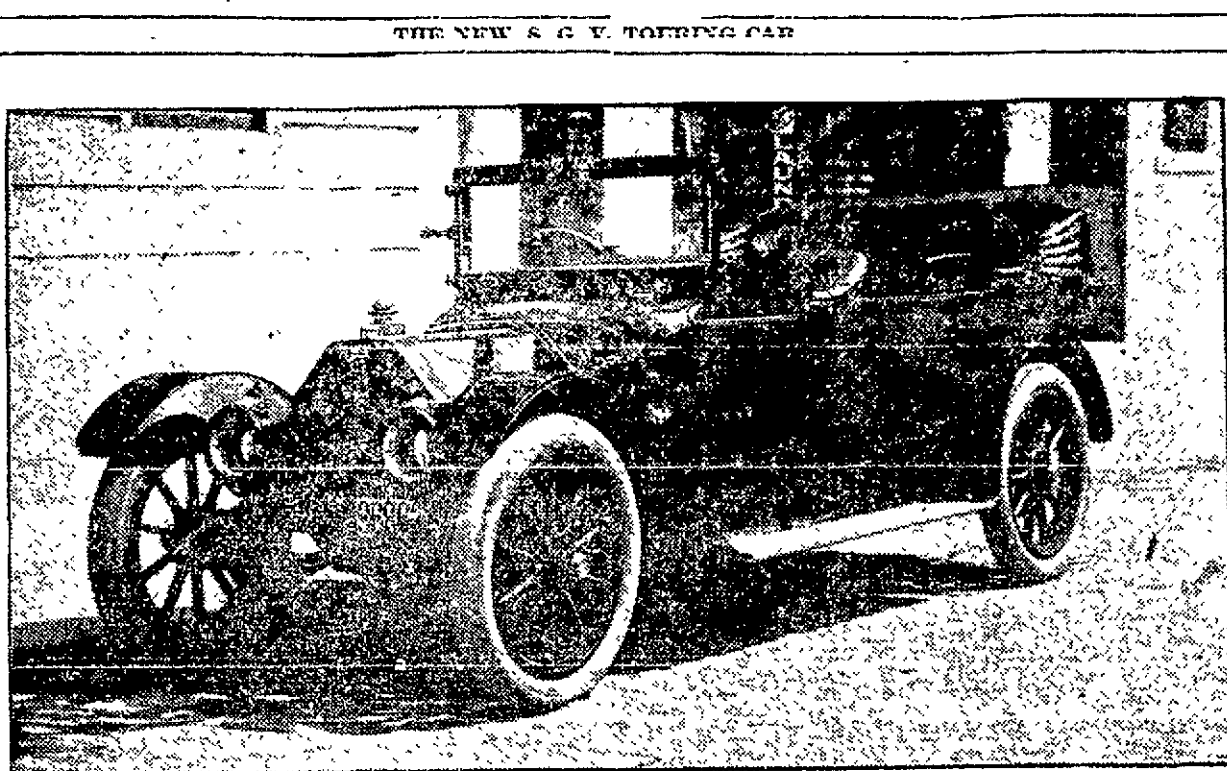

When he was made president and general manager of the new Maxwell Motor Company, Flanders' first act was to secure William F. McGuire, who had succeeded Flanders as production manager of the Ford Company—on whom he thoroughly fitted to grapple with the production problem in hand. The two make a great team. Flanders is a consummate organizer and executive. He also possesses the selling sense to a degree perhaps unequalled by any other individual in the automobile business. He is able with almost unerring accuracy to foresee the trend of demand and to produce the kind of car that will meet it.

McGuire will have charge of the production, a fact to which dealers attach more importance, as it guarantees supply—and the one thing dealers look to as the chance of having enough to supply the demand for this type of car.

That being the case, Detroit is getting ready to receive the horde of dealers that it confidently expects will visit that city in response to Mr. Flanders' invitation to come and see the new Maxwell '25'—a car that from all accounts of the few who have been permitted to look behind the veil, is destined to cut a large figure in business, made as it will be in tremendous quantities and selling for a sensationally low price, its power, size and appearance all considered.

CHARLES M. HOLMES AT THE WHEEL OF THE JACKSON CAR, THE LATEST RECRUIT TO THE RANKS OF ALAMEDA COUNTY MOTOR CAR DEALERS.

JACKSON CAR IS NEW-COMER HERE

Charles Holmes Establishes
Headquarters for Auto in Oakland.

The latest recruit to join the ranks of Oakland motor car dealers is Charles M. Holmes, who has secured the distribution rights for the Jackson automobiles in the territory of Northern California and Nevada. Holmes, who recently arrived on the coast from Michigan, thoroughly investigated the automobile situation on the coast and finally decided to cast his lot with Oakland as his headquarters.

The Jackson line is already well known on the coast and Holmes states that he believes he has made an excellent choice both as to the car and the city of Oakland as his place of business.

The advent of Holmes to this venture again brings Oakland to the front as an ideal center from which a large coast motor business can be conducted.

TRUCK EXPENSES.

The expense of running a three-ton motor truck varies so greatly in different cases as to constitute strong surface proof that a great deal depends upon the owner's methods. A remarkable low record is that of the I. Renaud Company, commission merchants and wholesale grocers of Fall River, Mass. This truck, a Kisselcar, has been in constant use, with the exception of Sundays, since September 1, 1912, with practically no expense for repairs. Its duty is almost entirely between a railroad freight station and the company's warehouse, which includes the climb of a very steep hill. It previously took five horses to perform this task, and the firm states that the truck takes less time and labor to care for than does a single horse.

NEWSPAPERS BEST FOR ADVERTISING

The Diamond Rubber Company
Tries Out Various Publicity
Mediums.

"The quickest and most effective way to reach Automobile owners is through the columns of the daily newspapers," says C. S. Thompson, advertising manager of the Diamond Rubber Company.

"That's why most of our appropriation this year will go into the newspapers. We find we not only reach present automobile owners (who naturally buy the large percentage of the present output of tires) but we also educate prospective buyers to insist that their car be equipped with Diamond Vitalized Rubber Tires.

"We also find that newspaper advertising is read more thoroughly by our own salesmen, our 25,000 dealers, manufacturers of automobiles and their purchasing agents. So, as an educational force for Diamond Vitalized Tires, we do not see how the newspapers could be improved upon.

"We are now passing through the most successful season we have ever had during our sixteen years of experience in building tires. Never before have we been able to produce such a large volume of tires in so short a space of time, and as a consequence our sales department is breaking all previous records.

"The more mileage fame of our celebrated Vitalized Rubber Tires has now spread from ocean to ocean. Users everywhere have been quick to appreciate the advantages of tires that are giving the maximum mileage at the minimum expense.

"The discovery of Vitalized Rubber by our chemists is helping Diamond Tires users to reduce their tire bills. Vitalized Rubber in tires is no longer an experiment, it has made good by every known test and when used in connection with our No-Clinch Construction, Perfect 3-Point Rim Contact and the No-Pinch Safety Flap feature, the user is getting more in return for his money than ever before."

"When the Diamond chemist discovered Vitalized Rubber, Mr. Thompson said he felt that the quickest way to announce this important discovery to the users everywhere was through the medium of newspapers, and consequently he ran large announcements in all prominent newspapers.

To further support his argument Thompson called attention to the fact that his company depended upon the newspapers to tell the public that the Diamond factories had not been affected by the recent floods and were running full time.

Continuing, Thompson said: And when we decided to reduce the prices of Diamond Tires to users on April 1st, we again turned to the newspapers. This price reduction was so important that we sent the advertisement by telegraph to the best papers in over sixty of the leading cities. In doing so, we probably incurred the largest bill for telegraphing an advertisement in the history of advertising. The copy for these reduced priced advertisements was wired all over the country on Saturday morning and the advertisement appeared in all of the newspapers, the next day, Sunday.

"I am glad to say that the labor conditions in Akron are in first class shape, and the published reports of testimony of the officials of our company in newspapers throughout the country have attracted large numbers of mechanics and skilled laborers, because of the high wages paid in the rubber industry in Akron. "The enormous sale we are now having on Diamond Vitalized Rubber Tires makes it necessary for the factories to increase their facilities as rapidly as possible."

C. A. Bradley, an enthusiastic motorist of automobile races, Mass., has added a side-car to his motorcycle and now his grandmother, who is 75 years old, accompanies him on many trips.

The S. G. V. ELECTRIC GEAR SHIFT

is the longest step yet made in utilizing the surplus energy of the gasoline motor. The same accumulator battery charged by a flywheel motor generator that lights and starts the car is used to shift the gears. Makes the S. G. V. as easy to drive as any electric—without the electric's limitations—and as safe.

It requires half the usual time to shift gears with the electric control. A system of buttons on the steering wheel and a slightly added length of clutch pedal throw compose the system as far as the driver of the car is concerned. It is merely necessary to touch a button corresponding to the speed at which it is desired to travel, press down the clutch pedal and let it back and the shift is made.

An idea of the appearance of the steering wheel with the device attached is given above. The buttons are numbered corresponding to the speeds which they control. Also there is one marked N and another R for Neutral and Reverse.

If No. 4 button is pushed down, the clutch thrown out and then re-engaged, the car will be in fourth speed. If the driver is traveling through traffic on third speed he can set the second speed button and be ready at any moment by a simple motion of the clutch pedal to be in second speed. Or conversely, when traveling through traffic on second, and having No. 3 button pressed down, a shift to third may be made instantaneously and without lifting the hands from the steering wheel.

It is impossible to strip the gears with this system because the gears are always in neutral before the shift is made. The clutch is fully disengaged before the gears begin to move. This is accomplished by a positive mechanical action which is a part of the pedal motion in disengaging the clutch.

LOZIER MANAGER TALKS ON COAST

Paul Smith Inspects Western Territory and Returns Enthusiastic.

DETROIT, Mich., April 19.—Thriving conditions in the automobile trade throughout the entire western portion of the country are reported by Paul Smith, sales manager of the Lozier Motor Company, who has just returned from a month's trip to the Pacific Coast. Incidentally Mr. Smith's thirty-day jaunt was an extremely productive one from a sales standpoint, he having closed up several new agencies, taken orders for Lozier cars and appointed a Pacific Coast manager for the Lozier company in that space of time.

Selling conditions on the Pacific Coast have changed greatly in the past two years, according to Mr. Smith, who has made a dozen trips to that territory in the interest of automobile sales. "The sale of cars in California and other far-western states has reached a point where the capacity of the local agent for rendering efficient service is the first thing considered by the buyer," says Mr. Smith. "I venture to say that almost any of the big Pacific Coast dealers, with their huge service and sales buildings, could terminate their sales agreements with almost any car manufacturer and make good with a mere car of different grade and price merely owing to their reputation for providing service. That section of the country is altogether too far removed from the motor car factories to make direct factory service feasible, and I found many instances where superior local facilities had clinched sales."

"Of course, even efficient service will not compensate for a badly constructed car, and the California purchaser has already become a big factor in eliminating the undesirable class of cars from the field."

"Times have never been better, however, for the car manufacturer with a reputation of years' standing. The fact that a motor car maker has been in business for many years is bound to act favorably on the average purchaser, and this condition is nowhere more general than in the far west. From what I learned in a hurried survey of the situation, the automobile maker who is building for the future will look well to the service facilities of his various coast dealers, and at the same time do his utmost to convey the impression of stability. The apostles of the square deal are bound to win out in the end."

Among the new agencies closed by Mr. Smith on his recent trip were the rights for the Lozier car in Salt Lake City and surrounding territory. One of the biggest motor car agencies in the Mormon capital will represent the Lozier Motor Company. A preliminary order for fifty cars accompanied the signed contract. Negotiations are under which will probably result in the entry of the Lozier company into additional territory in that section of the country, hitherto unoccupied.

The appointment of L. H. Rose, formerly assistant sales manager of the Studebaker corporation, and more recently Portland, Ore., manager for that concern, to the position of Pacific Coast manager of the Lozier company, was another development of the trip. Mr. Rose is one of the best known men in the automobile industry, and has a wide acquaintance with motor car dealers throughout the country. His experience has amply fitted him for his new post. The appointment of a coast manager is in line with the policy of the Lozier company in perfecting Pacific Coast service facilities. Up to the present, Lozier coast service has been under the supervision of the San Francisco branch manager. Mr. Rose will make his temporary headquarters at Portland, but will spend the greater portion of his time in personally supervising the work of all dealers in the territory under his jurisdiction.

MOTOR TRUCK IN CHERRY FARMING

Oregon Horticulturist Finds Federal Ton Truck a Big Help.

The cherry-picking season in Oregon, usually finds a scarcity of transportation vehicles.

Most of the extensive ranchers sell their cherry crop as it stands upon the trees, and the purchaser must do all his own picking and shipping. The season lasts about three weeks, and the commission men and agents of the canneries pack up a camp outfit and proceed with it up the mountains, where they "camp right on the job."

The very poor roads and trails make almost impossible the piloting of a motor truck up to the highlands, this is why burro caravans and pack horses are almost invariably used.

C. A. McCrary of La Grande, Oregon, last year used the Federal, because demonstration of this truck in and around the mountains proved that it could load, fulfill the requirements. Loaded with about twenty-two hundred pounds of camping paraphernalia, a sixteen mile trip was made up the mountains to a large cherry orchard. Ten days were spent there, and every other day the truck carried its cargo of cherries, 128 miles from La Grande to The Cove, where they were turned over to a local cannery.

It is predicted that this year motor trucks will be used more in making these trips than horses and wagons, because they not only save time but are economical in operation, and none of the fruit was wasted by exposure to the hot sun as when horses and wagons were the only means of transportation.

MOTORCYCLE WINS A WIFE
The motorcycle is one of the "first aids" to cupid, and during the first days of spring he has been making good use of the two-wheeler. The scene of the latest motorcycle romance was the National capitol.

Charles V. Dessez had long sought favor in the eyes of Miss Rena Bruce but she had firmly made up her mind to accept another. However, one evening Dessez came along on a shining new motorcycle and asked to go for a ride. She couldn't resist the appeal to take a spin on the handsome machine—and later she couldn't resist the appeal of Dessez to reverse her former decision in favor of his rival. So they whirled away to Rockville, Md., were married and then rode home to communicate the happy event to their friends.

Another motorcycle romance has culminated in the marriage of Miss Rena Bruce and Carl Hartnett, of Seattle, Wash.

KRIT CHRISTENED FROM CRITTENDEN

Orra Tells How Clever Motor Car Was Named After Designer.

"There is one question that has frequently been asked members of the K-R-I-t Motor Car Company's organization," says C. E. Orra, the K-R-I-t distributor. "When the new K-R-I-t owner is in the first flush of his enthusiasm over his car he is absorbed in the joys of motoring and in becoming thoroughly acquainted with his possession. But after he has grown more or less familiar with the car he has often paused to ask: 'What does the word K-R-I-t mean? Where did the name come from?'"

"This natural curiosity suggests the query, 'What's in a name?' And the facetious immediately come forward with the parody, 'a motor car by any other name would run as well.' As a matter of fact the name K-R-I-t has an important significance and a logical reason for being. The designer of the K-R-I-t and the chief engineer and one of the founders of the company manufacturing this car is Kenneth Crittenden, a young man who has had an unusual experience in the motor car industry. When Mr. Crittenden was laying the foundation of his education in the Detroit high school his pals called him 'Cr.' Later he received a technical training in engineering and entered the automobile business. He served about eight years as designer and engineer with several of the big Detroit plants and finally evolved plans and designs for a new car that embodied ideas of his own."

"A company was formed to build this car with Crittenden as engineer, and it was a perfectly natural thought to use the old nickname of the designer. The next step was the use of the initial letter 'K' instead of 'C,' and space the letters with a dash, thus adding to this distinctive name the suggestion of a trade mark."

DAILEY PREDICTS DEMAND ON SIXES

High Priced Motors Will All Be Six-Cylinder Cars, Assertion.

F. H. Dailey, distributor in this district for the very popular Little and Big Six Premier automobiles, in discussing the automobile situation today, says:

"The claims being made by so many in view of the great popularity of the six-cylinder car, that the four-cylinder automobile is impractical for service, is in my opinion somewhat exaggerated."

"Manufacturers of automobiles in this country will not discontinue the building and selling of four-cylinder motor cars, but I feel very sure that my prediction that the limit of price for a four-cylinder car will be less than $200, within two years is correct."

"The six-cylinder appeals particularly to all who are buying high grade cars and manufacturer after manufacturer has been compelled to abandon the four-cylinder car just as the Premier Motor Manufacturing Company was compelled to do, because they found a constant lessening demand for their high-priced four cylinder product."

"Six years ago Premier began the manufacture of Sixes and it was found that when a six-cylinder car was demonstrated to those owning fours, in city streets, passing heavy traffic, and obeying traffic rules and regulations, they immediately lost all interest in fours. The shifting of the gears was greatly reduced, the speed of the car could be brought down to as low as three miles without stalling, and when they got out into the open country, especially where roads were built with water breakers, the four-cylinder could not and did not successfully compete with the six."

LECTURER HEADED EAST
After a series of record-breaking meetings with the motorcyclists of the Southern and Western cities of the country, J. Leo Sauer is now returning East on the last half of his across-the-continent lecture tour, under the direction of the Federation of American Motorcyclists.

The San Jose, Cal., riders are grateful Mr. Sauer's visit with the dedication of their beautiful new club house. At Denver a large crowd heard Mr. Sauer speak in the afternoon, and in the evening an elaborate banquet was given in his honor. During the first week in April enthusiastic meetings were held at St. Louis and Chicago. After a week in New York, Mr. Sauer will then visit a number of the cities of the Middle West.

PERMITS COUNTRY HOME.
The motorcycle is becoming very popular with the man who desires to live in the suburbs, but whose business headquarters is in the heart of the city every day. When his day's work is finished it is not necessary for the owner of a motorcycle to waste a half hour or more waiting for the infrequent suburban cars. He just climbs aboard his machine and is always home in time for dinner.

Fred Morse, a South Bend, Ind., newspaper man, is one of the many men who enjoy life in suburban homes, and ride to and from the city each day quickly and comfortably, on motorcycle. Mr. Morse also uses his motorcycle to deliver to town customers fresh eggs and vegetables, of which he always has a surplus at his country home.

MOTORCYCLE NOTES.
A 210-mile reliability run will be held by the Reading (Pa.) Motorcycle Club the latter part of July. The time limit for the run will be eleven hours.

The Western Union Telegraph Company is testing out the efficiency of motorcycles for use in its messenger delivery service.

Ann Arbor, Mich., motorcyclists will hold a Memorial Day motorcycle run to Detroit.

Motorcyclists of Manila, P. I., have an enthusiastic club, and have just furnished a fine club house.

Gust Lund, Latin professor of Bethany College, now rides a motorcycle.

Two carloads of motorcycles have been ordered by one Birmingham, Ala., dealer.

Three new motorcycles have been added to the police department of Savannah, Ga.

The Maryland Motorcycle Club is planning to build a new club house in the near future.

Motorcycles are found very valuable to the Philippine Engineering Corps in the Philippines.

This Ad. Is For Automobile Dealers Only—and Only the Live Ones

YOU'VE BEEN HOPING and praying for years for the kind of car you thought some big manufacturer ought to build, and that you knew you could sell.

THAT IS TO SAY, a light touring car of about 25 horse power, made so well the maintenance cost would be as little or less than any other car on the market; one that would look the part; act the part; and yet sell in the neighborhood of $700.

THAT WAS ABOUT THE PRICE you set—wasn't it?

YOU'VE ASKED for that kind of a car, insisting that it be one the owner wouldn't feel he ought to leave in the alley so the neighbors wouldn't see it!

A CAR FOR THE KIND OF OWNER who wants his money's worth in looks as well as performance, and who doesn't care to be pointed out as one who bought the cheapest car.

SUCH A BUYER, you've told us, would pay a few dollars more to have a car that was worth more than the difference.

YOU'VE KNOWN that there were only two, or possibly three, concerns in the world that could make such a car at such a price. Millions of capital, and plants equipped with special automatic machines throughout for making every last part of the car, are necessary.

AND DOUBTLESS IT HAS occurred to you that the reorganized Maxwell Motor Company was in an ideal position to produce such a car—having the capital, the plants, the organization—and a clean slate. That is to say, plants ready for the work and no old models or material in course of construction.

AND, YOU'VE HEARD WHISPERINGS that that was the sensation the new Maxwell Motor Company had up its sleeve.

WELL, WE HAVE—and we've tried to keep the details from getting out because we didn't want to start a stampede of buyers until we were ready to supply the cars. But you can't send test cars all over the country—as we had to do to prove up this product to our own satisfaction—without starting trade gossip. And trade gossip goes fast and far. It isn't always accurate, but it goes just the same.

WE ARE STILL DETERMINED to withhold all detailed specifications and the real price from the public until we are ready to deliver a few thousand cars—or at least until demonstrators are in the hands of our dealers.

PAST EXPERIENCE with stampedes of the kind that will certainly ensue when the features of this car are generally known, teaches us that our plan is right.

BUT MEANTIME—and here's why we are publishing this ad. to dealers—the information is leaking out; dealers are coming to Detroit wanting to contract.

THAT'S ALL RIGHT—but we want to start right with this proposition. It's going to be the biggest, greatest thing this organization has ever done—and you know the men who comprise the Maxwell organization of designers, production, sales and advertising experts—from Mr. Flanders down—have done the biggest things that have ever been done in this industry.

WE WANT TO START RIGHT. We want to select the best dealer in each town—the one who has the best standing locally, and the kind of fellow who will take hold of this product, not for a day, but for his whole future—to go along and stay with us while we both make money and at the same time giving the buyer more for his money than he can possibly get elsewhere.

IT'S A QUANTITY PROPOSITION and when you see the car you'll say it is a permanent proposition.

THAT'S WHAT YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR—that's what we've been aiming at in producing this car. Coupled with our $1,085 "35-4" and our $2,350—50-6, here's the greatest line in the world—and any maker who tries to compete, either in quality or price, will have to go some.

NOW HERE'S WHAT INTERESTS YOU at this moment. We can't very well refuse to sign up with the other dealer who comes from your territory. We appreciate his coming—it shows he is on the alert. That's always a good sign.

BUT HE MAY NOT BE THE BEST man for us to tie to—how are we going to know unless you come and tell us?

SO WE DECIDED to tell all dealers that we are ready to contract for these 25's as well as the 35's and the rest of the line.

EVERY DEALER IN AMERICA KNOWS the heads of this organization. You all know Walter E. Flanders. He has always given his buyers more—and forced his competitors to give theirs more, than they wanted to.

HE IT WAS WHO FIRST SAID, "Magneo included, of course." He who first put a "fordoor" body on a thousand dollar car—after cutting the price of the most popular and the greatest $1,250 car to $1,000. It was Flanders who forced all other makers to equip with demountable rims, by doing it first. He who said, "same electric starter as the Peerless," on a $2,350 car, when most $5,000 cars were still without starters.

AND FLANDERS HAS DONE MORE for the dealer than any other. He it was who five years ago originated the "sliding scale of discounts" to stop the gouging of the little fellow—the small dealer, who in the aggregate, disposes of 80 per cent of the product. He, who sent a copy of his dealer's contract to every dealer in the United States to show that all were treated alike, while other makers were "dickering" with theirs. Yes, you know Flanders—and you know why other dealers don't approve of his methods. Good reason, isn't there?

AND YOU KNOW MCGUIRE—if you don't happen to know him personally, you certainly know him by reputation. Wm. F. McGuire is known in trade circles as the former production manager of the Ford Motor Company—the man who seemed to create cars by miraculous methods. Mr. McGuire as the "man behind" isn't so well known to dealers, but you've heard it said if there's one man in the industry who can produce cars in greater quantities than any other, it is McGuire. Come and meet him—he'll show you the "25" himself.

E. LE ROY PELLETIER you all know personally. You know his advertising, and its instantaneous results. "Roy's" advertising has sold more automobiles than that written by any other man. He knows you, knows your problems and knows your territory. Besides handling our national campaign, Mr. Pelletier will furnish you with copy to run locally and, when occasion requires, he will be glad to write special copy to meet your local conditions.

YOU'LL MEET TWO NEW FACES—Walter M. Anthony, Comptroller, and C. A. Forster, Commercial Manager, in charge of sales.

MR. ANTHONY IS THE MAN you'll deal with at the financial end—and you'll like him. He's a rare combination of keen business acumen and royal good fellowship. In short, he is a business man of breadth and character and poise—and a saving sense of humor. You'll like Anthony—and that makes business dealings a lot more pleasant.

AND YOU'LL LIKE FORSTER. He comes from the Burroughs Adding Machine Company. We don't know it all yet in the automobile business, you know, and tho' you'll look with suspicion on a new man in this industry, that impression will be dispelled in the first five minutes you are with Forster—and then you'll agree that he, as well as Anthony, "belongs" in this organization of specialists and experts.

AND YOU'LL FIND in the other officers aid in the factory, not scores, but hundreds of men you've known for years—experts, specialists all, and you'll conclude that if the kind of car you've been wanting—the kind you'd design and make yourself if you had the capital and the facilities—can be made, then this organization can make it—to the Queen's taste—and yours.

THE CAR IS HERE ready to see and to ride in. Deliveries in quantities will begin in June. You've been looking for this car for years—come to Detroit on the first train; see and try it out for yourself—and tell us why you think you can sell more of them in your territory than any other dealer.

NOW MULL THIS OVER: You must realize—you who have watched the trend of things—that this automobile business will gradually narrow down to a few big ones. It will be a contest between giants.

TODAY, WHEN MARGINS OF PROFIT to the maker are so small that ninety per cent of all the buyer pays goes into actual automobile value and service; when, in other words, the profit per car is very small, only those makers who have the financial backing, the facilities and the experience necessary to produce cars in quantities, can survive.

WE'LL TELL YOU FRANKLY that we are going to be very careful in selecting our representatives, but once we've signed up with a dealer it will be our policy to stick to him as long as he is eighty per cent plus—in other words, as long as he does anywhere near right by us and by his trade.

SCHOOLS TO HAVE PEACE EXERCISES

Day Set Aside for Country-Wide Observance of Movement.

Peace day will be widely celebrated in schools throughout the United States this year. Although introduced but a few years ago, this special school day in behalf of international peace is now regularly celebrated in many American schools, and the incident has become a part of the curriculum of the schools. Since May 18, the day set aside as Peace day, falls on Sunday, the schools will probably hold their exercises on the nearest school day.

Realizing the growing importance of the peace movement among school children, the United States bureau of education has just issued a Peace day bulletin for 1913, containing, besides a suggested program for the day, a list of interesting short stories on different phases of the international peace movement, accurate and comprehensive information about the various organizations working for peace, and a collection of appropriate poems and prose quotations by famous peace lovers of many nations. The material was compiled for the bureau by Mrs. Fannie Fern Andrews, secretary of the American School Peace League, and a world-known worker for peace.

The Temple of Peace at The Hague, the centenary of peace between England and the United States; the cosmopolitan movement in the colleges and universities, and what it signifies for universal peace; the work of The Hague tribunal and other peace agencies; these are among the important topics gathered together in the bureau's bulletin "The Promotion of Peace."

That the sentiment for observance of Peace day in the schools is not confined to the United States, but is distinctly international, is shown in the words of M. Buisson of Paris, quoted in the bulletin. He says:

"Peace day. Let it shine one day in the year among all nations. The whole year is consecrated, as it ought to be, to the promotion of love of country, to teaching our duties toward our native land, even to the extent of sacrificing ourselves for her. On this special day, however, it is in order not to forget our country, but to see her transfigured in the future, to see her lead in the movement which binds one nation to all others, making a sort of higher country, the federation of the United States of the 'Civilized World.'"

ACCIDENT VICTIM IS OPERATED UPON

E. C. Brenbargh Develops Paralysis Week After He Is Injured in Crash.

After lying in an unconscious condition since last Sunday at the receiving hospital, E. C. Brenbargh, who was injured in a motorcycle accident at Sixteenth and Pearl streets a week ago, developed paralysis yesterday and today he was operated upon at the hospital by the staff physicians. The patient has been held at the hospital upon order of Dr. W. H. Irwin, who considered him to be in too precarious a condition to be moved. During the week that Brenbargh was under observation the surgeons were puzzled over the case and it was not until paralysis developed that an operation was determined upon.

No one was injured. The wrecking crew cleaned up the debris early next day and traffic was not delayed by the accident. One of the cars was badly wrecked and the engine was damaged.

PECULIAR VICTORY IS WON BY STANFORD FROM U. C. IN ANNUAL ATHLETIC MEET

RE-RUNNING OF RACE GIVES 2-5 POINT

Judges Disagree and Additional Contest is Necessary to Decide.

Records Broken or Equalled in Contests on Berkeley Oval.

A MARGIN of two-fifths of a point, gained through the re-running of a race for second place in the 220-yard dash, gave Stanford a victory over California in the twentieth annual track and field contest on the Berkeley oval yesterday afternoon. For three hours the sturdy athletes representing the two universities fought and struggled for supremacy until, with every event completed, the decision rested with McKee of Stanford and Fui Wood of California. The 220-yard dash had been run earlier in the day and was won by McKee second and Wood third, and no amount of discussion could decide the matter.

RECORDS ESTABLISHED YESTERDAY.

Hammer-throw—Shattuck (U. C.), world's intercollegiate, 175 feet 10 inches. Former record, Talbot (Pa.), 173 feet 6 inches.
120-yard high hurdles—Whitted (S.), new California-Stanford record, tying American intercollegiate held by Shaw, 15 1-5 seconds.
Broad jump—Dawson (S.), new California-Stanford record, 23 feet 7 1/2 inches. Former record, Allen (U. C.), 23 feet 4 3/4 inches.
Relay race—Stanford, 4 minutes 26 3-5 seconds. Former record, Fletcher (S.), 4 minutes 28 1-5 seconds.
Two-mile run—Crabbe (U. C.), new California-Stanford record, 9 minutes 54 seconds. Former record, Crabbe (U. C.), 9 minutes 55 3-5 seconds.

58 1-5. Victory in the meet was to be decided by Wood and McKee, three points to go to the winner of their contest and one point to the loser.

McKee broke the tape a winner by a scant two yards. The situation was unique in California-Stanford track circles and brought to a close the closest meet in 18 years, which has only been rivaled by the 66-56 tie in 1896.

RECORDS SMASHED.

Five records were either broken or equalled in yesterday's meet. In accordance with predictions, Karl Shattuck of California set a new world's intercollegiate mark in the hammer-throw by heaving the 16-pound weight out a distance of 175 feet 10 inches, which exceeds the record held by Talbot of Pennsylvania state by exactly two and one-half feet.

Whitted of Stanford broke the California-Stanford and tied the American intercollegiate record in the 120-yard high hurdles at 15 1-5 seconds. Whitted topped the attacks in beautiful form, leaving his teammate Murray six yards behind.

A California man set a new record for this meet in the two-mile. The event was won by Earl Crabbe of California after a tremendous race with Dodge of Stanford in the time of 9 minutes 54 seconds, which clips 1 3-5 seconds from the record established by the same runner last year at Stanford.

The mile run also came in for a changed mark. Wilson of Stanford covering the distance in 4 minutes 26 3-5 seconds, thus destroying the time set a year ago by Fletcher of Stanford at 4:28 2-5.

Don Dawson of the cardinal jumped 23 feet 7 1/2 inches in the broad, adding 2 3-5 inches to Fred Allen's leap last year.

TWO-MILE GREAT RACE.
The two-mile furnished one of the most exciting finishes of the day and one of the greatest races in the history of two-mile running hereabouts. Crabbe of California and Dodge fought for the lead from the beginning to the end of the long grind, and the last five yards decided the race.

On the second lap Crabbe went into the lead, with Veder of California second and Dodge following in the bunch close to the heels of the leaders. This order continued for seven laps until Dodge left his place in the rear and overtook Crabbe to start a wonderful duel that lasted to the final tape. In the same round in which Dodge secured his lead, Crabbe again regained his lead and went into the eighth lap just ahead of his rival. Crabbe and Dodge quickly pulled away from the remainder of the runners and the latter spurred into a 10-yard lead with but two laps to go. Again Crabbe overtook Dodge, and again Dodge spurred ahead for a six-yard gain. On the last lap Dodge elbowed Crabbe on the turn when they were home together and they entered the home stretch with the Stanford man about four yards to the good. Crabbe steadily decreased the ground separating the two runners and passed his rival three yards from the tape. Dodge was disqualified for fouling and second place went to Stowits of California, who led the pack 100 yards behind the leaders.

QUARTER MILE FAST.

Jimmie Todd of California took a wonderful 440 from McClure of Stanford. This race was heralded as one of the best contests of the day and it lived up to the predictions. Todd and McClure got off together and the Stanford runner got into the lead by three yards when the race reached the last 100 yards. Todd dug out and gradually decreased the distance between himself and McClure, passing him 10 yards from the tape. McClure fell an instant later and was passed by Clark of the blue and gold, while Gard of Stanford finished third.

The relay race went to California by a big margin. Woodruff of the blue and gold got off even with Chase of Stanford and the first lap finished with the latter a yard to the good. Leo Meyer of California took up the race and cut down the lead of the Stanford runner. The winners ahead by good yards, giving Clark a good start. The speedy Berkeley freshman got under way like a whirlwind and sped around the quarter 20 yards in the lead of Gard. With this lead it is needless to say that Todd led the last round in winning the race on the last round.

BOATMEN WILL SEEK LAURELS IN NORTH

State University Team Bids Adieu to Washington for Short Time Only.

Blue and Gold Track Team Elects "Fui" Wood Captain.

Almost immediately after their brilliant victory over both California and Stanford in the intercollegiate regatta on the Oakland estuary yesterday morning the University of Washington boat crew sailed for the north. The winning eight left on the steamer President for Puget Sound at two o'clock yesterday afternoon.

All hats were doffed to the northern eight following their wonderful exhibition on the water. The visitors came with a good reputation, impressing the local rowing fans favorably in their preliminary workouts, but their work in the real competition surpassed all predictions. Their strategy won the admiration of all who witnessed it. Its smoothness of execution and the power which was evidently behind every pull of the oars were entirely responsible for the superiority which they showed over the other crews in the race.

This is the third year in which the University of Washington has sent a crew to the regatta here. Their first two efforts proved unsuccessful, though last year they were well up at the finish behind Stanford and the Blue and Gold team. The crew in evidence yesterday, though the eight of last year lacked the strength and weight of the present one.

CALIFORNIA TO GO NORTH.

Though the main event of the local boating season is over, the California crew will not discontinue training for another month yet. On Friday, May 16, both the freshmen and varsity crews will leave Berkeley for Washington, where they will contest with the northerners on their own ground.

Wood Made Captain of U. C. Track Team

Following the near victory of Stanford over California on the State University cinder paths yesterday afternoon, the Blue and Gold track team gathered at the Hotel Shattuck, Berkeley, for their annual banquet and there elected "Fui" Wood to be the captain of the team for next year. Wood was the central figure among the California athletes in the meet yesterday, and though he lost to McKee of Stanford in the extra race upon which the outcome of the meet depended, the California team has shown its confidence in him as an athlete and a leader by bestowing upon him the highest honor which can fall to the lot of a track athlete.

'I AM SHOCKED,' CARDINAL SAYS IN REGARD TO TALK

Takes Exception to Remark of Sir William Osler, Who Favors More Primitive Views

BALTIMORE, April 19.—When part of the speech of Sir William Osler at the dedication exercises of the Philipps psychiatric clinic at the Johns Hopkins hospital was read to Cardinal Gibbons the prelate exclaimed:

"I am shocked."

Sir William, who is professor of medicine in Oxford University, said in part: "Primitive views will prevail everywhere of man's relation to the world and to the uncharted region about him. So recent is the control of the forces of nature that even in the most civilized countries man has not yet adjusted himself to the new conditions and stands only half awake, rubbing his eyes."

"Ninety-nine per cent of our fellow creatures, when in trouble, sorrow, sickness, trust to charms, incantations and to the saints. Many a shrine has more followers than Pasteur; many a saint more believers than Lister."

"Less than twenty years have passed since the last witch was burned in the British Isles."

"Mentally, the race is still in leading strings. In the childhood of the world we cannot expect people yet to put away childish things."

"Scientists in any line sometimes make statements such as that of Dr. Osler," said the cardinal, "and only a short time ago I had to defend some truths that Thomas A. Edison attacked."

"These scientific specialists think their statements should go unchallenged, but the cardinals of the world shall not and I shall write to him asking him to retract it."

"I would like to call the attention of Dr. Osler to the fact that Pasteur was devoted Catholic and put his trust in the saints. He said that as his knowledge of medicine increased his faith grew likewise. The statements attributed of the team immediately and will lead the Berkeley athletes in their invasion of the east this summer. The trip of the Blue and Gold team is now absolutely assured, sufficient funds having been gathered to finance the trip.

George Knight Wood, better known among the followers of track athletics as "Fui" Wood, is a junior in the college of agriculture at California, registered from Berkeley, and is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

SAD BLOW TO MISS ISADORA DUNCAN

Both Beautiful Children of the California Danseuse Perish in Seine.

Governess Also Drowned in an Automobile Accident Near Paris.

Two small children of Isadora Duncan, the beautiful California danseuse, were killed today in an automobile accident in the outskirts of Paris, according to cable advices received here tonight. Their governess also was killed, when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through a bridge, falling into the Seine. The chauffeur who drove them was released.

The accident occurred at Levallois-Peret, just outside the city walls. The two children and the governess were riding in a closed motor car which was being driven along the Boulevard de la Chapelle, a suburb of Paris. To avoid a collision with another machine, as the Duncan car rounded a curve, the chauffeur shut off the power to the engine and the car dashed over the embankment, carrying the three occupants with it into the Seine.

SAN FRANCISCO GIRL.
Miss Duncan was born and reared in San Francisco and Oakland, and has many friends here. She is a daughter of Joseph C. Duncan, a California pioneer, widely known in art, literary circles of the earlier days as a dramatic reader, and a collector of rare curios.

Her mother is Dorothy Gray-Duncan, who also was well known in the city's social and literary life. Her husband, Raymond Duncan, is the famous disciple of the Greek "simple life." He and his wife have attracted attention in many other parts of Europe and America by living on what he called the "simple life," dressed in costumes of extreme simplicity. Like her brother, Miss Duncan is an exponent of the Greek posture dancing, and her art has been highly commended by critics in all the large cities of the world.

GIRLHOOD IN OAKLAND.
While Miss Duncan was still in her girlhood, the family removed to Oakland, where she remained until her departure for Europe ten years ago. With her brother, she became interested in classic Greek art, and divided her time between the United States, three years ago, soon after the birth of her daughter.

Many of her California friends, including Mrs. C. C. Boynton of Alameda, went to Boston to attend her American premiere.

TOUCHINGLY DEVOTED.
She seemed touchingly devoted to the children, and Mrs. Boynton, "She was compelled to leave them in Germany, and seemed to think of nothing but being made at that time to bring her to the Greek theater."

Mrs. Duncan's mother is now at Fremont, Germany, where her daughter established a school of dancing and children, several years ago.

Kidnaped Husband To Prevent Divorce

But Kidnaping Fails and Now Pretty Mrs. Kasmandell Must Defend Suit.

PUEBLO, Colo., April 19.—Kidnaping her husband for the purpose of getting him out of the state before a divorce suit which is now pending could be brought to trial, Mrs. Kasmandell is alleged to have hired a stranger to impersonate a United States officer and spirit her husband away.

Kasmandell is the wife of a wealthy Boston broker and has an income of $400 a month. He is suing his pretty young wife for divorce on the ground that he was intoxicated when he married her in Colorado Springs last fall.

Kasmandell had been driven to the Union depot and was being loaded on a coastbound train when the police interfered. He was put in the city jail pending the hearing of the divorce suit.

ATHLETIC CARNIVAL WILL BE GRAND AFFAIR

Oakland Y. M. C. A. Taking
of Its Training.

Many Novel Spectacles Planned and Daring Feats Ready for the Pageant.

The Oakland Young Men's Christian Association is taking pride in the work of its physical department which, under the direction of physical instructor C. F. Martin is ready to give the big athletic carnival on Monday and Tuesday night in the gymnasium of the institution. It is to be a pageant of fully setting forth the work of the physical branch of the institution and months have been spent in making for its success and so faithfully have the 250 members taking part drilled that it is believed that this athletic carnival will overshadow anything of the kind that has gone before on the coast.

PROCESSIONAL SPECTACLE.
The carnival will be opened by a processional spectacle, a performance proper of the Oakland Y. M. C. A., emphasizing the magnificent grandeur, size, worth and enterprise of the physical department. This parade will be spectacular in all its details.

In the palmarina rally, senior leaders, Oakland police, Jack tars, Japanese, Highlanders, basketballers, baseballers, calisthenic and acrobatic groups, will enter carrying torches and describe drills and formations, marching in step and unison to the grand march of a hundred piece brass band under the leadership of John Smith, presenting the Oakland Schools Exposition Band at its best.

JACK TARS DRILL.
Twelve Jack tars, dressed in white sailor suits, will present a unique rope manipulating drill, dancing and skipping, while the merry-makers, with their hilarious tumbling stunts, will give the Highlanders a good laugh.

Twelve sailors of the senior class will produce a hornpipe dance of fourteen steps, typifying sailors, at work, and a troupe of fifteen business men, dressed as Japanese in gold and black kimonos, will swing and perch on a ladder on the side.

POLICE TO DRILL.

A picked team of the Oakland police will give a drill with the baton and dumbbells, demonstrating the use of the baton for physical exercise, with a succession of skillfully scientific calisthenic groupings, and striving for supremacy on the map, "Star" Larue and Chas. Eversen, in a burlesque bout will follow, introduced by "Promoter" Brown, then and long, and "Referee" Covington, thick and short.

Following these and dressed in blue trousers, with white shirts and blue four-in-hand neckties, a squad of twelve seniors will present red dexterities.

In elaborate red tunics and in kilts of black watch plaid, twelve youthful Highlanders will dance the historical Highland fling, exemplifying the days of the Highlanders.

REFLECTOR DRILL.
A crack squad of performers will stage a dazzling reflector drill reflecting prisms of light and color cast from electric illuminants. Still more alarming the troupe of senior leaders will perform feats of acrobatic balancing and human being jugglers, maintaining themselves in muscular equilibrium of strength accentuated by work on horse, horizon and parallel bars.

Patrolman Harry Brown and Miss Ruth Stanley will render melodies, demonstrated by player not work and then come an offering in high-class acrobatic and equilibrium feats given by the boys' department.

CAMP REMINISCENCES.

Camp reminiscences of 1912 will be rendered by boy members, when the scene will depict the entry into camp, pitching tents and visiting the fields of activity; at the shrill call of the reveille the family and boys' department will be wakened; the morning wash, flag raising, awkward squad and eats will display the feature items of camp life, concluding with a camp fire scene so familiar to camp life, when the boys will join in melodies and sing beside a campfire, at the call of taps by a pillow fight.

TROPHIES TO BE PRESENTED.

Senior leaders will be presented with leader's badges and stars for recognition of each year of service.

Four leaders will compete for the W. N. Jenkins trophy in mass work. H. Nielsen will lead club singing; A. F. Wright, brass band; O. E. Hagdorn, reflector; and O. Gauthier, the hornpipe squad in the competition. Dr. H. L. Dietz will be the adjudicator.

The committee of management is made up of A. E. Caldwell, business manager; Benjamin R. Aiken, publicity; Frank B. Clark, manager; P. Gullford, properties; W. H. Sellander, side shows; Capt. C. H. Beck, marshal of police; O. E. Hagdorn, marshal of seniors; E. H. Nielsen, marshal of boys; Dr. H. L. Dietz, adjudicator; C. F. Martin, physical director; G. E. Toole, assistant physical director; H. Street, assistant physical director; John Smith, director of Oakland School Band; Mrs. Belle Wentworth, accompanist.

DEDICATES GIFT TO WOMEN AND CHILDREN

SPOKANE, Wash., April 19.—Because tired mothers and their children often come to the city for rest and recreation, Mrs. J. H. Cowley, Stillman, has given a valuable tract of land to the Spokane park board. In making the gift Mrs. Stillman said the property for years has been the resting place for poor women and children, mostly foreigners. When she left she felt that she was not over-riding the place they always occupied, but she felt that it was more of home than any other place in Spokane. The new park will be named Cowley.

TAXICAB BANDITS GET 21 YEARS IN SING SING

NEW YORK, April 19.—James Patrick McEvoy, Charles Clark and Patrick Butler, three members of a daring band of taxicab bandits whose operations terrorized West Side merchants and jewelry stores for months were sentenced yesterday to serve a maximum of 21 years each in Sing Sing. The three were convicted on the conviction of a conspiracy, James Butler being the ringleader.

POPPY'S GLORIOUS GLOW LURES TO GOLDEN WEST

YOUNGSTERS GATHERING POPPIES IN FIELDS NEAR SACRAMENTO TO SEND TO THEIR EASTERN COUSINS.

SACRAMENTO, April 19.—With the close of the California poppy season, probably May 1 so far as shipping is possible the Sacramento Floral Committee will have sent approximately 150,000 separate poppy plants to high school children through 25 states in the East and Middle West and established a friendly relation that can never be broken.

This committee, organized by local citizens for the purpose of shipping poppies and poppy seed to other states as an advertisement for California and the great Sacramento valley, has spent more than $20,000 in this effort and in response to letters to principals of high schools, thousands of names have been received and poppies and poppy seed have been shipped, postage paid.

With the close of the poppy season about May 1, the committee will begin the shipment of the fragrant orange blossom, including Hyman and the golden state of California. Arrangements have been made with owners of orange trees growing in the City of Sacramento and it is believed that all the blossoms necessary can be obtained in that way. Hundreds of personal letters have been received from eastern educators and high school principals by the chairman of the floral committee calling attention to the fact that the poppies and seed have been distributed and that they gave extreme satisfaction. In nearly every case a desire is manifested to correspond for purposes of establishing a closer relationship in the study of botany, biology and English.

There is no doubt about the committee having done a great work outside of the advertisement given to California. On every package, there is a bid to come to the great Panama exposition in San Francisco in 1915, and it is believed that the attention of many will be turned this way in the year of the big show, solely through the poppy campaign.

GREAT WEST SACRAMENTO PROJECT IS BENEFICIAL

Immense Reclamation Plan Is Being Brought to Fruition

(By BYRON KILGOUR.)

The San Francisco capitalists who three years ago risked their millions in the use of the greatest and at that time considered one of the most precarious undertakings in California, are about to reap the reward that becomes the confidence and ability of those interested. In the early part of 1910, E. R. Lullenthal, Louis Stoss and J. J. Doherty of San Francisco, organized a company of their friends and incorporated in this state under the title of "The West Sacramento Company," with H. W. Furlong as general manager.

The company had for its primary purpose the reclamation of over 11,500 acres of lowlands situated just opposite the city of Sacramento. These lands, if they could be secured against the recurrent overflow from the Sacramento river, were recognized as among the most valuable in agricultural richness of any in the state.

TASK GIANTIC.
To reclaim the property and protect it from the onslaught of rushing waters that inundated the whole country at flood times was a gigantic task and one that few men would have undertaken. It proposed a great risk of capital, engineering problems were confronted that only the best experts could solve; and many obstacles had to be overcome that only the bravest could surmount. But all of this has been accomplished.

BUILD GREAT LEVEES.
To make the property absolutely safe from the oncoming of future floods in the Sacramento river and which spread out into the Yolo basin like a great inland sea necessitated the construction of mammoth levees larger than any ever built in the west.

The proposed levees, which were to enclose the entire 11,500 acres, combining over 18 miles of earth embankment must be impregnable. They must be higher and wider than any others in California.

The tremendous size of these great levees, heavily constructed as they are shown by comparison with the old broken and unsafe levees that existed prior to the present construction work. The river levee which begins just opposite the foot of K street, Sacramento, and extends eight miles down the river has an average width of 80 feet at the top and a base width of over 100 feet and is nine feet above the maximum high water mark, while the old levee, part of which still stands alongside, is but 6 feet wide at the top and 12 feet at the base.

LIKE HOLLAND DIKE.
To protect the vast domain on the west from Yolo basin which comes by the high winds in the spring, a levee now nearing completion was projected with a top width of 15 feet and a base width of 100 feet. It is 5 1/2 miles long and the whole west side of it when finished will be faced with 4 inches of reinforced concrete. This levee, it is said, will be the strongest in America and to compare favorably with those in Holland which are famous the world over.

On the north side of the property is an old levee, which is being replaced by the new one. The new levee is 30 feet wide at the top and a base width of over 75 feet.

These are the whole scheme of protection. It is not all by any means. It was expected by the nature of the land and the location that there would be a seepage of a degree more or less small. To take care of this, a main canal 27 feet wide was built. It runs from a point near the northeast corner of the property to the extreme southwest corner where two giant centrifugal pumps are employed to raise the water over the great levee and send it on down the Sacramento river.

To accomplish this wonderful system of levee work and ditch digging required the use of the largest clam-shell dredgers in America working day and night for nearly three years.

IMPORT PLOWS.
But after all, this was only part of the big work. The land reclaimed was in most part covered by a dense growth of tule, some was grown over with trees of various sizes up to four feet in diameter. To break up the soil and prepare it for its several purposes, two sets of Fowler's steam plow tackle were imported from Leeds, England. These plows when set up with two 90-horse power engines placed 1800 feet apart plow furrows from 12 inches to three feet deep and 8 feet wide and effect in one year's cultivation what could not be otherwise accomplished under three years. These plows have worked continuously day and night since their arrival in the pulling of stumps larger than six inches in diameter the use of the most powerful engines were employed.

More than 800 men have been constantly engaged in the different branches of this vast enterprise. Sometimes the forces were doubled to permit of night and day shifts in order that the work could be executed more swiftly and to greater advantage.

The capital expended on this project up to date represents an investment approaching $5,000,000 all of which has been furnished by California men. Not one dollar of outside money was solicited.

But development of this domain does not end with the work described here. Improvements projected upon the land and now under way are many and costly. Over 20 miles of reinforced concrete levees are being constructed, making what is said will be the finest roads in the world. Besides over 60 miles of macadamized roads are being built which will converge toward these overlying boulevards giving to California a system of automobile highways that is equalled only in a few parts of Europe.

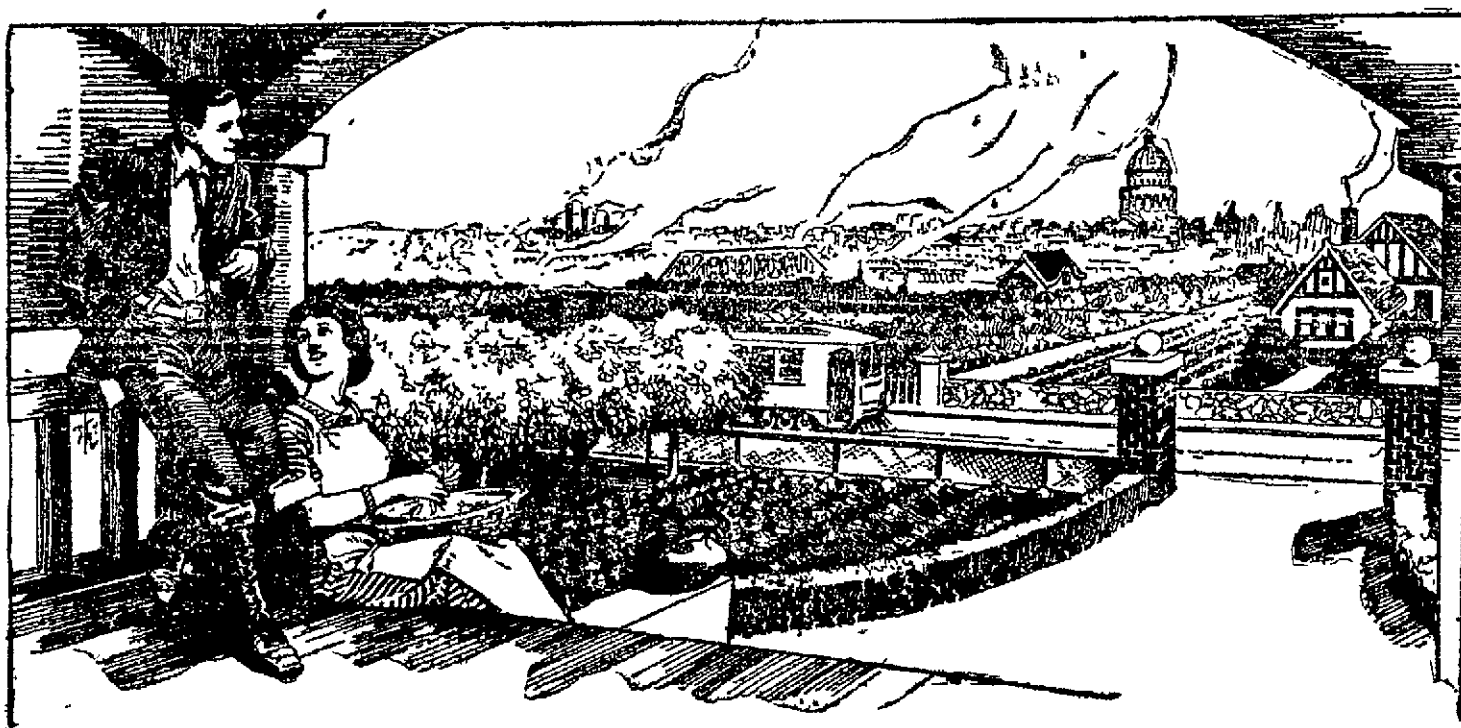

H. W. Furlong, when interviewed, stated that his company intended to develop the property to a higher plane than any known in America, that an electric railway line owned by the company would be in operation across the property from east to west and termination in Sacramento by June 1 this year; that whatever would be constructed in front of the property at a point just across the river from the business section of Sacramento.

An agricultural laboratory of concrete construction and costing $25,000 is now under way and when completed will be the most modern building of its kind in the west. This laboratory is not only for the purpose of soil analysis and agricultural experiment but will give free service to the settlers in the district.

PLAN FREE MARKET.
A free market, the finest and largest in the west, will give to West Sacramento one of the greatest advantages to be had by the people of any community. It will more to reduce the cost of living than any other single feature that could be established.

Other improvements contemplated and assured he says will give the future residents on this property the most ideal home surroundings in America. When it is considered that positively 1200 farmers and truck gardeners with their families aggregating more than 6000 people will be located on this property in the next five years the commercial value of the property is immediately revealed. This city will be the natural market for the products raised either for consumption or shipment, bringing here

Why West Sacramento Is the Best Land "Buy" in California

A Dominion of Garden Farms Just Across the River From California's Capital.

Place WEST SACRAMENTO side by side with any big land subdivision ever offered, compare it from any angle, take it point by point and it shows more, gives more for the money, than any land offering ever placed before shrewd, thinking men—men who investigate, compare and prove value before finally agreeing to buy.

The fact that many sections of this land have already been bought by Sacramento Valley farmers is the strongest proof of this statement. The fact, too, that Sacramento and Woodland real estate men are investing in property in WEST SACRAMENTO is further evidence of its value.

And this is the reason: The business section of Sacramento adjoins the Sacramento River. Directly across from the city on the West side the overflow lands of the river claimed the area which is now WEST SACRAMENTO. Until the reclamation of this great tract the city could expand only to the East and South. And its development in these directions has been the marvel of California. Acreage to the East and South, several miles further removed from the heart of the city than WEST SACRAMENTO—property admittedly inferior to that at WEST SACRAMENTO, is selling every day at $1,000, $1,200 and $1,500 an acre. But now that the reclamation work is finished and WEST SACRAMENTO is ready for settlement, this land, which is practically a part of Sacramento, is offered for sale at one-half to two-thirds less than other acreage four, five and six miles further from the city's center. WEST SACRAMENTO has more and better improvements than any similar tract in the Sacramento Valley. Everything about it measures up to the highest standards.

The price you pay covers every cost. No assessments will be levied for street work or sidewalks, for sewers or drainage for the installation of telephone, light or power. These permanent improvements are being added now. There is no water to pay for—the land is sub-irrigated—it is warm and moist the year round. The tax rate is seventy-five per cent less than that at Sacramento. You can get more in the way of advantages and improvements at WEST SACRAMENTO than in any other sub-division in California. Only ten per cent is required as your first payment. The second does not fall due until six months later. In the meantime the soil is producing for you. You have four years in which to pay for your property. You should visit Sacramento, call at our offices in the Nicolaus Bldg. and have us show you over the property. A handsome booklet, giving a complete description of WEST SACRAMENTO, will be sent you if you mail us the coupon below.

The elderly German ceased swabbing up the bar for a moment and looked up. "Go!" he ejaculated. "He must be an old-timer. I remember seeing him when I was a kid."

IMMIGRATION TO WEST CANADA VERY BUSY

EDMONTON, Alta., April 19.—Advices have been received in Edmonton from London that the spring immigration to Western Canada this year will be the largest in the history of the British Isles. Steamship officials report that all the second-class accommodations for April ships have been booked and that many will have to wait until May. Most of the prospective settlers, the advance guard of which arrived in Edmonton today in a party of 217, will engage in grain and mixed farming in the prairie provinces. Some will go to British Columbia. Immigration authorities here also report there will be a large influx of homeseekers from the eastern and central states as well as from the maritime provinces. The provincial government has provided a contingent fund of $10,000 for the purpose of furnishing medical attendance in the new settlements of Alberta not served by resident physicians.

Here It Is At Last!

Every Man's Opportunity to Secure a High
Grade Guaranteed Piano or Player at Absolutely Factory Cost--On Your Own Terms

The Reason for This Great Sale—

The great institution of Eilers operating more than 40 stores on the Pacific Coast, has taken over the entire output of two of America's greatest piano factories, making nothing but high-grade goods, in keeping with a house of Eilers standing, and in order to secure this exclusive representation it was necessary to purchase ten carloads of pianos already on the Coast or en route. It is impossible and far from practical (from a business standpoint) to keep our money tied up in these pianos until fall trade opens, and if we turned this stock for absolute cost we will have gained our point—that of securing the exclusive right to these instruments on the Coast. We want to place these goods in representative homes of Oakland and vicinity, where they will do the most good for their makers and for Eilers by building up a reputation and creating a demand for the future. To this end for the next few days we are offering these new pianos at unheard of prices on your own terms. Standard makes carrying Eilers unconditional guarantee for 10 years; choice of beautifully - figured walnut, mahogany, oak or mission in plain or fancy cases—tone rich and pure, with the depth so sought for by musicians and those who recognize tonal qualities. In connection with these new pianos we are offering some 25 or 30 slightly used pianos—some which have been rented and others traded in on players; all have been repolished and otherwise overhauled in our shops and look and sound like new—These will be offered at prices ranging from $86 to $264, depending on condition and original value. Terms on these of ONE DOLLAR per week.

MODERN FEMININE DRESS CRITICISED

Many Celebrities View Hobbies and Slashes From Different Points.

LONDON, April 19.—Does the present style of women's dress incline men to flirt with girls, but not to marry them? The Reverend F. B. Meyer thinks it does. Discussing the questions of scanty dress recently raised in the Ohio Legislature, before which a bill "to prescribe the

MAYR'S WONDERFUL STOMACH REMEDY

Will Correct These and Other Stomach, Liver and Intestinal Ailments.

Over 100,000 cures have been taken with this remarkable remedy. Some have undergone dangerous surgical operations with but temporary relief. Who now state that Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy has completely cured them.

fashions to be worn by the women of the state" has just come, Mr. Meyer said:

"The affectation of women's attire, the scant clothing of the legs and ankles, the open 'pneumonia' blouse and the loud manners, which are the natural accompaniment of these fads, make one sigh for the olden times, which gave better promise for husband, home and children."

"Young men will be wise who say that when they have to choose, it will be a girl of a 'sex' other than that of these 'moderns'."

"A man may flirt with such girls, but when the time comes for him to take for better or worse, for youth and old age, it will be a girl of a quieter, more modest and more winsome type he chooses."

"Of course it is a serious thing to dare to pronounce on women's dress, which is an altogether mysterious region into which only fools would intrude. Yet no one who really loves and seeks after the highest national ideals can see the costumes at present affected without a profound sense of dismay at the unwomanliness of so many of our womenfolk."

ARTHUR W. PINERO

Here is an opinion—and a remedy—from Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, the famous dramatist:

"Every fashion in clothes, whether in the direction of extravagance or fastidiousness, is in its turn, abused by certain women."

"It remains for modern women to take care that their less decent sisters cannot point to them as examples of excess."

Sir Elfrin Maxim, although modestly disavowing any claim to be "an authority on women's clothes, can only see one thing in favor of the hobbie skirt, and he thinks this present style of feminine hat 'horrible'."

my name would be held up to national, if not universal opprobrium.

"I think if a bill were passed to prevent all vulgar people from wearing short skirts, low necks, etc., it would meet the case much better than the Ohio man. A lady, by which I mean a person with a nice mind, can wear anything she likes."

A well-known writer said that a great many girls who wear the modern 'skin tight' form of dress make themselves laughing stocks, and that they utterly fail to achieve the object of such dress."

"Now that 'padding' is not fashionable it is only a very well-made woman who can afford to reveal all the secrets of her form to the whole world," he said.

"I should not say that women's dress of today is scandalous—there is nothing scandalous about the human body."

"Few sights are more unpleasant to the average man's eye than the outline of the figure of a short and stumpy or over-stout woman—and these are, unfortunately, many such in the world."

"I believe, in fact, that the more 'mysterious' the more unattractively dressed a woman is, the more attractive is she to a man."

VISIBLE LEGS

As to the 'legs' legs through a slit skirt, that is there 'very beautiful about women's legs'."

Personally I would rather wear a blouse or short coat and tunic to the knees—a bathing dress, in fact—than any other form of dress. It is becoming and practical and one can really move in it."

EDUCATOR TELLS OF HER TRAVELS

Miss Ida Lee Duncan Distinguished Visitor in Bay Cities.

Miss Ida Lee Duncan, a distinguished eastern educator touring the world, is a transient visitor in the bay cities, having arrived from Japan April 7.

A native of Mississippi, where her father was a leading lawyer, she had in her youth every advantage of wealth and position, but reversed the coming to her family, she removed to Washington, D. C., where, in partnership with Mrs. M. E. Summerville, she founded the well-known Belmont seminary, a high class school for the daughters of the exclusive set in the capital city and elsewhere.

Three years ago Miss Duncan's health compelled her to retire from Belmont—which still flourishes, however, under Mrs. Summerville—and she devoted herself to travel, visiting almost every part of the world, making educational or missionary institutions her objective point. She remained long enough in each place to get a sufficient grasp of affairs so as to be able to pass on the information to the various denominations supporting the work in America.

Standing out prominently in her travels are some special features, among which she numbers the Passion Play at Ober-Ammergau, the Durbar in India—the latter described as a scene of unparalleled splendor—this Journal of General Reed, an Japan, a review of the Japanese fleet by the new Mikado at Yokohama, and a visit to the tomb of the late Emperor at Kyoto where she was one of 50,000 pilgrims who paid their respects within a single day.

WHAT MOST IMPRESSED, "What do you consider the most unique sight of your travels?" Miss Duncan was asked in an interview. "The pealing of the Mochnolia," she promptly answered.

"I spent a winter in Egypt. This is a ceremony that takes place in Cairo but once in four years. It signifies the changing of the cover laid upon the coffin of Mohammed. The old cover is passed on to some chosen mosque and the new one is brought to the Khedive to be presented by him to the priest. Magnificent ceremonies attend the spectacle, both civilians and the military participating, after which the new cover starts on its long journey to Mecca, carried on the back of a sacred camel kept solely for the purpose."

'PARISIAN FINISH' IS MORAL MENACE

The Illinois Vice Commission Receives Letter From French Capital.

CHICAGO, April 19.—"I often wondered how many young American women who come to Paris to be 'finished' and 'educated' have been broken down, morally, by the life there. I have known of several instances."

This statement was contained in a letter received by Lieutenant Governor O'Hara, chairman of the Illinois vice commission, today from B. F. Gilliat, 18 Boulevard Haussmann, Paris, France. The writer said he had followed with interest the progress of the Illinois commission, and said he blamed low wages for 85 per cent of the cases where women lead immoral lives.

"I have no hope that fallen women can be redeemed. I reached this conclusion after the expenditure of a great deal of time and money," he wrote.

Public appearances of disorderly women at the races and gambling resorts of Europe results in the corruption of hundreds of country girls, according to the letter, which advocates a law prohibiting fallen women from appearing in public within certain hours.

POLITICS REUNITE ROYAL FAMILY

Ambition Brings Marlborough House Together Again.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
LONDON, April 19.—Once more rumors are beginning to take definite shape to the effect that a reconciliation will soon be made between the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough. Those in a position to know declare that the principal reason moving toward this hinges on the political ambitions of the duke.
In the next Conservative cabinet he is certain to be offered the choice either of the secretaryship of the colonies for which he has already acted in the capacity of paid under-secretary—as of that of Indian. The importance that has accrued to this cabinet office duties the past decade has also entailed responsibilities in the way of grand receptions and the present domestic position of the Duke would render it practically impossible for him to take up alone, or even aided by his suite the important role of a great parliamentary host.
Unless the Duke's domestic relations are not paid in order to government, no matter how willing, could use his services as head of a great state department. But let his reputation no might have gone to India as Viceroy instead of Lord Hardinge. Meanwhile the duchess it is said, is agreeable to any accommodation which secures her growing son a firm foothold in society than is consistent with a divided parental management.

EDUCATION CONFERENCE RE-ELECTS PRESIDENT

UNDERBIDS FOR CANAL CRANES

German Concern Awarded the Contract; Government Saves $500,000.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Contracts for the construction of two gigantic floating cranes for use in connection with the Panama Canal were let yesterday by the Isthmian Canal Commission to Neumeyer and Dimond of New York, agents for the Deutscher Maschinenfabrik, a German concern, whose bid of $837,500 was more than $500,000 below that of the lowest American bidder.
The cranes will be designed so as to work together or separately, each producing its own electrical power and having a lifting capacity of 300 tons. Each will have a "jib" with an outreach of 82 feet, and will be capable of revolving with a load without moving the pontoon.
The contracts were let under a provision of the act of Congress authorizing the purchase of equipment for the canal, providing where domestic bids are unreasonable.
PARIS IS VISITED BY PROMINENT AMERICANS
(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
PARIS, April 19.—Alfred Gwynne Van derbilt ran over to Paris from London the other day to see the last of the spring horse show. He is staying at the Astoria with a party of friends.
Mrs. Clarence Post, widow of the New York politician, has returned to her apartment in the Rue Bassano. Her son in law, Rose Arville and her daughter who went to Italy to join her husband, also returned to Paris.
The Right Reverend G. Mott Williams, former bishop of Marquette, passed through Paris en route to New York where he joins Mrs. and Miss Williams. He is making a pastoral visitation on the continent before returning to attend the Episcopal conference in New York in October.

BUFFALO VOICES TARIFF PROTEST

Milling and Meat Packing Threatened, It Is Stated.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 19.—The Buffalo Chamber of Commerce has decided to call a mass meeting at which a delegation will be selected and sent to Washington to protest against some features of the tariff bill. Both the milling and the meat packing industries of the state are threatened, it is stated, in a resolution adopted by the board of directors.
"A duty imposed on wheat, oats and buckwheat, unless there is an equalization duty on products and by-products of such commodities," the resolution says, "would work a great injustice to the milling industries of the United States and especially to the city of Buffalo, where the aggregate value of plants devoted to such industry, including elevators is $10,000,000."
The proposed admission of dressed meats free while a duty of ten percent ad valorem is levied on live stock is also condemned in the resolution.
"Such tariff revision," it states, "jeopardizes and even seriously threatens the business of this country by reason of the tremendous handicap placed on such industry."
U. OF C. TO HAVE FREE LECTURE SUNDAY AT 3
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA April 20.—The University of California Sunday afternoon public lecture for April 20, will be given at the University auditorium at 3 p. m. The subject scheduled is "Pan Americanism" and the speaker is John C. Merriam, professor of Paleontology and Historical Geology.
The lecture will be of half-hour duration, after which there will be a question and answer session at 4 p. m.

AGITATE WAR FOR KRUPP'S REVENUE

Liebknecht Charges Manufacturers With Fomenting War Talk.

BERLIN, April 19.—In a speech in the Reichstag yesterday Herr Liebknecht, a Socialist, made sensational allegations regarding the methods of the manufacture of arms and ammunition to push their interests. He said the foremost German company manufacturing small arms and ammunition had caused articles in the French army in order to arouse a panic spirit in Germany and thereby obtain larger orders.
Herr Liebknecht said the Krupp Company kept an agent in Berlin whose business it was to bribe army and navy officials in order to obtain an insight into official documents. This agent had large funds in his command, he said. The speaker claimed that he had documentary proof of this statement which he had given to the war minister and that the latter had instituted an investigation which substantiated his charges.
General Van Heeringen, the minister of war, expressed regret that Herr Liebknecht had ventured the matter in the Reichstag, because, he said, his investigations into the matter had not been completed.
Liebknecht charged much exaggerated. A number of sergeants and some officers were misled by the Krupp agent to give official information, he concluded, but there was no betrayal of military secrets.

CHICAGO'S NEW FAD IS HANDBAG FOR MEN

CHICAGO, April 19.—Hand bags for men is the latest craze of Chicago boulevardiers. The new fad is said to be about to displace the wrist watch which found great favor here.
The innovation had its rise in the new close-form fitting models of men's attire. It is reported which allows no room for unsightly bulges of pocket-book handkerchief or coin purses.
The bags contain the handkerchiefs, cigarette case, cards, a small mirror and money, if any. Several have made their appearance. Sleeves have become so tight that the handkerchief was banished from them long since and tight trousers prevented the same obstacle to carrying anything in the pockets.
"The bag fad," says, is here to stay, for a season at least.

"77" FOR GRIP & COLDS

All winter long, we have been harping on one string, trying to drive home the fact that the most important time to take care of a Cold is, when it is coming on, watching out for the first feeling, the first signs, lassitude, a sneeze or a shiver.
Any remedy, especially "Seventy-seven," is much more efficacious when taken at the beginning of a Cold.
If you wait till your bones begin to ache, it will take longer to break up.
It pays to keep "Seventy-seven" handy, it is a small vial of pleasant pellets, fits the vest pocket. At your Druggist, 25c.

If I had been content to run a one-man dental office all my life, I never would have been anything else. If I have made a big success, it is because I could not be content to be a small failure. Eventually every man reaches the level of his abilities in this world as rain drops reach their level.

Artificial Teeth Can Be Made Right

So they will look as natural as the teeth nature gave you. When a dentist tells you he can make you as GOOD teeth as nature gave you, he is not dealing honestly with you, because your natural teeth are the best you will ever get.

I have devised the best set of artificial teeth that I have ever seen in the twenty-five years of my wide experience. They are not as GOOD as your natural teeth were, but I know they are the best you can get.

If you have ever had a set of artificial teeth, and then wear my kind, you will say, as hundreds of my patients have said, it is the first real comfort you have had in your mouth since you lost your own teeth.

If you have never worn artificial teeth, don't fail to learn about these teeth I make before you decide to have a new set made.

CONSULTATION AND EXAMINATION FREE.

WEST-OF-BROADWAY CONSTRUCTION UNABATED

CLAY STREET IS SCENE OF PROGRESS

$508,000 Auction Sale of Realty Indicates Sound Market

The business portion of Clay street has undergone a remarkable transformation during the last few years, with its acquisition of many large stores housed in modern buildings. The principal shopping district is now on and near that thoroughfare. Its importance has justified the agitation in favor of the extension of the street northward to Twentieth.

The latest improvement is the erection of a seven-story hotel building by Jonathan H. Durst at the northeast corner of Tenth and Clay streets, which is now nearing completion. The structure will greatly increase the importance of that part of Clay and will help to draw shops in that direction from the Fourteenth and Clark retail center.

E. H. Lohmann, broker, has purchased a lot 115x123 on Alice street, 250 feet north of Fifteenth. The price paid by Lohmann for the property is not known, but it is understood to be approximately $38,000. The lot is within 200 feet of the Hotel Oakland, and in a block much in demand by investors for apartment house sites. Six apartment houses have been erected within a stone's throw of Lohmann's purchase within the last year, and work will be commenced on two more within thirty days. The lot adjoins the old Charles Webb Howard homestead lately purchased by Charles Heeseman.

A prominent real estate broker and booster of Oakland is given credit for having made the simplest and strongest argument in the campaign to have the Southern Pacific place Oakland on its railroad map a few years ago. He told a well-known railroad official that a certain young man in one of the southern states twenty-five years ago was unable to find mention of Oakland in the South-

BUILDING IS SHOWING BIG INCREASE

Oakland's Record for March Exceeds That of Greater Cities

Oakland's building record for March makes a fine showing in comparison with that of some of the largest cities of the country. The cost of construction here for the month totals $11,334, while in March of 1912 the cost was $9,116. Oakland's percentage of gain over the same month of last year was 21.

The cost of building in this city during March of this year was greater than that of Cincinnati, Seattle, Washington, D. C., Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Rochester, Pittsburgh, Springfield, Mass., Memphis, Richmond, Va., New Orleans, Atlanta, Toledo, Albany, N. Y., Denver, Omaha, Des Moines and Tacoma.

Oakland's percentage of gain, as well as the month's cost, exceeds that of many of the great metropolitan centers of the United States. Instead of a gain, such cities as New York, Boston, Brooklyn, San Francisco, Portland, Ore., Cincinnati, Seattle, Washington, D. C., Minneapolis, Rochester, N. Y., Pittsburgh, Springfield, Mass., New Orleans and San Diego, show losses, as compared with the same month in 1912.

BUILDING MANY SMALL HOMES.
The demand for one-story dwellings in Oakland continues to be insistent, according to the building records at the city hall, and shows that the middle-class population is increasing steadily and that many who have been occupying old residences are acquiring new homes. Most of those erected are for sale. Whatever fluctuations occur in the weekly cost of building throughout the city, the number of permits remains approximately the same week after week. Although the cost of construction last week totals but $80,035, on account of showers and the detracting influence of the Knights Templar convulsion, the number of one-story dwellings given in the list of permits was 28 and the cost $52,940. The amount represent-ern Pacific folders or to buy a ticket to this city.

"I have the inside dope on this case," said the broker, who happened to be William J. Layman, to the railroad official, "for I am the man who wanted to buy the ticket."

The transportation man afterward admitted that Layman's homely illustration presented the matter to the company in a new light, which caused them to give Oakland fair treatment.

A series of beautiful sepia studies of scenery in the hills and valleys near Oakland is being prepared by a local photographer for the Realty syndicate, which plan to panel the entire sales department offices on the ground floor with typical Oakland views. The set will run in series depicting on an extensive scale the tracts of the syndicate or views in the vicinity of them. Enlarged and stretched over months, these prints will be waxed and mounted under molding, forming a magnificent panorama of some of the beauty spots in Oakland, Piedmont and Berkeley. Several of the studies have been completed although they will not be placed until all are finished. Some of the most effective pictures were taken in Sather Park, Villa Nova and Bohemia, as well as in other syndicate properties, and reveal beautiful landscape scenery unknown to thousands of Oaklanders.

Half of the ground floor of the new Woodward building on San Pablo avenue at Fifteenth street has been leased by Frank J. Woodward, the manager of the Woodward-Cochran Candy Company, Incorporated. A. H. Ackerman, head of the corporation, was in business at Fourteenth and Washington streets for fifteen years up to 1908. Since that date he has had the confectionery department of Kahn Brothers.

The lease is for a period of ten years at a gross rental of about $113,500. This is a record rental for San Pablo avenue. The transaction was handled by Herman Rittigheim, leasing manager of Layman's Real Estate Company. One of the most notable sales of business real estate property in the history of the city, and one showing the great market vitality, was that of the Blake & Moffitt holdings last Monday, when the property totaled $905,000. Much interest was centered in the disposal of the southeast corner of Broadway and Fifteenth street, 191 by 106 feet to W. T. Withers and wife for $475,000. The property is occupied by a three-story frame building. On account of the numerous costly improvements in that district and the expansion of the retail section northward, this corner has greatly increased in value within the last few years. Almost equal-

S. P. RECOGNIZES NEW TOWN, CITRUS

Natomas Irrigated Lands Is Fast Being Developed for Crops.

The new townsite of Citrus, on Natomas Irrigated Lands, has received the official recognition of the Southern Pacific railroad. Manifestations of the possibilities of the future of this town are daily becoming more apparent. The foundation for a new hotel stands completed. This company agrees to spend $26,000 in a plant that will formulate the unit about which future town development will grow. The railroad company is putting in a large platform from which the construction materials will be hauled to be used in the development work on these lands.

Arrangements are now being made to entertain the delegates of the 44th Men's convention to be held in Sacramento on May 19th. There will be a sightseeing tour over the entire Irrigated Lands project, the day ending with a large barbecue.

The new Kahn Arcade building, and one block northward the Carlson & Snyder twelve-story office structure is to be erected this summer. Withers has no present plans for improving the corner, and will hold it as a family investment.

The sale of the Blake & Moffitt building at the northeast corner of Broadway and Eighth street attracted considerable attention as the structure has been regarded as a landmark and was once the headquarters of many professional men. Four-story building can be easily remodeled into a modern office structure. It was purchased at auction by the James K. Moffitt Estate Company for $122,000.

HOME BUILDERS ARE SUCCESSFUL

Concern Makes Good Record for First Three Months of Business.

"An evidence of the interest in real estate in Oakland is shown in the record just made" by the United Home Builders, a new corporation operating in this city. The company has just closed its third month, in which it achieved greater success than the largest companies in Los Angeles scored in their first year.

The United Home Builders is organized along the lines that have proved so successful in Los Angeles and that the idea can be applied so successfully here has much significance. Companies of this kind have had much to do with the prosperity of the southern city, and will have a like good influence on the development of the cities surrounding the bay.

The United Home Builders main tract is located on Piedmont Hill. On this tract they have already sold all but eight lots. The company is now building eleven houses, all but four of which have been sold before completion. Of their completed houses only one remains unsold. Altogether the company has disposed of over $30,000 worth of its property.

The company is owned by 223 shareholders, and the subscribed capital is over $23,000. The first quarterly dividend will be paid next month, the company's books showing an undivided surplus of more than 20 per cent.

NEW APARTMENTS FOR TWELFTH AND MYRTLE

Work is almost completed on designs made by Architects A. F. and O. M. Rousseau of San Francisco, for the erection of a two-story and basement cement and frame building at the northeast corner of Twelfth and Myrtle streets. The building is designed to contain nineteen apartments of two and three rooms each, which are all to be finished in the most up-to-date style. The owner is Mrs. Margaretha S. Gilliam and the cost of the building is to be $28,000.

MT. DIABLO GAINS BY NEW RAILWAY

Seven Daily Trains on Oakland & Antioch Connect With City.

The opening of the Oakland and Antioch Electric Railway, has put Contra Costa county in close touch with San Francisco and Oakland. Seven trains each way daily now enable those living in the Mount Diablo country to get to and from the city almost as easily as though they were living in the city suburbs.

The R. N. Burgess Company who are heavily interested in the Mount Diablo country are running a special excursion every Sunday, the fare being cut to a very low point. Tickets at the cut rate can only be obtained from the San Francisco and Oakland offices of this company.

Special attention is being given by the R. N. Burgess Company to their holdings at Lafayette this coming Sunday. Two tracts are now being put on the market at this point, Lafayette Home Sites and the New Lafayette Town Site. The latter tract will be for sale the first time on this Sunday. Work is being speeded rapidly and soon the cement sidewalks and curbs, the graveled street, water, electricity, etc., will be completed.

ANNEX DISTRICT BOOSTERS ACTIVE

The Annex District Boosters Club held an enthusiastic meeting Friday night at the home of Mrs. J. J. H. and East Fourteenth street. President Tony Mazziotto in the chair. By-laws for the club were adopted. The club endorsed having a mail and fire alarm box to be placed on the corner of Forty-first avenue and East Fourteenth street. The Easter's carnival to be held in Melrose also was endorsed. The club is planning to hold a link on Monday evening, May 5, at the club rooms. The committee in charge Tony Mazziotto chairman, J. T. Thomas, George Ingram, D. M. Haggerty, M. F. Young, Capt. Norburg, Charles Calhoun, L. C. Carden.

COUNTRY LIFE AT BROOKWOOD ACRES

Subdivision on O. & A. Railroad Attractive to Homeseeker.

Percival C. Mills reports great activity in Brook-Wood Acres, the new subdivision recently put on the market in Contra Costa county just north of Walnut Creek. A great deal of inquiry has been for suburban homesites. There seems to be a general trend that way with the idea of getting away from the excitement of city life, in a place where children can go to school enjoying the benefit of the country air and outdoor life. The new Oakland & Antioch railway is operating between Oakland and Walnut Creek, enabling people to make the trip in 30 minutes. This enables business men and those attending the university and children attending school to make the trip daily. The Oakland & Antioch has put on a theater train Saturday nights.

The scenic portion of Brook-Wood Acres is particularly adapted to suburban homesites; its views, trees, running streams, all tend to make an ideal country home within less than 35 minutes by electric road of the bay cities and not over one hour's drive in automobile over the new Tunnel road, which will be a boulevard similar to the Dublin highway.

BERKELEY SEES BUSY YEAR AHEAD

Building Permits for Early Portion of 1913 Shows Big Increase.

BERKELEY, April 18.—The rainy season of the past few weeks, though it has far from halted building operations, or the declaration of plans, has cut down to some extent the number of building permits granted. A number of contractors and owners of property have arranged to begin work as soon as the storms are definitely over, and it is expected the permits issued in May will go well above normal as a result.

An indication of this was to be found in the 104 permits issued in March that totaled $334,850, in the February permits, which numbered 95 aggregated $192,000; and in January's permits numbering 83, representing an outlay of $119,300. For these three months, the first quarter of 1913, the total has been 282 permits totaling $616,650.

Previous years have averaged 2,000,000 a year since 1904, and this twelve months promises to outdo any of its predecessors. The permits that have been issued in the past week have been as follows:
Three-story factory, south side of Grayson street, 600 feet west of Fifth street; West Coast Kalsomine company, owner and builder; $2500.

Two-story 2-room dwelling, west side of Mariposa street, 300 feet south of Los Angeles street, Northbrae terrace, Mabel E. Palmer, owner; A. J. Palmer, builder; $3500.

One-story 3-room cottage, south side of Delaware street, 100 feet east of Center street, Curtis tract, Wesley H. Kocher; $250.

One-story 3-room dwelling, north side of Virginia street, 33 feet west of Eighth street; I. Gorrick, owner, F. R. Peake company, builder; $1400.

One-story 5-room dwelling, west side of Grove street, 190 feet north of Berry street, Live Oak park tract; F. R. Peake company, owner and builder; $2500.

One-story 4-room stone and dwelling, southeast corner of Seventh and Grayson streets, Miss Green, owner; F. N. Lorenzen, builder; $1500.

ing the value of all residences and flats is $72,040 out of the total of $80,038 for the entire week's construction. But one two-story dwelling is provided for in the permits, as compared with the 28 one-story and the four one and one-half story dwellings.

PURCHASE OLD M'CRORY RANCH

A. J. Rich & Company purchased the old McCrory ranch of 1000 acres, adjoining the Pierce ranch, in Solano county, last week, for approximately $100,000.

This property has been added to the Solano Irrigated Farms, Inc., completing the boundaries of this company adjacent to the Muzzy Ranch, purchased several months ago.

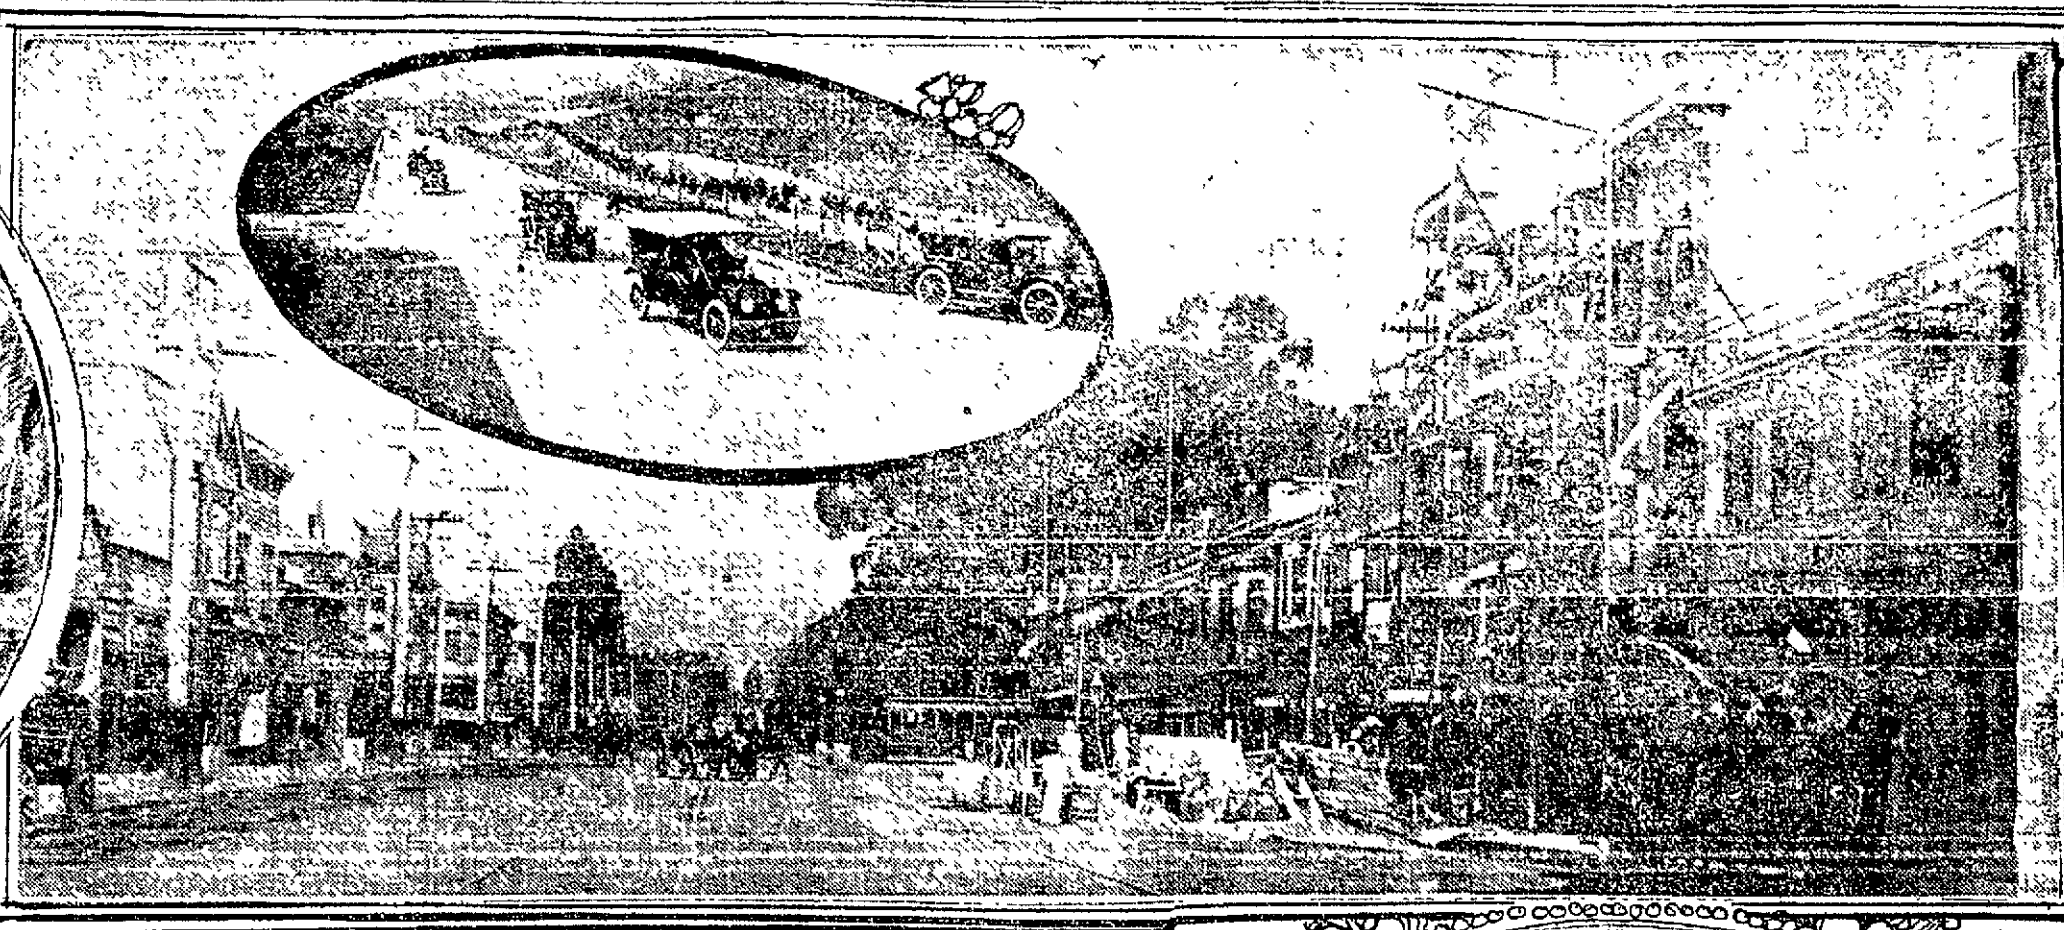

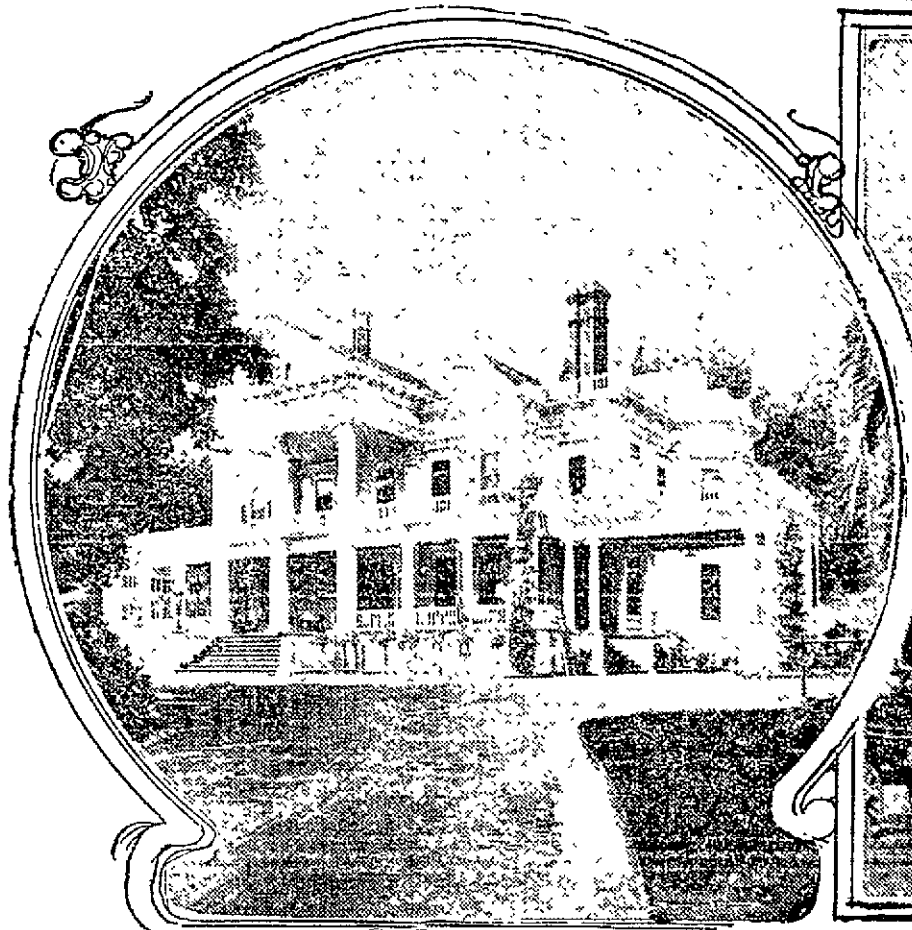

This ranch has for years belonged to the McCrory family, pioneers of Elmdale, who are among the best known sheep men in the United States.

A. J. Rich & Company further announce they will have their offices open at the new city of Solano on May 1 and on May 15 the Oakland, Antioch and Eastern Railway will carry passengers direct from San Francisco to Solano without change, on which date also the land already served by the canal of the Solano Irrigated Farms, Inc., will be thrown open for sale to the public.

OVERSEES HILL'S INTEREST.
ST. PAUL, Minn., April 18.—Carmel Thompson, former treasurer of the United States and former assistant secretary of the Interior, took up his new duties yesterday as general overseer of the Hill interests, according to Louis W. Hill. Mr. Thompson will make his headquarters here.

ANNEXED DISTRICT COMES INTO ITS OWN

TOWNS GROW WITH GREAT RAPIDITY

The annexed district of Oakland is giving proof of its attractions as a residence quarter. Substantial and better class dwellings are rapidly covering the available tracts all the way out as far as Broadmoor. On one tract alone lots were sold in one week for no fewer than nine houses. The San Leandro extension of the Southern Pacific Company has attracted a large number of home-seekers to a district which has hitherto been thinly populated. Real estate men and builders of the East Oakland section say there is a great demand for houses ranging from $2500 to $3000, most of them in the bungalow style. Cement houses are gaining in popularity in this district.

The confidence shown by real estate men and builders in the attractions of the district as a residential quarter is shown by the opening of large tracts, especially along the boulevard, on which homes will be built. Numbers of these tracts have been opened up within the past few months along East Fourteenth street. Wide avenues and sewage systems have been constructed before the erection of residences has commenced. But before the work of preparing the tract has nearly finished home-seekers have set about the erection of attractive residences and where a few months ago was a vacant space of land are now substantial and picturesque bungalows. The extension of the Southern Pacific has resulted in a demand for homesites along the line of extension, and real estate men are opening up subdivisions bordering the tracks.

BUSINESS BUILDINGS. Building of business blocks of the better class is going on briskly, especially along East Fourteenth street. Work has lately been completed on a fine cement and wooden apartment and store two-story building at the corner of East Fourteenth street and Forty-fifth avenue. This building presents a clean, attractive appearance, and is certainly a desirable addition to the business structures in Melrose. Negotiations for the erection of a similar building on the corner of Forty-second avenue and East Fourteenth street are at present being conducted between Blodgett & Shirley and a prospective builder. The $35,000 Knights of Pythias building on East Fourteenth street

Fruitvale, is nearing completion. Built of reinforced concrete and its three stories capped by two imposing towers the Pythian Castle is one of the most imposing buildings in the district, and is a credit to both builders and architect. It is said to be one of the finest and most complete lodge buildings on the coast.

Another substantial and imposing brick building fronting on East Fourteenth street in Fruitvale is the Little Sisters of the Poor Home for the Aged. This building will be ready for occupancy within a few months.

PLAN NEW CHURCH.

Plans are at present under consideration for the erection of a new St. Elizabeth's church, which it is proposed to build on the south side of the Franciscan monastery between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth avenues. The architect is Father Adrian, who designed the Church of St. Boniface in San Francisco, and it is thought that plans somewhat similar to those of the San Francisco church will be adopted. Father Maximilian, who is pastor of the present St. Elizabeth's church, on the north side of the monastery, states that the new church is to be an imposing edifice, although no definite plans have yet been drawn up.

BUILD THEATERS.

Several new theaters have been built in the East Oakland district within the past few months. One of the biggest is the Fremont Picture and Vaudeville house, erected at a cost of $18,000. It is constructed of brick and concrete and is one of the most substantial theaters in the district. Theaters have also been constructed in Fitchburg and Elmhurst. Two new wings to the Fremont high school are almost completed. The addition will give a large amount of extra accommodation to the school, besides adding considerably to its architectural appearance. The erection of the new $200,000 Steinway Terrace public school is also being carried forward rapidly, and marked progress has been made in the two months the work has been in progress.

"Building is on the boom in Elmhurst," said a prominent real estate man in that district. "One of the improvements which will mean much in building progress here, is the installation of a modern sanitary system. The work of the Improvement Clubs in East Oakland is also a big factor in making the district desirable as a residence quarter. Through their efforts many important improvements in the way of lighting, condition of roads and traveling facilities which go to make a district popular have been accomplished.

It is no longer necessary to go to the country to have a country home. The dream of the city man for the bucolic delights of the countryside can be realized in Oakland without passing the city limits. The expansion of the city of Oakland in outlying territory has made this unique condition possible and remarkable development of transportation and other facilities has made homebuilding practical for men of moderate means. The Oakland Annex, lying eastward of the city, in the broad sweep of fertile land from the hills to the bay is the leading district for the new combination country-villa-city home.

The land of the Annex long has been famous for its richness. A substratum of water-bearing gravel only a few feet beneath the surface relieves the horticulturist or the floriculturist of anxiety about rains and water supply and fruits, vegetables and flowers grow there almost magically. Since the farming and pasture land has been cut into city subdivisions homebuilders have been quick to discover the agricultural possibilities of their city lots. As a result the Annex is predicted, will soon be the garden spot of Oakland.

FINE HOMES NUMEROUS.

Along the base of the hills a large number of wealthy men have bought tracts of land for country homes, and within a few years there is promise that the wooded canyons to the north of Foothill Boulevard will be dotted with palatial homes that will rival those of San Mateo county.

L. W. Hellman, Jr., the San Francisco banker, owns an unusually beautiful estate along the boulevard near the Oakland city limits. The mansion of his "Ashvale Park" stands at the bend of a heavily-wooded canyon, the upper and lower ends of which connect with the boulevard, and which affords a country seclusion that gives no suggestion of the nearness of street cars and paved streets and city conveniences.

Under the skillful care of Superintendent T. Breen, the Hellman place has been made a wonder spot of out-of-door beauty. An extensive system of hot-houses and greenhouses is used to propagate a wide variety of flowers. Flow-ers, shrubs, vines and trees have made bowers of the hillside and in no part of the estate has too formal gardening been permitted to mar the natural beauty of the canyon.

On the hillside, facing the boulevard, Hellman has just completed a private golf course, and in complete the establishment he plans to build a swimming pool for the use of his trio of boys.

TRANSPORTATION AID.

One of the chief causes for the rapid development of the Annex as a district of homes has been the extension of transportation facilities. The Southern Pacific is rushing to complete its extension of the Melrose suburban electric line, which will carry passengers through the heart of the district into San Leandro. The Foothill Boulevard, the $300,000 highway built by Alameda county along the base of the hills, has been another potent factor in development. The boulevard has become one of the popular automobile routes to the interior.

In fact he has been crazy for the past 20 years. Unlike the Bavarian monarch's lunacy, that of Prince Henry was not of a violent or suicidal character. In fact he was just an amenable imbecile. He was allowed to move about among his people and chatter with anyone he pleased. One of his chamberlains has told our correspondent the following story of the prince, which, it is said, has not yet been published:

SAYS LEPROSY IS LESS COMMON

Its Eradication. However, Says Surgeon.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Politics is retarding the eradication of leprosy in the Hawaiian Islands, although the dread disease is gradually growing less common through the drying off of the natives according to a report received by the United States Public Health Service from Surgeon George McCoy. Recommendation that periodical examination be made of every one in the islands, says Dr. McCoy, cannot be carried out because of the increased tax that would have to be levied.

"It is only natural," he adds, "that a policy which involves the expenditure of a large part of the public revenues and the employment of a considerable number of persons and that deals directly with a very large proportion of the families of the islands should have played a considerable part in politics and that this has happened in relation to leprosy is beyond doubt. It is believed, however, that the general appreciation of the seriousness of this problem, which has become manifest in recent years is going far to remove the subject from the field of political activity."

Dr. McCoy describes Molokai, the leper settlement, as a veritable garden of Eden, in which the inmates do not toil and around which no guard is thrown. He refers, as proof of the happy situation of the unfortunate, to the "remarkable fact" that frequently when a member of the colony is cured and authorized to leave "a request to be permitted to remain" is frequently made.

A New Face Without Surgical Skin Peeling

"I do not approve of the surgical operation of face peeling," says Julia Orr. "It's too radical, too often dangerous. There's a better way of removing offensive complexion and one that is entirely safe and rational. Ordinary mercerized wax causes the devitalized scarf skin to come off, but gradually and gently. Unlike the surgical process, the skin is not forcibly taken off in big pieces all at once, but almost invisible flaky particles are absorbed by the wax, and from ten days to two weeks are required to complete the transformation. There's no pain, no discomfort. Nature renews complexion the same way, shedding tiny cutaneous scales day by day. But deficient circulation, or other abnormal condition, may interfere with the shedding—a bad complexion results. Then mercerized wax assists. Nature by hastening the removal of the aged, faded or discolored skin. Thus only the lively, young, healthy lined skin is in evidence, as in rubber stretched. This is why mercerized wax produces the indescribable beauty of ever-renewing youth. The wax is put on at night like any cream and removed off in the morning. You can procure it at any drug store; an ounce is sufficient."

DAY OF JUDGMENT IS A CIVIC PLAN

Language Misinterpreted Says
Prof. Haupt; Beelzebub, the Father of "Flies."

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—That there is no biblical foundation for the story of the final day of judgment was declared by Professor Paul Haupt of Johns Hopkins University in an address yesterday before the American Philosophical Society.

"The Book of Zachariah, which Jews as well as Christians give as authority for the description of the last judgment," he said, "refers merely to a municipal plan for municipal improvements laid out by the monarchs. The poetic and fanciful language of the scriptural scribes has been misinterpreted."

The speaker also declared that Beelzebub had been described by the ancients as the father of flies, not lies, as the modern horror of those germ carrying insects was shared in by biblical times.

THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-DRESSED FOLK

AN APRIL SHOWER

ELEANOR DEAR:

We had such a perfect time at Edna Howell's linen shower, I know you will enjoy hearing about it. Edna is to be married the eleventh of June, so Margaret Seaton invited us to an April shower for her. You wrote that you intended to entertain for a prospective bride—why not repeat Margaret's success?

Directly over the dining table was suspended a pomegranate-colored parasol, and hanging from this, at equal intervals, were small clusters of red geraniums and jonquils. Tiny Japanese parasols served as place cards and the centerpiece was of geraniums and jonquils. Margaret's stunning frock was of the Russian-blouse type, caught in at the normal waist line with a sash-girdle of dark-blue satin. Tomato-red satin fashioned the blouse, and the collar, cuffs and hand trimming the top of the sleeve were of Suzerian embroidery in tones of red, yellow, green and blue. The skirt accompanying this blouse was of dark-blue satin. Sublimely-colored linen was used for a pretty frock worn by Mabel Carter. An oddly shaped yoke follows the shoulder line and forms a short bolero-jacket effect in front. Edna, as you know, is partial to extreme modes and wore a smart costume with a short jacket of Japanese silk in tones of gray and blue. Frills of cream lace finished the neck line and the sleeves. This was worn over a frock of accordion-pleated cream-colored chiffon.

At the bargain counter several weeks ago I bought a remnant of dove-gray crepe de chine and made a lovely afternoon gown. The bodice has a deep V-shaped opening at the neck, which is filled in with a chemise of white crepe de chine. Covered buttons and simulated buttonholes trim the bodice front, and a frill of lace trims the neck. The sleeves are long and joined to the dropped shoulder seams with a piping of the material. From beneath the crushed giraffe of rose-colored satin falls the slightly draped skirt. I am very proud of my handiwork.

Mother is coming to visit us during May, and I shall try to persuade her to spend the summer with us at the cottage. You and your family are scheduled for July, so arrange your plans accordingly.

By the way, have you heard that little Bobby Campbell is engaged? And to whom, do you suppose? Some other than Eugenia Morris? Can you imagine the combination? This savors of gossip, so I had better cease. With my best love to you.

MADGE.

NEWS FROM the OLD WORLD

SUNDAY MORNING

OAKLAND TRIBUNE

NEW OPERA OF POWER STIRS PARIS

Islandic Romance Is Set to Haunting Music by Guy Ropartz.

It Is Faure's Penelope and Styled by Critics the Most Beautiful Work of Day.

(By CHARLES HENRY MELTZER.)

PARIS, April 19.—The projected journey of President Poincaré to England without waiting for King George to come to Paris has strengthened the already friendly ties between France and England. Each day adds to the confidence and liking of this nation for its executive.

Unusual sympathy was shown to M. Poincaré this week when he was called away to attend his mother's funeral. This family bereavement has, of course, compelled M. Poincaré to defer entertaining at the Elysee. But, like her husband, she is well aware that there is nothing more lovely than a dull regime, and at the earliest moment possible she will resume her social duties.

The chief musical event this week in Paris has been the production at the Opera Comique of two new works, each in its way of very genuine interest. The first, a charming one-act "lyric tale" named "There was a Shepherdess," tells with much charm in speech and tones of the vain effort of a beautiful princess to lure a shepherd from his chosen village sweetheart. The libretto, by Andre Riviere, is deftly written, and the music, by a young and gifted composer, Marcelle Lattes, fascinates no less by its abundant melody than by its modern harmony. This dainty work may be worth hearing by Oscar Hammerstein and the librettists.

OPERA FOR AMERICAN.

Of vastly more importance, though less likely to delight Americans, was a three-act opera entitled "The Old Home" of Guy Ropartz, a composer who until now has devoted his unusual powers chiefly to symphonies. Ropartz is a disciple of Cesar Franck, who has spent half his life in Nancy, which ancient city he has made a great music center.

The scenes in this opera are laid in Iceland and the unfolding of the plot requires three singers, but neither chorists nor ballet. The book, by Charles Le Goffic, deals with the tragedy of Tual, a shipwrecked Breton, who loves and marries a young Icelandic maid named Koethe. Homesick, she sets him yearning for his native land and on arrival of a Breton fishing fleet he leaves his wife only to be swallowed up in a dread northern quicksand.

In his setting of this stern and simple tale the composer has proved himself a master. His music is austere and strangely eloquent; too strenuous, perhaps, and lacking contrast, but original. Among its most striking episodes are an important prelude, richly and boldly orchestrated, a Breton air and a symphonic passage lasting seven or eight minutes, played in the last act while Tual sits at night beside his wife dreaming of Brittany.

The approaching production of Gabriel Faure's much-talked-of opera, "Penelope," at the Theatre des Champs Elysees, is eagerly awaited here. Pierre Lato, an exacting critic, after hearing this work at Monte Carlo said this in his usual forthright way, that he considered it not only beautiful, but the most beautiful of all the operas heard in his own day. "Penelope" may therefore prove a godsend for the new Paris opera house, which, notwithstanding the artistic interest of its performances, has not been drawing so well as was expected.

HER DREAM THEATER.

Isadora Duncan, who is now dancing at the Chatelet, tells me she has not yet ventured to begin building her dream theater in the Rue de Berri, owing to continual differences with the Paris building commission. She says she will build a theater in the Rue de la Harpe, which she will call the "Theater of the Future." She is now in London, where she is working on her new opera, "The Masked Knight" of Parmentier and J. Massenet, which she is to produce at the Theatre Antoine. It deals with a mysterious intruder, who defies the police, with a heroic young gentleman, with a devoted lover with a criminal nobleman and other characters. It abounds in adventure, it has tragic and comic incidents and it is played with power and skill by Gemma, a great actor.

One of the most notable events of the Parisian season was the delightful musicale of the "Dixie Club" given at the Hotel de Ville. Among the guests were several American Americans. Princess Guy de Lucigny-Lucinge, Duchess de la Rochefoucauld, Marquise de Talleyrand-Perigord, Mme. Melnikoff, and Comtesse de Saxe-Coburg.

ROMANCE OF MISS GRACE JOSEPH. The romance of Miss Grace Joseph, daughter of the American consul, which began a year ago in Washington, and Hugh Macaulay, a Washington architect, is likely to culminate on her marriage will take place in May. If not all the American people in this country will be invited to the ceremony.

The recent return from America of Mrs. Van Allen Shields, director of the American "Students' Club," founded here by Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, celebrated by an outbreak of enthusiastic tea drinking.

Henry Russell, undisturbed by his late troubles and alarms, is at his new Paris headquarters, making arrangements for another Boston opera season.

George Grey Barnard, a distinguished sculptor, is also here. Among other recent arrivals are Mrs. G. A.

BRILLIANCE MARKS LONDON EVENTS

Balls, Horse Shows and Outdoor Sports Prove Great Attraction.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

LONDON, April 19.—London is fast filling up and the presence of an unusual number of Americans this early in the season is notable.

The postponed ball which is to be given by Lady Paget and Sara M. Stevens at the Royal Hospital in Dublin on Monday next, promises to be a very brilliant affair. There are to be about 400 guests. Lady Paget has been giving a house party which includes Lord and Lady Barrymore, Lord Grey, the Marchioness of Ormond and Gen. Uitenhove.

Lady Naylor Leyland, who was to have entertained largely at Hyde Park house, has been unexpectedly placed in mourning by the sudden death of her nephew, Ronald, 15 years old, who died after one day's illness.

The Duchess of Marlborough will have a number of relatives staying with her at Cumberland house during the summer and her mother, Mrs. Belmont, will be visiting for at least two months in this country.

Dr. and Mrs. Derby (Ethel Roosevelt) are expected for a few weeks' visit to London in June, and according to their present arrangements will visit the international horse show.

Mrs. Sam Newhouse is now hunting in Paris and will return in a week. Lord and Lady Granard are at Forbes House for the season. Mrs. Peter Ken Smiley has returned from three months' visiting abroad and is in London for the season.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman, widow of the famous financier, with her daughter, has arrived at the Ritz hotel from Paris. They will sail shortly for New York. Their arrival in London created something of a sensation by reason of the big retinue of servants accompanying them.

Mrs. Watts Sherman is still at the Ritz hotel, but spends most of her time with her daughter, Lady Camoro, who is expecting an interesting event shortly. Mrs. James Henry Smith, with the Duchess de Viseu, has gone to Paris. She expects to return to London in a few days. Mrs. Joseph Stickney is going to the continent for a short visit.

'TEA GOWN DREAM,' VERDICT OF MANY

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

LONDON, April 19.—The smartest wedding by far this season, was that of Lady Beatrice Edith Mildred Cecil, daughter of the Marquis of Salisbury, who married the Hon. W. Ormsby Gore, and those who were privileged to see the trousseau which the bride took away with her describe her gowns as bewitching.

For one of her gowns Lady Beatrice chose white tulle over a soft satin which has the fashionable crepe finish. This is embroidered in pale, shaded tones of maize and made with a turnover collar of soft creamy lace and hanging ruffles of the same.

Black lace mounted over a palest pink foundation forms the base of another trousseau gown. A quaint circle of cut jet encircles the waist while there are little pompadour bows of pink and blue introduced into the scheme. One afternoon frock in black crepe with a statuette draped skirt has red lace embroidered in oriental colorings and a softening of snow white at the open throat while a tea gown is in blue chartreuse with loose sleeves of the same color and a deep V at the throat and is filled with softly falling lace.

Some of the latest tailormade suits are very mannish and Lady Beatrice has a particularly smart one carried out in soft gray cashmere. The neat cutaway coat is fastened with two big, enameled pearl buttons, while the collar and cuffs are carried out in gray moire of the exact tint of the coat. The cut of the latter is a suggestion of a man's morning coat and the skirt is of an entirely new style, being cleverly shaped.

The materials are wrapped over on one side and caught with a little curved strap studded with buttons. This species of overdress is rounded off, while at the back there is a long, pointed panel gathered at the waist into a little strap with a button on each side.

The young Astors now have four residences—Cliveden on the Thames, a house in St. James' square, London, a house in Plymouth which Mr. Astor represents in Parliament, and Rest Harrow, which is really a golfing lodge.

ASPHYXIATING REVOLVER HELPS CAPTURE MADMAN

PARIS, April 19.—The Paris police have made use for the first time of the asphyxiating revolver which were recently invented with the object of overcoming criminals offering desperate resistance, as in the case of the motor car bandits.

A young Crook, residing with his family at Passy, whose mind has been unbalanced for some time, became extremely violent, smashing the furniture in his room.

Then he barricaded his room and began firing through his door, resisting all efforts to capture him.

The police, on being called in, approached the room with steel buckles and discharged their asphyxiating revolvers through a casement, filling the room with a deadly gas.

In a few minutes the youth was half suffocated and quietly surrendered.

PROMINENT AMERICANS STAYING AT LAUSANNE

LAUSANNE, April 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Franklin and Abbott S. Stuart, Jr., are at the Beau Rivage. Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Chandler are at the Mont Fleur. Edwin L. Reynolds of Washington at the British. Mrs. W. H. Wilson of Cleveland is at the Beau Sejour.

NEWSPAPER WRECKS WHOLE HAPPY HOME

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

PARIS, April 19.—Boulevardiers are mourning over two pigeons which few weeks ago built their nest in a tree at the corner of the Rue Drouot and the Grand Boulevard. The passing of motor-omnibuses and cabs did not disturb the birds in the slightest. They were plentifully supplied with food by the proprietors of the restaurant before whose windows they had taken up their abode.

The other day a gust of wind sent a newspaper into the tree where the nest was sitting on two eggs. When its mate tried to tear the newspaper away the nest fell to the ground. The female bird was picked up by a policeman. The male bird flew away and has not been seen since.

BOY HANGS HIMSELF IN STRANGE MANNER

LONDON, April 19.—The death of an eleven-year-old boy, Albert Berrow, who was found hanging by a muffler from the banisters at his home in Halberton street, Birmingham, has been reported to the Birmingham.

The boy is described by his mother as having been very imaginative and imitative. He spent a good deal of his time at picture places, and the mother thinks that he was influenced by melodramatic pictures. He has often referred to stories of hanging.

Members of the family say it is probable that the boy was attempting an experiment, and met his death by misadventure.

OUR DESCENT IS NOW TRACED FROM BULLFROG

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

PARIS, April 19.—The Latin Quarter this week turned out in its thousands to celebrate the advent of Pierre Brisset, an old gentleman from Angoumois whom it had christened as "Prince of Thinkers." This proud distinction has been earned by the discovery by M. Brisset that man is descended, not as Darwinians think, from monkeys, but from a bullfrog.

After escorting M. Brisset triumphant to the Pantheon to see Robin's statue of "The Thinker," a noisy crowd of students carried off their "prince" to a lecture room where he had won much and loud applause.

DIPHTHERIA SERUM FOUND IN GERMANY

WIESBADEN, Germany, April 19.—The discovery of a method of producing immunization against diphtheria consists of an injection of a mixture of diphtheria toxin and anti-toxin is announced by Professor Emil von Behring of the University of Marburg, at the Congress of Internal Medicine, now in session here. Professor Behring offers to supply clinics with the new prophylactic under proper guarantees of observation and registration.

They Are Prominent

MISS GERTIE MILLAR has held undivided supremacy in London musical comedy. Miss Millar, who in private life is Mrs. Lionel Monckton, the wife of the well-known composer, possesses a delightfully decided voice and a dainty and attractive personality.

MLLE. MARIE LOUISE DERVAL is a well-known French actress, who has made so many successes at the Sarah Bernhardt theater, Paris. Mlle. Derval has been described by a prominent Parisian theatrical critic as "the personification of classical grace and beauty," and it is likely that few who study the above portrait of this favorite will be likely to dispute the critic's good judgment.

MISS NILA DEVI is a young American dancer who is at present the reigning novelty of social and theatrical Paris. Miss Devi appeared the other evening before the American ambassador at the annual banquet of the American Club. She wears a remarkable costume composed chiefly of rare jewels. She also appears in quite a new stage setting representing a study from the goddess of the Guimet museum in Paris.

LADY DUFFERIN was before her marriage a Miss Davis and hailed from New York. Her husband has a post in the foreign office and a charming town house in that increasingly fashionable locality, Fanny Hill. They have three daughters.

MISS OLIVE SNELL is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Snell of 5 Rutland Gate, and Durban, South Africa, whose engagement to Captain Eben Lecky Pike, Grenadier Guards, is just announced. Miss Snell, who is tall, dark and one of the rapidly-growing number of Englishwomen who know what to wear and how to wear it, is very talented and popular among a large circle of friends.

MISS RENA WALKER is a charming American actress who has just arrived in England and who is at present making a big hit in that ever-amusing revue, "Kill that Fly," at the Alhambra.

EXTORTIONER PROVES TO BE AN EX-POLICEMAN

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

PARIS, April 19.—A wealthy lady, Mme. de Bayonne, who lives in a castle near Bayonne, has received several threatening letters, one of which stated: "The Black Gang, which has associates all over Europe, and which the amount to be contributed by rich people to their funds according to the extent of their fortune and the number of their children, deprecates that Mme. de Bayonne, if she wishes her life to be spared, shall at once give $50,000 to the Black Gang."

Mme. de Bayonne informed a police officer and by their instructions the money was handed over. The authorities then arrested the culprit, an ex-policeman named Labat.

BEAUTY QUEEN HOLDS REIGN IN LONDON

Miss Gwendolyn H. Cook Presented at Court Receives Flattering Admiration.

Hon. Mrs. A. P. Bennett of Lady Arlington's Set in Direct Competition.

(By W. ORTON TEWSON)

LONDON, April 17.—Two new beauties have arisen in London. One is a matron and the other is a maid.

The former is the Hon. Mrs. Andrew Percy Bennett, wife of the commercial attaché to the British embassy at Vienna and Rome, and who may be remembered in New York as the British consul there. Mrs. Bennett belongs to what is known as "Lady Arlington's set" and in this group she has entered into direct competition with such famous beauties as Miss Maxine Elliott and Miss Muriel Wilson.

Not only is Mrs. Bennett's beauty of a most pronounced type, but she affects the unusual in dress and already, even in these days of untrammelled fancy in costume, she has succeeded in creating a mode.

The unmarried beauty is Miss Gwendolyn Hague Cook, eldest daughter of Mrs. Hague-Cook of 41 Hill street, Berkeley Square. Miss Gwendolyn was presented at court on Feb. 25 and at once "leaped into fame." Hitherto unknown, except in her own little exclusive coterie, Miss Hague-Cook has become a London "belle" and the weekly illustrated papers are doing their best to turn her pretty head.

Neither of these new beauties, however, fails to shake the popularity of Lady Diana Manners, the pretty and athletic daughter of the Duchess of Rutland, who has made a good recovery from her recent illness. She is very popular with the American set here and has promised to pay a short visit to the United States after the London season.

Her name, by the way was given her in honor of "Diana of the Crossways," written by George Meredith. She is eminent by a country girl; she rides, walks, plays golf, hockey and lately has become a keen motorist. Lady Diana has been painted by noted artists and when a mere girl her portrait by Shannon caused quite a sensation when exhibited.

She is fair, has blue eyes, golden hair and a fine figure and she is well known, having often appeared as a singer, dancer and soloist at charitable entertainments.

For several years past there has been a tendency to begin the London season earlier than formerly, when no one thought of entertaining or indeed, coming up to town until the beginning of May. Nowadays there is always more or less of a season-in-fact, this year, well American hostesses gave a ball before April had even begun. Since then there has been a comparatively quiet time, but next week will see the opening of grand opera as well as the beginning of dances.

Already most of the May evenings are booked by hostesses who do not wish to compete with the more ambitious balls of the later season. Later, too, when the courts, the Derby and Ascot week are things of the past, we shall hear of some great dinners and balls for all accounts the thing and queen will go out to a great deal this season. The Duchess of Portland, the Duchess of Devonshire, Lady Granard and a number of others are to be honored by the presence of royalty.

It is likely, from all one sees, to be a decidedly festive season, this gay time of 1913—for those who entertain and are entertained. The scale of luxury that obtains in society continually is on an upward trend. Elaborate suppers have taken the place of simple affairs that ten years ago satisfied ball goers and dinners, if shorter, are more chic and more frequent, while luncheons of many courses have taken the place of outlet and rice which were considered adequate for the midday meal in Victorian days.

LONDON ZOO HAS YOUNG SPORTSMEN

Report New Monkey Game Inspired by Department Store Cash-Carrier.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

LONDON, April 19.—Promises to be a successful game season opened in London recently. A band of young sportsmen corralled a fine elephant at the zoo, and in hatches rode it round the grounds.

A real camel, complete with the maximum number of humps, was also captured near the refreshment room, and was successfully driven by several juvenile hunters across the desert past the bandstand to the oasis where the ducks live.

Bold hunters who have returned from the hinterland where the monkeys have their haunts report a remarkable new game, which is now being played by the monkeys.

The idea seems to be that the particularly agile monkeys pretend to be the little automatic cash-carriers in a large department store. The game opens when monkey No. 1 pulls the tail of monkey No. 2 and then darts round the cage in a series of loops, and swings to the far corner, pauses a moment as if waiting for the change and then hurtles back to the same counter from which it started.

MOTORISTS MAKE AIX THEIR MECCA ON TRIPS

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

AIX LES BAINS, April 19.—There has been quite an influx of society people, including many Americans, during the week. The Hotel Excelsior registrations include Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. Brockington, and Mrs. G. A. Gane, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Swift of Chicago.

The Alphon opened early and has many guests including Mr. and Mrs. Burn of New York. There are many Americans at the Barracoon Hotel, which last week was at the splendid, which has a new wine making Aix their Mecca.

ONLY CHANGED METHOD, NOT POLICY

England's Relations to Other Countries Remains Neutral as Before.

New Alliances Merely Indicate That Different Plan is Used to Attain Goal.

(By PHILLIP EVERETT.)
LONDON, April 19.—It is becoming daily more evident that in England's policy it is the method only, not the object, which has changed. It is an absolute mistake to suppose that the entire policy means a radical change from the old free lance policy. On the continent this has been hoped and feared and on the continent there are perhaps people who will believe so.

Most emphatically it is only the method which has changed. Times, people and conditions on the continent and all over the world have changed and with these the means by which England endeavors to accomplish her plans and purposes have changed. The goal, on the other side, is still unchanged and what decides this goal is as always the answer to the question, "Where lie England's true interests?" In the midst of all the noise which has been made over the entente cordiale and the triple entente, people have forgotten that these ententes are really of mere secondary importance to England, that neither one nor the other is an object in itself, and that their usefulness as means towards an end is not always the same. At the present moment the moulders of England's policy are carefully considering the question, "Are these ententes still useful as means to further the interests of England?"

CAN'T BE ALLY.
And true to English traditions, this question will be answered, considering each single case by itself. England is no more able today to be a faithful friend and ally than she has been able to be so in the past. England has been denied here that England under certain conditions was at least morally obliged to send troops to the continent and there was therefore absolutely nothing sensational or surprising in Asquith's famous statement in the House of Commons a month ago, England has, of course, never committed herself in writing to do so and what her leading statesmen may have said to this effect will certainly never be taken into consideration. If France has ever believed that England has ever committed herself to do so, she has been caught by mere confidence trick. In considering the conclusions which England draws from the entente cordiale, one is apt to forget that the only conclusions which count are those which are dictated by her own policy. England's interests are not, as some have considered, interests and that these undoubtedly would be exactly the same if no entente cordiale existed.

But where do England's interests lie? It has always been said that England wanted no power to be aligned on the continent and surely no absolutely supreme power on the continent would be a thorn in England's flesh today. Possibly England might, therefore, find it to her interest to interfere if France were attacked by Germany, but though English traditions now, always, have opposed to an all crushing craving for power, conditions have, however, changed so much that England wants a bloody struggle between France and Germany less than anything else. Should England interfere in case of such a war, it would certainly be only in order to end the war as soon as possible.

IS CONFLICT PROBABLE.
The question then is this: Do the English people believe in the probability of such a conflict? Do they believe that Germany may strike at France and that England may be compelled to assist her ally in her own interest? And the answer to these questions must be, that even Germanophile Englishmen, who have hitherto refused to believe that Germany might ever make an offensive war policy, have lately changed opinion and the reason is first to be sought in the book by the German General von Bernhardi, whose chief idea is that Germany may be forced to strike every body and that she will be very long before she can be stopped.

FRENCH ANGRY AT GERMAN INSULTS

Feeling Grows That War is Inevitable to Uphold French Honor.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
PARIS, April 19.—It really looks as if the Kaiser's government were determined to provoke French hatred of Germany to the point where patience must break and France will be forced into war as she was when Bismarck falsified the Ems dispatch in 1870. The war against French sentiment and French language in the lost but not yet conquered provinces of Alsace-Lorraine has been renewed with a severity and bitterness unknown since the last years of the reign of the present Kaiser's grandfather. The Alsatian-Lorraine souvenir has been suppressed. Prominent leaders like Abbe Wetterle, Preiss and Langel, as well as a number of newspapers written in French are being persecuted in the most malicious manner. French and Swiss citizens are being expelled en masse, the whole provinces have been closed to national sportsmen without any explanation and the associations of the war veterans of 1870 have been brutally dissolved.

But even all this does not satisfy the German jingo press which has evidently received the signal to keep on shouting for more severity. Any care-keeper refusing to prohibit the sale of French at his establishment is put on the "index" by the military authorities, who may arbitrarily close his place whenever they want to. Only a few days ago a well-known cafe at Strassburg was closed because the proprietor had permitted drinks to be served to some former members of the Foreign Legion, and the man who was instrumental in having the French monument erected at "Weissenburg," August 1909, has been banished from the country. His business as a painter at Weissenburg has been boycotted and though he did not like to leave the monument he loved, he has been compelled to come to France to make another home.

CALENDAR UNIFIED.
At the suggestion of H. Deslandres, director of the observatory at Meudon, the question of unifying the Gregorian and Greek calendars is soon to be brought up at the meeting of the International Association of Science at St. Petersburg. The proposal of M. Deslandres will almost certainly result in Russia giving up her old fashioned calendar, which keeps her and the other Greek Catholic countries which follow her example thirteen days behind the actual time, for with the improved facilities and frequent communication with the West, which is increasing by leaps and bounds, Russia is beginning to find it too burdensome to figure with two sets of dates, nor is the fact without importance that the new republic of China has adopted the Gregorian calendar.

FARMER ARRESTED.
Parisians had quite a fright the other day for just after the usual roll of drums at night had signaled the closing of the grounds of the Malmaison Elisees to the public, a tall broad shouldered man rushed from somewhere and began to shake the massive gates, shouting that he wanted to get into the palace and see President Poincare. Arrested by the gendarmes, he was taken to the nearest police station. In spite of his struggles and when a heavy key was turned, he was found in his possession no one doubted that he had intended the president to share the fate of King George of Greece.

When the supposed would-be assassin was taken before a magistrate, he was found to be a harmless farmer from Normandy who had come to Paris to see the sights and principally to see the president. On the day of his arrival he had in his pocket a letter from his wife who had offered him a sum of money to go to the English press of secret flights of German Zeppelins over England are ample proofs of this. Last night, Germany's sudden effort in the way of new gigantic armaments have convinced the English people so fully of Germany's aggressive aims, that even the hitherto dreaded prospect of a tunnel under the channel has suddenly become popular.

Englandmen have, besides, not yet forgotten how Germany's as well as the Kaiser's sympathies were with their enemies in the Boer war.

NEW SERVICE MANUAL GIVES SOLDIER DUTIES

VIENNA, April 19.—A new service manual for Austrian soldiers who act as servants to officers has just been issued, written "by one of us who has had long years of experience." It is laid down that a soldier-servant must know a housemaid's duties thoroughly and also have a complete knowledge of valeting. He must know how to wait at table and be an expert at opening champagne bottles. He should also have practice in washing legs and cleaning out bird cages. These are his duties in times of peace.

When on campaign or at maneuvers time he must, on arriving at a strange place, immediately forage for suitable furniture for the officers' quarters. He should then close the windows and kill all the mosquitoes, fleas and other vermin, and scatter insect powder on the floor. Such, says the Arbeiter Zeitung, are the duties of the brave defenders of our hearths and homes.

CHILDREN OF SUICIDE WANT TO DIE WITH HER

PARIS, April 19.—Owing to her poverty Mme. Roullan, a widow, aged 32, living at Puteaux, committed suicide, with her two little daughters, aged 11 and 11.

Mme. Roullan sent her children to buy charcoal which was used to suffocate all three. The widow left a bitter letter to her mother, and her children added a few words. She said: "We want to die with mother. She does not want to kill us, but we wish to die so as to be with her. The other had written in a trembling scrawl, 'I want to die with mother.'"

CHINESE MANAGER SHOT FOR ABDUCTING FAMILY

BERLIN, April 19.—Ma Ise-yung, manager of a troupe of Chinese acrobats known as the "Imperial Manchus," performing at a Berlin music hall, was shot and severely wounded at his lodgings by a chauffeur who alleged that the Chinaman had abducted his wife and child.

According to the statements published in the newspapers the wife was returned from London, where she is supposed to have left the chauffeur's wife. The chauffeur, it is said, told him he could keep his wife if he would return the child, but the Chinaman refused to say where the woman was.

MILITARY TAX MEANS HEAVY BURDEN

German Government Now Has Support of All Parties in Expensive Program.

Only Question for Reichstag to Decide in Method of Raising Money.

(By FREDERICK WERNER.)
BERLIN, April 19.—As the first excitement dies out and the various parties, with the exception of the Socialists, are arriving at the conclusion that the strengthening of the army and the frontier fortification or our Eastern frontier was an almost absolute necessity for the safety of the empire, it becomes more and more evident that the Reichstag need only consider the financial side of the question, which of course is the most important, and perhaps limit the expense to what must be absolutely necessary. There is no getting away from the fact that while the German nation is not lacking in patriotism, and is perfectly willing to make further sacrifices to safeguard the empire against the possibility of a future attack, it demands that our finances must be put on a sound basis.

There are many arguments against the contemplated sacrifice which the Kaiser asked. But the people are nevertheless as a whole ready to make this sacrifice. Because for the first time, the principle has been voiced from above that citizens should contribute in proportion to their financial ability, the heaviest burden falling on the rich and well-to-do. It will be the task of the Reichstag to emphasize this principle as strongly as possible and lay the foundation of a really just and equitable system of income and fortune for the whole empire.

COST IS ENORMOUS.
The greatest trouble is that it is not only a large sum, but a very large amount, once, but also to find a way to raise the annual expenses. To meet these an amount of $50,000,000 must be found each year. If the united German Empire had at once decided in favor of a uniform and just imperial inheritance tax, no very serious objections would have been made against the new burdens, but the longer the debates of the Bundesrat are continued the more the plan of a tax on fortune is pushed into the background, and instead of imposing an imperial tax, Bundesrat seems more and more inclined to leave the solution of the difficult task to the states, which certainly cause considerable difficulties.

At any rate, the whole press disagrees as to what is to be done by the government and council.

The "Taschliche Rundschau" asserts that the Federal Council proposes to put a tax of five per cent on capital, calculating the total taxable capital at $50,000,000. The "Lokal Anzeiger" on the other hand, says that the government also proposes to introduce a tax on matches, burning spirit and cigarettes. Thus indirect taxation forms part of the government proposals, and doubtless, as the "Vossische Zeitung" has pointed out, the suggestion thrown out by some Conservatives that the Reichstag may be invited to introduce a tax on the military proposals without comment or criticism.

PROPOSAL WOULD FAIL.
Both the Conservative and Center parties, however, have no chance of being accepted. Frankly, nobody acquainted with the lamentable inefficiency of the German Reichstag expects its election to pass a law which would impose a tax on the military proposals without comment or criticism.

BUTTERFLY CHASE RIGHT CONCEDED

Naturalist Secures Same Privilege Granted Baron Charles de Rothschild.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
VIENNA, April 19.—A singular conflict, unique of its kind, concerning the discovery of an extremely rare species of butterfly, has recently been proceeding between Baron Charles de Rothschild and the Hungarian National Museum at Budapest. Baron Charles, whose private collection of insects and butterflies is unrivaled, lately paid a visit to his wife's relations in Hungary, utilizing the occasion at the same time to complete his butterfly collection, as he had heard that a certain rare species, unknown elsewhere was to be found in Hungary.

The Baron placed himself in communication with the officials of the entomological section of the National Museum, whose many thousands of specimens he carefully studied. The official naturalist of the museum, Dr. Schmidt, directed the Baron's attention to a species of butterfly known in other parts of Europe, but which appears on the Imperial estates at Pester, in Hungary. As the Hungarian papers state, Baron Charles acquired from the director of this domain the exclusive right to capture butterflies there, while Dr. Schmidt, commissioned by the National Museum, for the same purpose, also arrived at Pester, but was refused admission.

The museum, therefore, lodged a complaint to the Ministry, which passed it to the Vienna court marshal's office, under whose jurisdiction this domain lies. The court marshal's office decided that Baron de Rothschild had no exclusive right to catch butterflies on the Imperial estates, and that the representative of the museum was also at liberty to pursue his naturalist studies there.

MAMMON PROMPTS CRUEL MURDER FOR REVENGE

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
PARIS, April 19.—A railway employe named Emile Rouman, going home for his maddy meal, found his 13-year-old daughter shot dead. The child's stepmother and the latter's 13-year-old daughter had disappeared, carrying off Rouman's savings. The woman left behind the following confession: "Rouman, I have killed your daughter. As there is no more happiness possible for me, I am going to kill myself, but I beseech you to pay to my daughter what you owe her."

Rouman married the woman, then a widow, about 18 months ago, but they had quarreled about money matters. The woman recently bought a revolver and told her husband and would use it unless he repaid to her daughter some money which she declared he owed to her.

HINDOO PRACTICE OF 'SUTTEE' STILL OCCURS

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
CALCUTTA, April 19.—Three cases of "suttee"—self immolation of a faithful Hindu wife after the death of her husband—have occurred here recently. In one case a woman threw herself on the funeral pyre of her husband and was seriously burned. Two other women saturated their clothing with oil and set fire to themselves with fatal results. The practice of "suttee" is forbidden by the British government.

LANDMARK TO GO

On Tuesday the famous Cafe Anglais, one of the old landmarks of Paris, where the fast youth and the gourmets of former generations and their principal rendezvous for more than half a century, will be sold under the auctioneer's hammer and habitues of 50 years ago, if any of them are still alive, will have a last chance of buying part of a bench or a chair, to keep as a memento. The cafe, which has been the last of the old landmarks of Paris, will be sold by the famous auctioneer, M. de la Roche, who has been in the business for many years. ## NEW SERVICE MANUAL GIVES SOLDIER DUTIES

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
VIENNA, April 19.—A new service manual for Austrian soldiers who act as servants to officers has just been issued, written "by one of us who has had long years of experience." It is laid down that a soldier-servant must know a housemaid's duties thoroughly and also have a complete knowledge of valeting. He must know how to wait at table and be an expert at opening champagne bottles. He should also have practice in washing legs and cleaning out bird cages. These are his duties in times of peace.

CHINESE MANAGER SHOT FOR ABDUCTING FAMILY

BERLIN, April 19.—Ma Ise-yung, manager of a troupe of Chinese acrobats known as the "Imperial Manchus," performing at a Berlin music hall, was shot and severely wounded at his lodgings by a chauffeur who alleged that the Chinaman had abducted his wife and child.

According to the statements published in the newspapers the wife was returned from London, where she is supposed to have left the chauffeur's wife. The chauffeur, it is said, told him he could keep his wife if he would return the child, but the Chinaman refused to say where the woman was.

VIEWS AND REVIEWS OF WHAT WORLD IS DOING

SUFFRAGE WARRIORS SWEEP COUNTRY WITH WAR-CRY

FROM their vantage point of achievement the women of California can watch with a somewhat impersonal interest the battle of others of their sex for the franchise elsewhere. That they do feel in spite of this possibility, an interest almost personal is due to a fact that is being more and more recognized daily, that the fight for suffrage is no more a localism than the fight for civilization or any other of the blessings it brings. Probably no single question of the age, beyond such ephemeral ones as a great disaster or a national election, is being given such widespread attention. The women are to blame; they simply will not let their own chief interest fall anywhere into innocuous desuetude. The Washington Post, with one eye on each side of the sea, notices this phenomenon, saying:

In the propaganda for equal suffrage in England and America, nothing is more obvious than the unanimity of mind and persistency of effort that actuate the foremost workers in the cause. Nothing, also, is more striking than the complete divergence of the methods adopted in the two countries, and these similarities, as well as contrasts, which have been noted time and again, apparently become more pronounced as the movement advances. The New York Tribune treats a local phase of the suffrage question with a bit of sarcasm in commenting upon the case of Miss Malone.

The candidate for office who refuses to answer questions from anybody, male or female, in the audience, is as foolish as the necker who persists in demanding answers to the point of encounter with the police force. The suffragist heads in the future campaigns, a familiar figure in future campaigns, and she has, and should enforce, her rights. Nevertheless, it will be a good thing for suffrage and the suffragists if the more active spirits here learn early what the English militants are learning from the mob—that even the candidate and the public man must have fair play.

The other phase of the woman question, the saving of woman and girl workers from suffering possible degradation, is attracting the serious thought of the whole country. The Goldfield Tribune questions the reality of the arguments and low wages caused the shame of many unfortunate, believing that the power of suggestion is wrong.

The evils of suggestion are manifold. The mere suggestion, iterated and reiterated from high places, that the position of the working girl in the United States is so hopeless that unless her wages are raised she is bound to seek the path of dishonor, is certain to have an unwholesome effect upon the womanhood of the country and may be the means of driving many girls from the straight and narrow road that leads to the only desirable goal. If the reformers are really desirous of throwing the cloak of protection around the female bread-winners of the country, there are other ways open. As the Tribune has already noted, a prominent Chicago club woman declares that the New York orgies in the big cities annually cost more souls than are saved at the church watch parties, and in these orgies the "poor working girl" takes no part. The Chicago woman struck the right chord.

The Chicago Record-Herald is somewhat amused by the efforts of Idaho women to solve the woman labor problem in their own homes. It says:

Quite Idaho the club women are engaged in a most interesting experiment, which may have a profound bearing on the solution of the servant problem elsewhere. The club women were the ardent champions of an eight-hour day for women in factories and shops.

Very well, said the manufacturers, but the arguments of the women would have far more force if they could come into court with clean hands—i. e., if they were not in the habit of working their own domestic for longer hours.

The women didn't seek to evade the argument by pointing out that the analogy is somewhat inexact; on the contrary, they agreed to put an eight-hour law in force in their own kitchens.

The Portland Telegram sees reason in the plan of beginning at the real beginning and training children for practical work while they are still in the public schools, such work as will bring adequate remuneration in after days. Speaking of Helen M. Todd's investigations among factory children in the Eastern States, the paper concludes:

The time will undoubtedly be when every school will have its workshop, or lieu of that, when school activities will extend in practical fashion to work that is done outside the shops. And to contemplate this is not to admit the conclusion that the schools will be stripped of the facilities to give refined and polite polish to the boys and girls who shall attend them. The school training that teaches work broadens the intellect, because pupils cannot learn to do practical things without better founded in common sense, and common sense is the basis of all useful education. We have begun to cure the defect in our public school system which the incident in hand serves to illustrate, and our achievement in that direction ultimately will be far greater than we now imagine.

THE NEWEST FEATURE IN SOCIAL NOTICES

WILL NEXT WAR BE IN THE AIR?

THE alarming strides being taken in perfecting airplanes for war, fully described in last Sunday's TRIBUNE, has been arousing considerable attention from the press of the United States and Europe lately. The London Sphere recently commented at some length on the probable end of the struggle to perfect aerial armadas, and the recent descent of a German airship into France again started the furor over the big vessels of the sky. The United States has not taken the interest in aeronautics such as the article in THE TRIBUNE'S Sunday section shows most European countries, especially Germany, have displayed.

The Atlantic Ocean furnishes the explanation. Our military experts have depended on the inability of foreign air craft to cross it. But while maneuvering over the German fleet Zeppelins have taken off gas and fuel from a naval vessel, and experts assert that the much larger and more powerful Zeppelins now being built can, by using the fleet as their base, accompany it across the Atlantic during the favorable summer and autumn months.

"This suggests," says the New York Tribune, "that the United States should begin an early investigation of the technical details of the Zeppelin. The press of England acknowledges her defeat and admits that she is at the mercy of an attack by these real air cruisers, carrying 200 pound bomb machine guns that fire 500 bullets a minute."

The Seattle Times says:

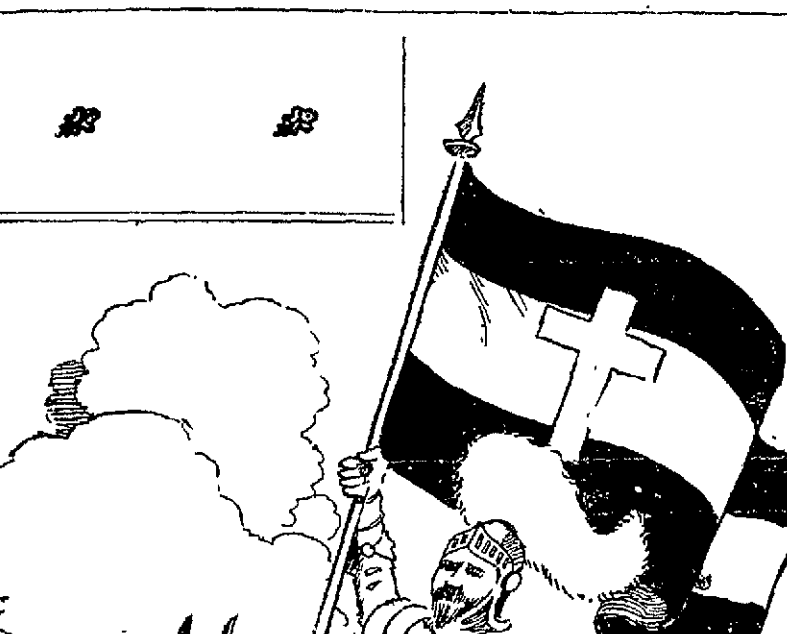

"Whether the German dirigible descended in France because of accident or because it was disabled during a secret scouting trip, one thing is certain: The French have obtained secrets pertaining to the construction of these air frigates that could not have been bought by an expenditure of millions of francs."

SPOKANE, Wash., April 19. — Sheep should be cultivated as a potent agency for reduction of the high cost of living. In the opinion of President E. A. Bryan of the Washington State college, who has caused to be issued a special bulletin dealing with sheep raising and the preparation and cooking of mutton for family use.

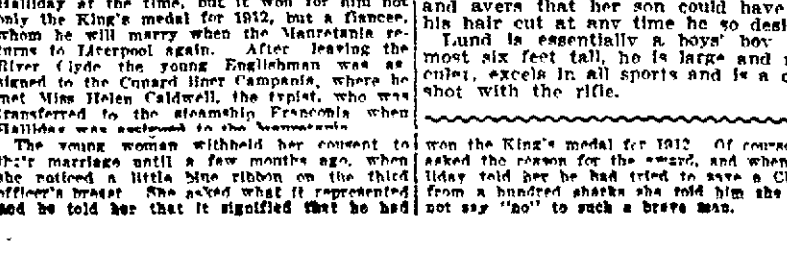

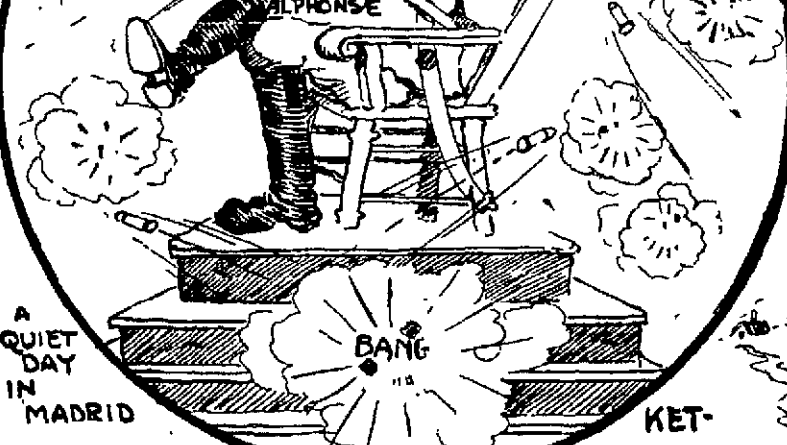

At present farmers use bacon or cured pork most of the year, or go to the markets and pay the high retail price for fresh beef," said President Bryan. "If they had sheep their tables could be supplied with fresh meat almost the entire year. The grain farms of the Spokane country are capable of feeding a great many sheep at little cost. There is no meat so good for the farmer as mutton. It sometimes requires a little time to acquire a taste for mutton, but once acquired it often is preferred to any other meat. If the farmers of this part of the Pacific Northwest will raise sheep on their grain farms they will not only to their profits but to the convenience and comfort of their homes by securing fresh meat for the table."

Life is a conundrum that everybody gives up sooner or later.

UNCLE SAM AND HIS BATTLESHIPS

"Time of peace prepare for war!" This seems to be the opinion of the majority when it comes to such questions as "Shall Uncle Sam purchase a few new battleships?" "Keep a standing army on the Mexican border?" and "Keep a close eye on the Panama canal?" Well known army and navy officers have urged in the strongest terms a policy of upbuilding the navy at the rate of a dreadnought a year, at least. Press and critics have warned the new administration that the country needs defense, or—as it is put—insurance that defense will not be called for.

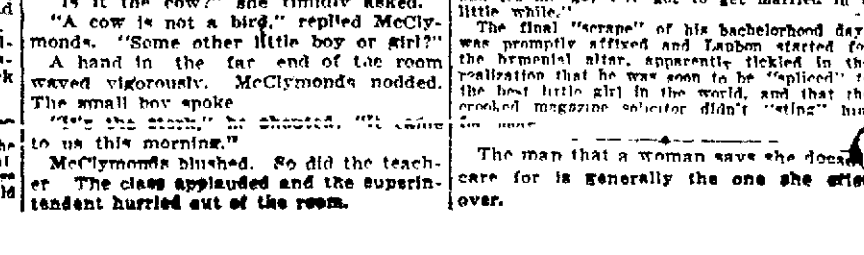

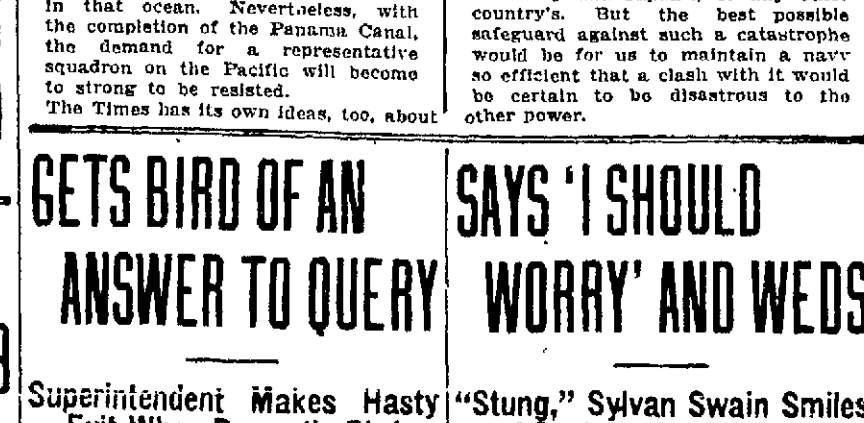

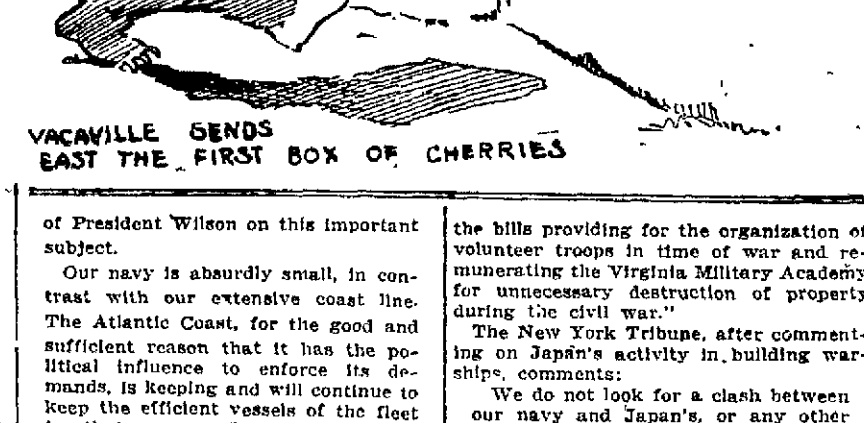

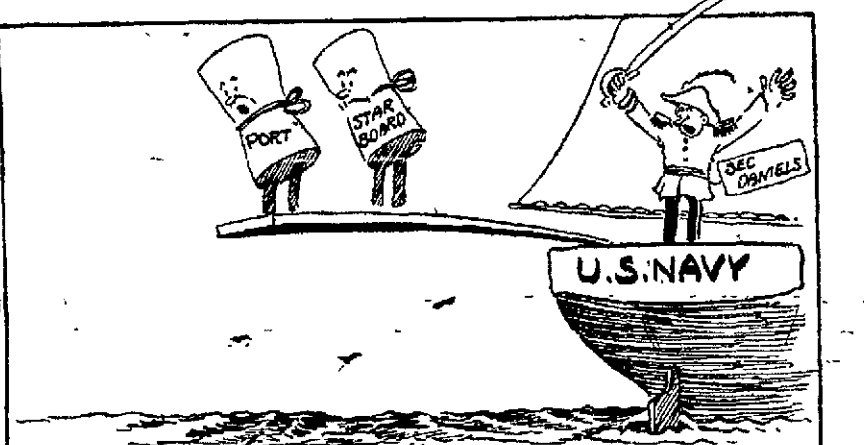

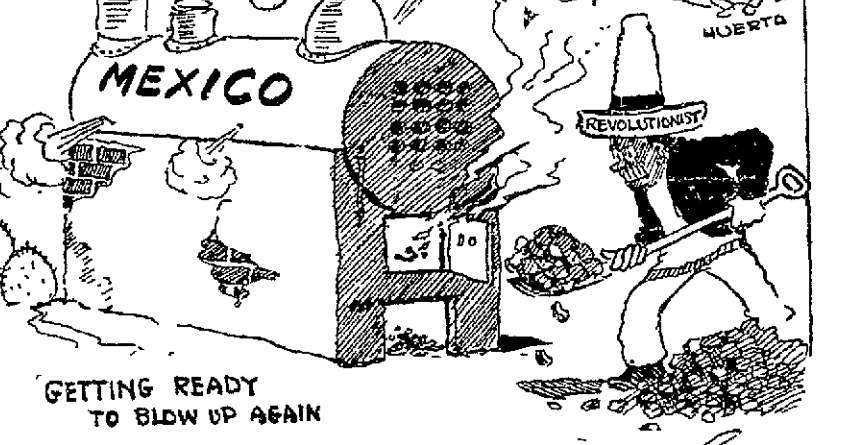

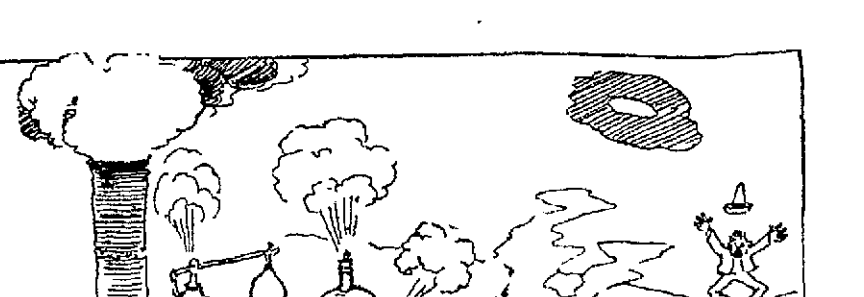

That President Wilson seems in favor of a powerful navy is commented on with some satisfaction by the Seattle Times. The Times says:

The statements of Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, before the annual convention of the Navy League of the United States in favor of a large and powerful navy are believed to represent the views keeping troops in Mexico. On this subject it says:

Mexican revolutionists are still active enough to shoot a few bullets into the United States every time there is a clash of armed forces near the international boundary. The temptation to carry the war across the line would be too great, unless the patrol were there. In addition, there is a deep-seated hostility among the Mexicans against the people of this country. No one hopes more strongly than does Uncle Sam for amicable relations with the perturbed people on the south, and no one has greater cause or excuse to be ready for instant trouble than has Uncle Sam.

The Washington Post urges the training of more soldiers, through the military academy. "While the senate," it says, "is waiting for the house to send over the tariff bill the members of the upper branch could occupy themselves with nothing more useful than the passage of

WHAT NEXT IN ART, ANWAY?

OF ART, that crimes are committed in the name of art, is the latest, the super-futurist, the quintessential superfluity of the creme de la creme of art, a sort of cubist-futurist, idealist conglomeration in vertical planes, masquerading under the name of Orphic art. What is it? No one knows.

Once a futurist poet wrote a poem which accused the blood red something or other—it doesn't matter what, anyhow, of staring wanly at the leprous moon. It was a fine poem. No one knew what it meant, and the title admitted what the lines of poem a little later bore out—that alcohol had something or other to do with it all. It looked, however, more like hashish.

Probably a few artists, holding a little suspicion, chanced upon this poem while the wine was flowing. It is probable that this led to an attempt to depict some of these weird visions of the poet. The result?

"Awful," they said, "but we can bunk the public with it. Shades of Praxiteles, Oscar Wilde, and George Sterling! On with the dance! Let joy be unfeigned!"

And the public "fell," and we have all the highbrow examples of futurist art before us. An old Chinaman, looking over the latest, smiled broadly as he recognized something.

"I see," he chorled. "Him say, 'Quong lung, washes' in China."

The Chicago Tribune, politely puzzled, led to eat ridicule at the artists' comments timidly as follows:

For about a generation the art of writing has been called by any one who could write. Young ladies just fresh from an echelon of ladies out of finishing school, and ladies of the casual gentlemen otherwise engaged in really difficult and important matters, have tossed off novels, essays, poems, just to show the professional how easy and universal is the art of words.

As a large proportion of these efforts are promptly marked success, the professional has had nothing to say—that was it to print. Success stood at the box office and started him out of countenance. But he had a bitterer sorrow than this. It was the contemptuous meritment of the other arts. No one had yet pretended to impose music, or painting, or sculpture, or literature without a reasonable amount of training for the work. The immortal Monsieur Jourdain had learned with delight that he "could write prose." He did not find that he could paint, or "sculpt," or compose.

But now another art is to pass out of the hands of the professional—the art of painting. In Paris in the salon of the independents has appeared a new school, the orphists. They scorn line and mass. Their sole end is color. One orphist painter, called "Vertical Planes," consists of a gray background with several streaks of brown.

Thus every man may become his own orphist. Painting, like letters, is now to be everybody's art. Mr. Tout le Monde lays down the pen and takes up the brush. Vive l'egalite! The Portland Telegram is not so delicate. Here's its sentiment:

Was there any confirmed relation between alcohol and art? asks a temperance lecturer. After attentive contemplation of the Cubist productions we would say there was.

SOLVING THE RIDDLE OF THE SPHYNX

Reisner's Wonderful Discovery

THE mystery of the Sphinx is about to be solved, in part, according to reports from Egypt, by the discovery of Professor G. A. Reisner of Harvard that the head of the Sphinx is the ante chamber of a great series of temples. A depression in the top of the gigantic piece of masonry had previously been observed, but Professor Reisner is the first man who realized what this might lead to.

Denon, the savant, who accompanied Napoleon's army, reports that in 1802 he found a large opening in the head and descended 10 feet into it. In recent years, this opening had greatly filled up and few have noticed it. Some think the opening found by Denon was made by Arabs in their everlasting search for treasure in mediaeval times, but it was so large and deep that this seemed improbable.

In 1835 Colonel Vyse and Mr. Perring were led by the depression to try boring rods at the shoulder of the Sphinx on the chance of finding an internal passage. The rod broke at 27 feet and the broken rod still remains there.

An old tomb-shaft has been known to exist in the body of the Sphinx, which stretches for a length of 120 feet in the desert, and the head rises 40 feet above that. To Professor Reisner it seems to have occurred that the depression in the head means much more than has yet been found. The enthusiastic young professor dug at the caked sand with hand and knife to find that it yielded to his eager fingers. It was hard but not hard enough to withstand the energy of the excavator. After his first examination he secured the right to excavate into the Sphinx itself—no easy task, for the Egyptian Government is none too ready to grant this precious right—and then his great task was really begun, for it is most difficult to secure workmen who will labor at the dominating genius of the desert, revered by them and their ancestors for so many generations past. One by one he bribed and hired a few of the least superstitious of the fellahen, and the work went on all too slowly for his energy.

At last the sand and blocks that had been placed at the opening or drifted in were removed, and the explorer found himself in a chamber 60 feet long and 14 feet wide, which constituted a little temple complete in itself, yet connecting through a tunnel running down the neck, with a far mightier temple occupying the entire body of the monster.

The Sphinx itself is so placed as to face the rising sun. The head, to judge from the description sent out by Dr. Reisner, must have been the "holy of holies" of the greater temple below. The main temple is comparatively spacious, extending even below the body of the Sphinx, itself filled with columns, engraved in ancient figures, and adorned with gold and figures of the gods.

(By LEE LANDERS.)

PERHAPS nothing on earth has puzzled scientists and the world at large for so many ages as those two colossal monuments, the Sphinx and the great pyramid of Jeezh. Investigators have advanced innumerable theories and beliefs regarding their origin and purpose, but it is lamentable, for the cause of truth and science, that the latest of these should have appeared in the daily press. The following published under date of March 13, is quoted:

LONDON, March 13.—The mystery of the Sphinx, which has puzzled the world for ages, is solved. According to an article published in the Westminster Gazette, Geo. A. Reisner, a Harvard Egyptologist, has removed the accumulated sand from the interior of the Sphinx's head and has gained entrance to a temple 120 feet long, which runs the entire length of the lion's body. This temple, the explorers believe, forms the tomb of Menes, the first Pharaoh and is supposed to contain his mummified body. Besides the great central temple, the mouths of various passages have been discovered. These have not yet been explored, but it is expected they will be found to lead to a subterranean city.

Based on an editorial upon the foregoing cable dispatch, the Washington Post says:

Through 60 centuries, from the time of Menes I. King of Egypt, to these times of automobiles and aeroplanes, the Sphinx has kept her secret well. The Arabs have folded their tents and stolen away. Busting twentieth century professor removes the accumulated sand of 40 centuries from the interior of the head of the Sphinx and thence through the neck to a temple that runs the whole length of the gigantic body, measuring 120 feet. There they find the tomb of Menes I. where lies his mummified body, and below, perhaps, a subterranean city. Thus the secret of the ages is wrested from its hiding place—the Sphinx a tomb for one dead man who typified all the dead that have gone before and after him!

TOMBS OF MENES.

It is to be regretted that the Washington Post at once clad these misleading speculations in the garb of verified data of the universe, for it is seriously to be doubted whether Professor Reisner ever entertained or expressed them, even as opinion or belief. "We would be startled to learn that such a reputed Egyptologist believed 'that this temple forms the tomb of Menes, the first Pharaoh, and is supposed to contain his mummified body.' Surely Professor Reisner knows of the excavations at Abydos, conducted by Marietta Pasha under the auspices of the Egyptian Exploration Fund, during which were brought to light not only the tomb of Menes, but also a large globular vase of green glaze, undoubtedly authentic, with Menes name inscribed in royal purple. The professor, it is believed, will also admit that the Sphinx is not at all in accordance with the architecture of the time of the Pharaohs. That the other pyramids and Sphinxes are lamentably unworthy imitations of the Great Pyramid and Sphinx and were constructed as monuments and tombs by the Egyptians, who, evidently, could ascribe no other use to the impenetrable puzzling models which had been standing before them for ages. The copies show that they had no knowledge of the interior of the originals and that, though they were Egyptians, they were in no way of or in harmony with historical Egypt. No Egyptologist will believe it a tomb, unless a body is actually found, together with authentic proof of sepulchral use.

As to the theory that the narrow passages, which the Harvard scholar discovered at the end of the temple, lead to an underground city, it would require a violent stretch of the imagination to believe that the architects of "The First Wonder of the World" constructed narrow passage-way entrances for the populace of a city of the Pharaohs, with its priestly processions, sacrifices of bulls, horses, warriors and cumbersome chariots, and it is safe to believe that the world at large will not accept these theories as alacrity as the Washington Post did.

WHO SHALL SAY?

But if not a royal tomb or an entrance to an underground city, what, then, are these two wonders of the past that still tower so high above modern intelligence that they could not be duplicated even in this day of advanced architecture and engineering skill? Were they, as Prof. Plazze Smith attempted to prove, built under the direction of a "Deified Architect," as Louis P. McCarthy of San Francisco, ably theorized, of Atlantean origin, knowingly placed by them on what proves to be the exact geographical center of the earth where, as they then knew, it would endure through all past and future cataclysms? Who shall say? There is little actually known of these ancient mysteries. Mr. McCarthy published to the world an admirable book, "The Great Pyramid of Jeezh," San Francisco, 1907, in which he says, at page 46:

"For several years previous to 1836, A. D., Col. George E. Raun, a resident of San Francisco, Cal., has been devising under the great Sphinx with the aid of a number of Egyptian natives. His friends say he has issued a small book on the subject of the Sphinx, giving his discoveries. If so (?) we have been unable to trace it, or to have the pleasure of meeting Mr. Raun. A rumor exists, however, that he has discovered something regarding the Sphinx, that he desired to keep a secret for the present. Be this as it may, we have written the above in self defense, that our friends will not charge our theory of the Sphinx to have been taken from any person or publication."

Col. Raun died recently and the writer has made fruitless search for the book above referred to; accordingly he can credit Col. Raun with no more than the discovery, in 1836, of the cap of the Sphinx at Jeezh, which was missing therefrom for many centuries. Prof. Reisner must be credited with his recent discovery of the temple, but to Louis McCarthy, who spent more than 30 years, in Pyramid research, must go the credit for the compilation of the most authentic data regarding the Great Pyramid and Sphinx and the deduction of some of the most rational theories advanced regarding their origin and purpose. Had this great scholar delved further, as the writer believes and will endeavor to show, he would have found his theory, that all this was the work of the Atlanteans, a lost race which existed before the present, untenable and would never have reasoned "that there were no inhabitants there living in the whole of Egypt." On the contrary, he would probably have correlated this great Temple of Light, with its silent Tyler, not so much to a race, as to a "Venerable Association," whose central habitat is in the recesses of India, with a scientific membership drawn from all the advanced civilizations of earth, who, far from ever having been lost, have a complete chain of lineage from the immediate present to a time long before Egypt, through the Brotherhood of Light, became the center of its intellectual and spiritual ascendancy. About this time the Great School, ever watchful for a propitious opportunity to convey its message of scientific knowledge and spiritual light to the world, believed that the hour for which it had waited and worked had indeed come. Its "wise men" in council assembled, after the most thoughtful consideration and prayerful deliberation, decided to undertake the rebuilding of a grand school and subsidiary headquarters near the heart of Egyptian civilization. To that end "Elloia," one of the Great Masters, was commissioned to direct the difficult undertaking. Under his personal supervision the work was undertaken and inaugurated. A school was established. Under all the ancient safeguards of secrecy and the protecting shield of obscurity its work was conducted "in due and ancient form." For more than 4,000 years its influence was a potent factor in the evolutionary and development of Egyptian civilization. Its wisdom and unflinching judgment became the solid foundation of governmental policies. Its science and its art became a natural basis for the loftiest civilizations, the most exalted achievements and the holiest inspirations of the soul. Its religion was the religion of Light, Life and Immortality. Evidences of their science, art and religion were wrought into enduring monuments which, even to this day, mark the upward pathway of Egyptian civilization and bear silent but eloquent testimony to the wisdom and work of the Great Masters.

DEATH OF EGYPT.

"But the tide of civilization at last reached its height. The poison of unassimilated prosperity was in the blood of Egypt. The struggle for position and power began. Dishonesty prevailed. Oppression and domination followed. Suffering and sorrow were everywhere. The cry of the subject was unheard and unanswered. Death had set its irrevocable seal upon the proudest of nations. Egypt died. The history of her death struggle is the tragic story of the approaching and appalling spiritual darkness which finally settled over that beautiful land of sunshine."

"When this deplorable condition had become an established fact and the doom of the nation and its civilization had been irrevocably sealed, the Great School withdrew from Egypt, and by special edict not one of its members nor accredited students remained from whom the secret wisdom thereafter might be obtained in that country. The door of the 'Temple of Light' was closed and sealed. And so it was that the glory of the Great School departed with the wisdom and the honor of its people and the sun of its intellectual light and spiritual life went down in darkness and despair, never to rise again until the coming of a new race, a wiser people, a better civilization. 'The Land of Darkness,' and so it still remains."

Another historic effort of this venerable association, of still further purport to Masons, the same book describes as follows—page 46: "Freemasonry, in its modern form, represents but one of the many efforts of the Great Parent School to transmit its knowledge to the world in definite, scientific and crystallized form. But that effort has not been entirely successful. The Masonic fraternity never would have come to be known as a mere 'speculative' order. That is to say, the modern order of speculative masonry is only a 'substitute' for the true knowledge of the Great School of the Masters. Had the original design been fully consummated an exotic order of 'operative' Masons would have been the result. Its members would have been initiated and exalted into that term. That is to say, they would have become master operators of the faculties, capacities and powers of their own souls. In that event, Freemasonry would have become a great public school of Spiritual Wisdom in direct touch and co-operation with the Patent School from which it received its inspiration and its authority. It would have become a great educational institution wherein its members would have learned the definite fact of another life and the scientific method of its independent, rational and voluntary demonstration. All this and vastly more were included in the original plan and purpose of Freemasonry."

WHO THE DESIGNERS?

Gathering what available data thereat at hand to establish the probable origin, age and purpose of the two great wonders of the world, we find that they are not in accord with Egyptian architecture; who, then, were its designers? Col. H. Vyse, in 1837, during his excavations, found on the unfinished internal portions of some of the blocks of masonry he dislodged, rude markings with red paint, evidently meant for the workmen who were laying the courses of masonry, and indicating position. These markings are not in Egyptian, and antedate any known language. Also the ancient Sanscrit of India, known to but few, and most of these wise men of the East, is the oldest language extant, it is quite possible that it is this form of Sanscrit."

Another incident which points to ancient India is the fact, discovered by John A. Parker, of N. Y. City, that by a variation of the use of the British measures of the Great Pyramid, taken systematically, not empirically, a diameter value to a circumference value of 6 is found, which is the basis of the Hindu method for the calculation of tables of sines and cosines, tangents and cotangents and the orbits of planetary bodies; this variation is found to give the exactitude of all pyramid measures, agreeably to the design of this architect.

All written history corroborates the statement that the Great Pyramid was finished about 2500 B. C. D. when Caliph A. Mamoun, with the aid of Mohammedan workmen, after tremendous labor, hewed an opening through the solid masonry, for a distance of 100 feet, to what is called the present entrance. And what was the reward of these months of labor? A steep incline of 110 feet, ascension only on hands and knees, then a gallery, on the same level, for a further 150 feet, then a chamber 24 feet long and 17 feet broad. And for this, according to almost every subsequent writer, a perfect square, 763 feet on each side, was built? Picture a building, covering 18½ acres, with its apex 456 feet above the ground, containing nothing but an empty stone coffin without a lid, without inscription, 6 feet 5 inches long by 2 feet 6 inches wide and 2 feet deep, too large to have been set after completion of the chamber entrance—therefore put in position for construction, bearing no inscription, containing no mummy, not enclosed with masonry to keep a dead body inviolate, but with magnificent built stone passages leading directly to it—what could it all mean? As McCarthy states, flat sarcophagi was put there for men to look on and deal with and live and not die! To illustrate to candidates seeking knowledge of the hidden mysteries of life, but here and beyond the veil, that which any illustrious Mason could reveal. But imagine that you have been conducted through the still unknown portions of that enormous temple, (the largest building in the world), and that you have been brought to light and stand on the platform of the Great Pyramid which, by the way, is the only one whose sides exactly face the four cardinal points; then gaze toward the southeast, to a point about seven-eighths of a mile from the S. E. corner of the pyramid; there you will see the Sphinx, looking away from you in the same direction. You will note the perfectly sculptured image of a lion's body, with the strong grip of his paws extending fifty feet from his shoulders, the whole body crowned with a head of extremely intelligent contour. (It was of intricate beauty before a fanatical sheik used it for a target.) Would not all this suggest, as McCarthy pointed out, "intelligence, coupled with great strength, raising the question, 'who from the grave?' and not, as the 'Washington Post' points out, 'the endless ages of death?' Does not this huge monument, hewn out of natural rock, containing in its body, as Reisner has discovered, a temple 120 feet long, with passages leading therefrom, seem most fitting entrance for such a mass of material as that of the Great Pyramid? And does it not seem likely that further excavating will substantiate the claim that the Masonic lineage dates back to many thousand years before the Moslem period?"

FARM BETTERMENT BOOK EMPHASIZES MARKETING

SPokane, Wash., April 13.—Farm betterment work, as outlined by the National Country Life Congress a year and a half ago, gets a decided boost in a 100-page handbook just issued by the Spokane Chamber of Commerce for free distribution. The volume places special emphasis on the marketing question. The country school, farm home, farm community life, good roads and transportation, and the production of farm crops and animals, are treated in separate departments. The matter contained in the book is taken from addresses delivered by noted men and women at the first National Country Life Congress, in Spokane, during November, 1912. "In issuing this book, we feel we are making a valuable contribution to the cause of better farming and better farm life in general," said Secretary Gordon C. Corbaley of the Chamber of Commerce, adding: "The book is a valuable contribution to the cause of better farming and better farm life in general, and it is selling it at a profit of 66-2-3. If you can grow a thousand bushels of wheat to the acre, and if you cannot sell it at a profit, that is mighty poor business."

Do You Think Before Sitting Down?

By
Lillian Russell

"WHEN SITTING ONE SHOULD RELAX AND REST THIS CANNOT BE DONE BY SITTING UPON THE EDGE OR THE ARMS OF A CHAIR SIT WITH THE SPINE WELL SUPPORTED BY THE BACK OF THE CHAIR CROSSING THE KNEES IS A VERY HARMFUL HABIT. IT CAUSES PRESSURE ON VARIOUS LARGE NERVES." SAYS

Lillian Russell

(Copyright: 1918 By Lillian Russell)

WONDER how many women think before sitting down? Judging from the positions we see women take, we must infer that comfort is ugly, or is it that they are not looking for comfort?

It surely cannot be comfortable to sit on the end of the spine, with the chin on the chest and legs crossed. And yet we see so many women take that position.

Alma-Tadema is fond of painting his Grecian women in that position. But his Greek women never wear corsets—they simply wear draperies and sandals. And even though they look pretty and graceful in his paintings, it is no sign that the modern woman can do so. With the modern dress such a position is far from graceful.

The Japanese women squat down upon their haunches, and they tell me that they are comfortable.

But we have had chairs to sit upon for generations, and we should use them properly. When one sits properly she cannot look or be uncomfortable.

If one is bent upon being picturesque, one should select chairs for their effect. Some women have a penchant for sitting upon the arms of chairs. That position is only pretty when a girl is so tall that when she sits in ordinary chairs her knees come up too high. But the normal girl can find all of the picturesque effects she desires in the ordinary chair, if she is in good physical condition, well exercised, and healthy.

When sitting one should relax and rest. That cannot be done by sitting upon the edge of a chair, hugging the back, or sitting upon the arms of a chair.

It is quite surprising what grotesque positions women will take when just a little thought or a little practice before a mirror will show them what is correct and what incorrect.

Why Body Loses Symmetry.

Few women really sit properly. Most of us lool in our chairs on the small of the back, with curved shoulders and depressed diaphragm pushing every internal organ out against the walls of the abdomen. Is it any wonder big hips and abdomens are beauty ills?

The head, too, is allowed to sag forward, pulling the muscles at the back of the neck until in time a lump of fat is accumulated there.

If you would avoid all these disfigurements sit up straight in your chair. Push the body well back until the small of your back rests against the back of the chair. The seat should be about three-fourths as deep as the thigh. The rest of your spine will then be easily and comfortably supported and the head will be naturally poised on the shoulders. You can sit this way for a long time without fatigue because there is no undue strain upon the muscles. When you read do not bend the head over the book. Hold the book up.

When you sit down give a little thought to your neck. Think of it as being on a straight line with your spinal column if you would hold it correctly. Your neck never will be a "line of beauty" if you allow your chin to lower, your chest to sag, or your back to hump.

Draw the crown of the head up and back and maintain this high position at all times.

How many women we see who have spread out in an ungainly fashion below the waist, having completely lost all the symmetry of figure which a little attention to posture would have enabled them to retain.

Unaware that their manner of sitting has brought them to this pass, these women try all manner of exercise to reduce this superfluous flesh. These are the hips that have been described as the "middle aged spread." You seldom see them on women under 25. But after that many women allow themselves to slump down. They make the soft walls of their abdomens do the work that should be done by their backbones. Fat accumulates over the hips, on the abdominal muscles, and across the shoulder blades.

Rigid Position Lacks Grace.

This condition characterizes the woman as slovenly in mind as well as slovenly in body.

By sitting properly many of the ills which unregenerate flesh is heir to may be escaped.

Learn to sit erect at the table. It is quite surprising what grotesque figures some women make of themselves when at the table.

Do not allow yourself to lounge in a chair. This sitting on the "end of the spine" will cause large hips. Never be guilty either of sitting on one foot.

Control of the body as a whole is the ultimate aim of all physical training. Poise in its different aspects—especially in sitting postures—reflects not only culture of the body but culture of the mind.

The woman who sits with knees crossed, revealing an unpardonable expanse of leg, stamps herself as vulgar, no matter what her social position may be.

So does the woman who winds her feet around the chair legs in a most unlovely way. Her hat may be the last word in correct millinery, and her gown a perfect Parisian model, but neither can survive the death blow to appearance and culture that these ugly postures render.

A woman who constantly changes her position while sitting loses all that dignity of repose which is so closely allied with grace and culture. She renders uncomfortable all observers.

A rigid, upright position, as if one momentarily were expecting to encounter a calamity, is one of the frequent sitting postures in which every possible tendency to grace is totally obliterated. It is strained, uncomfortable, unnatural, and should be avoided.

Even worse is the position of the woman who makes the edge of her chair a balancing point for extending limbs and reclining shoulders. This position indicates not only bad breeding but is reprehensible beyond question, no matter how comfortable the sitter may be. Occupy the whole seat of your chair and lean upon its back without detracting from an easy, refined, and graceful position.

Uneven Shoulders Common Defect.

It must be admitted that modern furniture is not universally comfortable, and curves that would be conducive to ease are often sacrificed for lines pleasing to the eye, but as yet every article has at least one or two redeeming features of which every sitter may take advantage in maintaining a graceful pose.

Do not allow yourself to lounge in a chair. If you are too fatigued to sit straight, lie down until you are rested. Never allow yourself to flop. Above all, never sit on one foot.

Sloping, round shoulders, a "hunched up" look, a shuffling gait, or "slouchiness" never is to be found in the person who knows the proper sitting position and practices it.

Dressmakers complain that most girls have uneven shoulders, especially those who sit at a desk many hours in the day. The right shoulder usually is higher than the left. If you discover you have this defect change your way of sitting at your desk. This simple exercise will help you out:

Extend the arm of the lower shoulder upward, the hand grasping a dumbbell. Lower the arm on the other side and with this hand support a heavy weight.

Another simple exercise is forcibly to depress the higher shoulder many times a day. This you can do as you are sitting at your work.

Also, the following exercise is very helpful for those who are forced to sit long hours in school or office and who find it difficult to sit or stand straight:

Place a wand across the back, letting it run through the bent elbows. The arms are bent so that the hands rest on the chest. Keep the arms and shoulders pressed back and down and walk about the room for five or ten minutes.

A flexibility at the waist line is necessary to a graceful sitting posture. These muscles should be regularly exercised by forward, backward, and rotary bendings.

Awkward and harmful ways of sitting may easily be overcome with just a little thought. Minds should be used, not laid away like your best linen. Minds should be brought out and exercised. Some women hardly realize that they possess a mind.

Remember: More can be done for beauty by an hour's good use of the mind than by all the advice in the world.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

MARY C.: When the hands are sore and chapped do not use soap and water on them, for this is drying and will make them worse. Cleanse the hands with olive oil or a good cold cream. This will supply oil to the hands and will make them soft. At night when retiring cover the hands with almond oil, and then put on an old pair of kid or cloth gloves to protect the bed linen. This will soften the hands and the oil is healing. For brittle fingernails hold them in olive oil or almond oil for a few minutes each day. This will supply the oil that is lacking and will make them soft. I shall send you instructions for manicuring if you will send me a stamped addressed envelope.

J. T. D.: From the description you give me I should say that you had some sort of a skin disease. I would advise you to consult a good scalp specialist before attempting to do anything yourself.

A READER: You failed to send the required stamped addressed envelope, and even failed to give your name and address, so I am unable to send you the formulas you asked for. Will you kindly send me a stamped addressed envelope and I shall be glad to send you what you wish?

ANXIOUS: Before going out into the wind and cold protect your face with a good cold cream and then a good powder. This will keep your face from chapping and will also make it soft. At night rub a good skin food or cold cream into the face and leave a portion of it on over night. This will soften the skin and make it smooth. I shall send you a formula for a good skin food if you will send me a stamped addressed envelope.

A READER: One can do more harm to their face by improper massage than by leaving it alone. It would be impossible for me to give the complete instructions in my small space, but I shall be glad to send them to you upon receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

ROSE: You might try massaging the scars with a good cold cream or skin food. This will make them gradually disappear. There is nothing better for chapped lips than a cold cream rubbed into them at night. This will make them smooth and soft. The following is good for warts on the hands. Twenty grains salicylic acid, one-eighth ounce alcohol, and one ounce flexible collodion. Mix and apply to hard surface of wart for three nights, then soak in hot water, when a layer of skin will come off. Repeat until wart has disappeared.

L. S.: Cocoa butter rubbed into the hollows of your neck and shoulders will help to make them plump. Coconut oil is also good. Massage with the warm cocoa butter or coconut oil each night when retiring. Keep up the practice of deep breathing. This will also help to round out the throat and fill in the hollows of the neck.

ANXIOUS: I have never heard of the remedy you suggest for blackheads. However, I do not think it will do you any harm. Cleanse the face thoroughly each night with warm soap and water with a complexion brush. Rinse the face thoroughly with warm then cold water. Try this treatment for a while, and then if you cannot remove the blackheads send me a stamped addressed envelope and I will send you my treatment for removing blackheads.

SOCIETY

IFE is wonderfully full these days for the woman of the smart set—indeed for the woman of every set. There are the many charities to be attended to before the conscientious woman will find herself free to start on a summer vacation. There are the show interest, and one sees them at polo games and at the baseball games, polo games and at the baseball games, which we have rapidly made our national game. Many women play golf as well as tennis, and polo games attract large assemblages. Bridge claims many afternoons and there are the usual social activities which crowd many things into the busy days of a closing season.

Life is strenuous, but it is gloriously full of work, and it is the women who do many things who enjoy the wider horizons. They have large measurements and a fine sympathetic attitude towards a neighbor's shortcomings. The open air life is doing much for California women, and they ought to develop one of the finest types of women in the world. They are able to be out of doors every day in the year and one sees the result in the brightness of their eyes, in the steady nerves, in the erect carriage and lovely coloring, all characteristics of the woman who spends a great deal of time in the wide spaces of the outdoor world.

The baseball games are unusually popular this season. The season opened with much success in Washington last week. President Wilson was present and he was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Eleanor Wilson, and Washington society was largely represented.

In our own city Mrs. Paul Dinsmore and Mrs. Robert Lee Stephenson are to be seen at many games with their husbands, and they can cheerfully discuss baseball in a most illuminating fashion.

Mrs. Wickham Havens and Mrs. Edward Engs understand thoroughly the art of entertaining their friends, and the latter are made welcome any Sunday afternoon on their tennis court. An informal luncheon is always served, and some very good tennis playing goes on in that court. Among those who can play a very good game of tennis are Mrs. Herbert Lee (Ethel Bates) and Mrs. Joseph Chanslor (Hattie Kimble).

There are wonderfully good riders on this side of the bay, and the many beautiful roads through our foothills make of the morning ride a joy, indeed; one's days are full of gladness because of it. Among the best horsewomen on this side of the bay are Mrs. Wigginton Creed and her pretty young sister-in-law, Miss Pussy Creed. With Mr. Creed, every Sunday they take long rides through the hills, and their finest summer vacation days are spent in riding trips through the mountains. Among those who think nothing of a twenty-mile ride are Mrs. Wickham Havens and Miss Florence Henshaw, and one of the most graceful and most fearless riders in the state is Mrs. Leon Boequeras (Clara Chabot).

From their homes in the foothills many women walk to town now, and Mrs. John Donovan (May Coogan) thinks nothing of walking from her Linda Vista home to the heart of town. Mrs. William G. Henshaw is devoted to walking trips, and Miss Grimes often accompanies her, and among those able to put up splendid golf scores are: Mrs. Johnson, Miss Josephine Johnson, Miss Elsie Everson, Miss Violet Whitney, Mrs. John Valentine Jr., Miss Marian Stone, Miss Havemeyer, Mrs. C. B. Wingate and Mrs. Sherwood.

The cares of life seem small, indeed, when measured up in the wide immensity of outdoor life, and this latter element in our lives is making itself felt in so many ways that we may look to California women to lead the march along many lines of advancement.

LURE OF TRAVEL IS INSISTENT THESE DAYS.

The lure of travel is insistent in the later days of the spring, and it is little wonder that a quick response answers the ringing call. To see other lands, other people, other cities, has its own rare charm. As other people see us, and as we see them, must always mark a chapter of absorbing interest. When we measure ourselves up against some great city we are a sadder and a wiser lot of people.

This is especially so when the West meets the East. Many Californians are going to New York this year, and farther on to Europe. A clever Western girl's impressions are of wonderful interest, because she puts into words what so many people have looked away in the secret recesses of their souls.

"After living for years in a country whose chief assets are its climate and its scenery, where the smoke goes straight up to a cloudless sky, where mountains and foothills fill the eye year in and year out, and a ten minutes' ride takes you into a silence so complete that it requires no great stretch of the imagination to fancy yourself and your horse the only living creatures in the world, the first effect of New York is overpowering, crushing; it overwhelms with its greatness, it inspires awe, its noise bewilders, and the reckless headlong speed of it fills you with fright, until it becomes apparent that the pandemonium is not pandemonium after all, since everyone knows exactly where he is going and what he is going to do, and the recklessness is only the sureness of knowledge and experience."

The manners of other people must always concern us, because that is part of the human elements in life. And we expect too much of the East. And there is much truth to be found in the following lines:

"The woman who plunged ahead of me and let the swinging doors fly back in my face did not intend anything personal by it. Not at all. She was going, up to see the mannequins walk, and you know very well that the exact thing she wanted to see might have gone by if she had stopped to ask if those were really my front teeth she had knocked out or only some small change that had rattled on the floor."

And to dwellers in Oakland who look out upon wonderful foothills, over which the lovely homes are slowly creeping, the paragraph of the western girl's letter must come with a ringing call:

"The fascination of its restless life gets into one's blood. Its spirit of enterprise and of achievement is contagious. It inspires, stimulates and educates, for the best in every line of human endeavor gets eventually to New York. And it has to offer what the isolation most lacks—congenial companionship, the sympathy of kindred spirits, the understanding of similar minds and tastes.

"Yet even in moments of my most extravagant enthusiasm, when I am voicing the hope that when I do I may go to New York, the doubt creeps in as to whether or not some day the memory of the smell of sagebrush after a rain might not prove more potent than the brilliancy of Broadway, and the purple peaks and that still gulch back in the hills call with a louder voice than all the many voices of the greatest city in America."

MANY WELL-KNOWN PERSONS SEEK OPEN ROAD.

And so it is that the "Spirit of Travel" is abroad in the land, beckoning one on. Every one seems to have well-arranged plans for the summer.

Interesting news reaches us of many well-known people:

St. Cecil Spring-Rice, the successor of Ambassador Bryce, is sailing from England for New York on Saturday and will go direct to Washington on his arrival. Lady Spring-Rice will arrive later in the season. Shortly after the new ambassador's arrival Mr. and Mrs. Bryce will go to San Francisco, on route to China, and will be in Peking to see the Chinese Assembly in session.

Hon. and Mrs. Bryce are also coming to San Francisco and they have many friends here, though Mrs. Bryce is unusually reserved. On a recent trip from the Orient she hardly spoke to anyone on the steamer. One reads of her that she dresses with sense and propriety, but not elaborately, and one would judge comfort was consulted to an unusual degree in this age of torturing style. She is of medium height and inclining to be stout; her chin is well developed, the face as a whole thoughtful, and the clarity of her blue eyes and her fine color are the result of much walking. Even when the social calendar must be interwoven with engagements, it was a familiar sight to Washingtonians to see the alert, spare figure of the British ambassador, accompanied by Mrs. Bryce, swing through the embassy gates just at dusk and start out at a smart pace for a walk through the city's suburbs.

Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of Speaker and Mrs. Champ Clark of Washington, is booked to sail for France next Thursday with Mrs. George Harvey, wife of the publisher. Mrs. Harvey and Miss Clark are planning a stay in Paris of about ten days in order to do some shopping, after which they will be joined in Rome by Miss Dorothy Harvey, who is in school there. Afterward the party will travel leisurely through Europe.

Dr. and Mrs. Richard Derby (Miss Ethel Roosevelt) are to spend two some weeks in Florence. She is going in the near future to Rome, where she will spend the month of May.

Mrs. Erwin Morrison and her daughter, Miss Charlotte Morrison, sailed last week on the German liner, the Princess Irene. They expect to be abroad all summer and they have planned a most delightful itinerary.

Mrs. Louis Gharardell and her daughter, Miss Carmen Gharardell, are also going abroad this summer. They will go to Dresden and establish a home there, which they will make a center, to which they may return from many wanderings over the continent.

Mrs. Oscar Sutro and Mrs. William Ede are in Spain, from which historic country they are writing charming letters, and Mrs. Joseph Kelly and her sister sailed this week for Europe, expecting to be away two months.

Mr. and Mrs. John Francis Smith and Miss Alice Smith have recently spent some time in New York and Boston and they are now in Canada. After a pleasant stay in Quebec, they will begin their homeward trip over the Canadian Pacific.

Mr. and Mrs. William High will leave next week for New York, where Mr. High will attend the bankers' convention. They will stop over at the Grand Canyon on their return, and they expect to be away about a month.

months in Rome, where they will occupy the villa of the bride's aunt, Miss Emily Carow. They will reside at 969 Park avenue on their return to New York.

The Countess Edith del Castenardo has gone to New York after pleasant days spent in San Francisco. Later in the summer she is going abroad and will spend several months in Europe. While in California she was entertained by Mrs. Hearst, Mrs. Crocker and Mrs. Clara Darling.

Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard and her husband left Rome after a stay of less than a week. The Shepards, who occupied a suite of rooms at the Quirinal Hotel, kept much to themselves during their stay, spending most of their time visiting churches and art galleries. This was Mr. Shepard's first visit to Rome. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt's entreaties that she might introduce them to local society were studiously resisted.

Miss Ethel May Crocker, the charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Crocker, has been spending

Mr. Arthur L. Adams and his daughter, Miss Pauline Adams, have gone to New Orleans, and later they will go to Washington and New York.

Mrs. George McNear Jr., who has been very ill in Europe, is now better, and with Miss Ernestine McNear, she will leave in a few days for Italy.

The Havens will go to Sag Harbor this year, the F. M. Smiths to Shelter Island, the Chabots to St. Helena, the Schillings to Redwood City, the Moores to Mission San Jose and the Clinton Walkers to the heart of their great lumber tract in the mountains. By the middle of May many of our prominent families will be away though travelers among our well-

Wooer Finds Subterfuge for Auto Trip to Justice of Peace.
KANSAS CITY, April 19.—"Joplin, Mo.—My Dear Mr. Williams: All is over between us. I have a ring and other things which I think belong to you. If you care to do so, meet me at the Union depot at 2 o'clock tomorrow, and I will return these things to you." "ETHEL PERRY."

That in substance was the note which Martin E. Williams, assistant general manager of the Kansas City and St. Louis Universal Film Exchange Company, received in his office at 1310 Walnut street the other morning. The note was from a girl to whom he had been engaged for two years.

A good many men would have torn their hair in despair upon the receipt of such a missive. Not so Williams. He smiled as he closed his roller-top desk and announced that he would not return for several hours. Business had kept him between Kansas City and St. Louis for a good many weeks without opportunity to visit Joplin. Besides, he was a firm believer in an old saying on the effect that a woman usually means the opposite to what she says. So Williams smiled.

He had been in the hospital for several days, and the police agreed with him that the hen had turned on the gas and caused the death of the couple.

MOMO AND LOLO, TWO WAIFS MADE FATHERLESS BY THE TITANIC DISASTER OF LAST YEAR.—Copyright by Bain.

NEW YORK, April 19.—For the death of her husband, and father of the two waifs, Momo and Lolo, who were rescued from the sea which washed over the victims of the White Star liner Titanic a year ago, their mother, Mrs. Marie Navratil, of France, filed the last suit for damages against the White Star Steamship Company which have been brought as a result of that great disaster. The suit asks for $30,000 damages.

The suit was delayed because of the dire poverty stricken condition of the family in France. This was disclosed in the surrogate's court when a decision was returned on an application made by Mr. Brown for an allowance of $12,000 a year from his wife's estate for the support of his children. Ten thousand dollars only was allowed.

It was shown that Mr. Brown disposed of any rights he had in his wife's estate under the laws of the state of Maryland, where they had their country home, by an agreement entered into on July 5, 1911.

COLOR LINE ENDS WOMEN LUNCHEON

Hotel Refuses to Serve Negro Delegates to County Convention.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Exclusion of six negro women from the Hotel LaSalle, all delegates to the annual luncheon of the League of Cook County Women's Clubs, prevented the luncheon from being held and started trouble for the hotel. Nobody connected with any of the affiliated women's clubs knows just what is going to be done, but everybody is certain that something terrible should happen to the hotel management.

A meeting of the league is to be held today for the purpose of deciding just what action shall be taken. Meanwhile the annual luncheon has been indefinitely postponed. The league has decided to stand by its negro sisters, even if all the hotels in Chicago refuse to receive them. The annual luncheon was scheduled to be held in the gold room of the Hotel LaSalle at noon. Lieutenant Governor Barratt O'Hara and Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout were announced as the chief speakers.

MANAGER PROTESTS.
There was no hint of trouble until 10 o'clock in the morning, when E. J. Stevens, manager of the hotel, telephoned to Mrs. Charles H. Betts, president of the league.

"I have been told that some colored women have been invited to your luncheon," he is quoted as saying. "If that is the case we cannot serve them."

Mrs. Betts protested, calling attention to the fact that the league had contracted for the dining-room and also that they had served the same six colored women who were invited to attend to this luncheon a year ago. But all to no avail. Mr. Stevens refused to permit them to lunch at the hotel.

"Then we will not have a luncheon at your hotel," said Mrs. Betts. "The women are members of the Ideal Club, an affiliated organization, and we will not permit you to discriminate against them. You will serve them or you will not serve any of us."

DOORS LOCKED.
So none of the members of the league lunched at the LaSalle. The hour was too late to communicate with members of the organization and many delegates reached the hotel and were confronted by the locked doors of the dining-room that had been set aside for them.

Mrs. Betts said last evening that no program of action against the hotel had been decided upon.

"The hotel had no right to discriminate against the colored women, especially as they had dined there before," declared the president of the league. "Every woman who is affiliated with the league is willing to stand by the women who were excluded, and there is absolutely no difference of opinion in the organization as to the wisdom of our action yesterday."

"I realize that we would have good basis for legal action against the hotel, but I do not know whether any such action will be taken. That depends upon the membership of the league."

Mrs. Stevens refused to discuss the action of the hotel.

"I can't say what our policy concerning the serving of negroes is," he said. "If a number of negroes come to the hotel to be served, then I suppose I can say what will be done."

MACDONOUGH.

In all the history of the art of motion photography, no film made has attracted such universal approval from clergy, press and public as has the really remarkable motion picture, "From the Manger to the Cross" which is to be exhibited at the Macdonough for the next eight days including matinees Sunday, Wednesday, Saturday and a Sunday starting today.

Made in the Holy Land, at the exact locations where Jesus of Nazareth and the principal biblical characters appeared when this great world drama was in the making, the motion pictures are not only biblically but historically and geographically correct as well.

After the first presentation of "From the Manger to the Cross" in Los Angeles recently, Othman Stevens, dramatic critic of the Los Angeles Examiner, said of the pictures:

"It is the Auditorium this week is a motion picture of the deepest interest. Its subject is the life of Jesus of Nazareth and it is presented with all the reverence, the sincerity, the depth of sentiment which characterizes the Passion Play of Oberammergau."

"Such a subject, the world's greatest drama, handled in anything but the most perfect manner might come near to sacrilege. Any tendency to any apparent acting on the part of the characters or in the scenery would offend the finer sensibilities of an audience."

"But in these pictures, taken at great expense by the Kalem company, there is no jar, no appearance of photographic or of the actor's art. Photographically, they approach perfection, the hand of a master producer can be seen through every foot of film, yet it is all simply told—as simply as the Bible story itself."

"The pictures were taken in Palestine and Egypt, the incidents are placed where historians and archaeologists have authoritatively placed them. There is a distinctness in each of the characters—no histrionic gestures, no grimaces or straining for effects, but instead a grand telling of a glorious story. Many times as beautiful and touching scenes in Palestine were witnessed by numerous people in the audience were moved to tears."

"Gripping, indeed, are the pictures of the miracles of Christ, the healing of the lame and blind, and the raising of Lazarus. The last supper, and Christ walking on the water are the most beautiful motion picture camera. The betrayal, the remorse of Judas, the scenes before Pilate are magnificently carried out. The terrible tragedy of the crucifixion ends the representation. Everyone, especially the children, should see these pictures."

PANTAGES

The new offering for Pantages patrons opening at Sunday's matinee is headed by "The Belle of Chinatown," a musical tableau by Walter M. Kelllogg. There are twenty-one people in the cast, a complete set of special scenery, the rich fabrics of the Oriental costume and heavily embroidered gold properties. The actual outlay for the production was $10,000, and it is credited with being the most impressive production in the vaudeville.

There is a Chinese wedding scene, clever musical interpolations, a good coherent story and all the well known characters, sights and sounds of the always picturesque "Chinese quarter."

Miss Sylvia Lee, a winsome comedienne essays the role of the "belle" and she is accompanied by a capable coterie of players.

The "Four Prevosts" are the added attraction with an acrobatic absurdity entitled, "Fun in a Turkish Bath." The tumbling quartet have the audience in an uproar while bouncing in and out of the "trick" bath houses. Willie Hale and Brother do juggling without an effort at comedy for it takes all their time to keep their balance on rolling globes.

Williams and Tucker, one of the best of the standard vaudeville acts, will present their slang classic, "Skinny's Finish," "The Tall Tale Feller" is what Ed

ORPHEUM.

Heading the bill that comes to the Orpheum today will be Charles Kellogg, the Nature Singer. Kellogg was born in the mountains of California, 200 miles from a railroad. He has never eaten meat, fish or fowl, and he claims that this fact together with the teachings of his parents to the effect that there was no such thing in the world as fangs, makes him a hermit. Kellogg is a vegetarian and a hermit. He is a vegetarian and a hermit. He is a vegetarian and a hermit.

Miss Daisy Jerome, declared to be one of the beauties of the English stage, as well as one of its favorite comedienne, is playing in America, the land of her birth, for the first time. In France, Germany, Austria and England she has won deserved recognition and is known for her captivating ways as the "Electric Spark."

COMEDY OF MYSTERY.
In "Get-Away-Quick-Dugan," Harry Leighton has written a unique comedy lightly flavored with the mystery and adventure of Raffles and Arsine Lupin's $100,000 diamond robbery has been neatly executed and one Jim Dugan, a suspected gentleman burglar, is looked at with suspicion. His work is so clever that although constantly watched the detective bureau has never been able to fasten a single offense on him. Detective Walters succeeded in recovering the stolen diamonds from a "fence" Dugan rented an office next to Walters and steals the diamonds back again from under the detective's very nose. Through his ability to disguise himself he keeps thoroughly posted, finally returning the diamonds to the owner and collecting the big reward for his recovery.

Few developers of canine intelligence have received such satisfactory results as has Paul Sador. His animals have responded wonderfully well to his training until they may safely be ranked as stars of the first water in their particular line of theatricals. Sador's dogs are Great Danes and are exceedingly valuable.

CLEVER SINGING TEAM.
William Abbott and Julia Curtis are a team of singers and dancers. There are many of these duos but this one shows a new angle in their work. They have the requirements of good voice, good songs, good appearance and are good dancers. Miss Curtis does imitations in a new way.

Doc O'Neil has been described as the "Medicine Man With the Laugh Tonic." He is a monologist of unquestionable ability. His material is new and is delivered originally. For anyone in need of a hearty laugh Doc O'Neil certainly can fill the prescription.

Loretta, a stunning young woman, has a great novelty in her "Visions of Gold Statues." She also has a novelty in "Bud, her clever fish terror, who assists in the act."

The first of the big dramatic productions to be recorded by the Talking Moving Pictures, that wonderful invention of Thomas A. Edison, is "The Master Mind," the play in which Edmund Breese is starring at the Harris Theater, New York, under the management of Verba & Leuschner. The play has run all season and is one of the big triumphs of the theatrical year. The third act is to be shown at the Orpheum next week.

COLUMBIA.

Commencing with the matinee today Dillon and King, those jolly merry-makers, will present at the Columbia Theater their latest concoction of mirth and melody entitled "The Quakers." The forthcoming production will, without a doubt, be one of the most amusing plays ever presented at the Tent, street fun emporium. The skit replete with amusing episodes, witty dialogue, pretty girls, tuneful musical selections and handsome costumes. Special attention has been paid to the scenery, which will be complete in every detail.

The plot concerns the further adventures of those amusing fellows Mike and Ike. In this instance Mike is a traveling salesman disturbing the peaceful tranquility of a Quaker household. His unexpected presence here and there to allow for the many laughs that naturally arise. The cast calls for the full strength of the Columbia aggregation.

The comedians Dillon and King will, of course, appear in the principal comedy roles. They will have the best efforts of the following players: Maude Beatty, Charlie Kelly, Ernest Van Pelt, Mattie Townsend, Teddy La Due, Jessie Perry, Al West and Clarence Wurdig. Producer Ben Dillon has arranged several pleasing ensemble numbers and songs for the Ginger Girls.

The opening will be in three parts and will contain the following songs: "In Apple Blossom Time," "Mighty Lak a Rose," and "Dixie Eyes." Southern Gray, "Anita Oakley" and songs will be heard in the latest Reelick song success entitled "Gee! It's a Wonderful Game." "I'll Be Good" is the selection arranged for the Columbia Cockette and chorus "Everybody Loves a Chickie Girl. Mind How You Go" are other song successes to be heard.

OAKLAND PHOTO

Everyone at some time or another comes to the fork in the road of life where two paths stretch away down the years to come, each path making a plea to different emotions. Needless to say, the rough and rocky road, the right road, does not make as strong an appeal as the path that requires so much care to travel safely. In the Path play at the Oakland Photo Theater today, tomorrow and Tuesday, entitled "The Wrong Road to Happiness," a young and beautiful girl is forced to choose between these two paths and err.

The girl, Jane Wilson, is loved by Jim Matthews, a young fisherman. The influence of Bob Miller, a salesman whose territory includes the fishing town where the story is laid, has imbued her with a desire to marry a man who would take her away from the quiet life of the simple, quiet village to the brighter life of a metropolis which he represents. Jane's father forces her to consent to marry him, but on the wedding day, when the town people are assembled for the ceremony, it is found that Jane has disappeared. She makes her way to the big city, where she marries the man of her dreams. For five long years Jane suffers silently from neglect that amounts almost to desertion. The climactic scenes in this romantic drama are pathetic and full of feeling and will impress one deeply throughout the two reels.

A Vitaphone drama that should remind one of another instance of the Moth and the Flame, entitled "Playing With Fire," will also be shown. Tired of the restraining influences of married life, a young woman almost allows her love of society to overcome her better judgment. Dorothy Kelley, Harry Northrup, Harry Moray and Earle Williams (the Oakland boys) will carry the prominent roles.

John Bunny will be seen in a short comedy entitled "Seeing Double," while Jean the Vitagraph dog will be seen for the last time, in pictures with her interesting family of six.

The Biograph players are presenting a splendid subject, entitled "A Frightful Blunder."

YE LIBERTY.

"Her Husband's Wife," in which Franklin Underwood and Frances Slosson appear with the Bishop Players at Ye Liberty tomorrow evening, is one of the most delightful and entertaining comedies the modern stage has known.

Franklin Underwood and Frances Slosson are both provided with happy parts in the comedy, and Miss Urban, Mrs. Gleason, Mr. Gleason, and the other favorites of the company will also be seen to advantage. It will be one of the most entertaining productions of the year.

IDORA PARK.

Idora Park's two big free features which have entertained thousands since the opening of the summer season on Easter Sunday, Lamona and his splendid band, and Dr. Carter's Diving Horses and diving girls are nearing the close of their stay at Oakland's most popular place of amusement.

But there are other features equally meritorious to take their places. Lamona's last two weeks, beginning today, will, no doubt prove quite as successful, both from an artistic and financial standpoint as the first two. This very able and amiable leader has steadily grown in popularity. Although he came to Oakland an entire stranger to the public, his organization has come to be recognized as one of the very best that has ever played an engagement at Idora. Especially has Lamona's desire to please the public at all times, to give them what they want in the way of popular music, and plenty of it, endeared him to the public.

The program for the coming week includes the regular symphony concert on Tuesday afternoon a classical concert on Friday afternoon and a popular concert on Saturday afternoon. The latter will embrace all the very newest popular hits on Broadway, New York, as well as Broadway, Oakland, selections from late musical plays and some ragtime.

OSTRICH FARM COMING.
The big ostrich farm will be opened at Idora a week from today, with fifty of the long-legged, wide-eyed birds from Pasadena on the job. All will be feather-bearing bipeds and will furnish the greatest collection ever brought to this part of the state. A big corral is now being built to hold them on the Saultuck avenue side of the park, near the racing coaster.

"Race Thru the Clouds" if different coaster road now being built at Idora Park, is the largest of its kind on the Pacific Coast. A duplicate of this road will be built at the International Exposition in San Francisco in 1915. Oakland thus anticipates the construction of this great amusement feature by almost two years.

Two trains start together at the loading platform, one turning in each direction and coming together at the foot of the incline. They are hauled to the top of the 100 foot incline together, where the clutch is automatically released and they start on a race side by side, which carries them up and down dips and around turns, the entire length of the park (twice), finally ending together or almost so, at the loading platform. The speed of the trains starting together is almost the same, varying according to the weight of the passengers. Thus, ten passengers are furnished all the thrill of a real race at ninety miles an hour.

It is aimed to have these May festivals take rank with the great music celebrations of such places as Bethlehem, Pa., Milwaukee and Worcester, which have brought great fame and publicity to these cities. Paul Steinberg, the composer of the University of California, and the man best equipped to drill huge choruses, has been appointed general musical director, and is now hard at work intending to make his first festival one that will redound much to California's credit, and bring renewed fame to the great state and the Greek Theater.

The soloists will be Regina Vicarino, the wonderful coloratura soprano whose dulcet tones have electrified audiences wherever she has appeared, Blanch Hamilton Fox, the splendid contralto, and Roland Paul.

On Saturday afternoon the first performance in the West of Gabriel Fiere's is to be given annually by the citizens of

What Is Being Done Among the Many Local Fraternities

Varied Activities Keep Members' Interest At High Pitch

Last Monday evening, the members of Sierra Council, No. 1842, were entertained at a banquet given in Berkeley by Alameda and La Certe Councils. The affair was in recognition of Sierra Council's victory in a three-cornered membership contest which was recently brought to a close. All three of the councils were well represented and the hall was taxed to its capacity. There were many bright and entertaining speeches, and it is the consensus of opinion that another such contest will have to be started in the near future. The newly elected officials of the grand council were strongly represented, which was particularly due to the fact that the councils of Alameda county were successful in securing a number of the elected officers at the recent meeting of the grand council. Sierra Council is now represented in the official family of that body by its president, who was elected to the chair of grand warden.

Sierra Council's next regular meeting will be held tomorrow evening at Pythian Castle, Twelfth and Alice streets. Gossip About Makers of Books and Their Work

By MOLLIE E. CONNERS

DURLEIGH, Page & Co. have sent out exceedingly interesting books this year, and at the head of the list may be placed "The Making of Lydia" by Mrs. Humphrey Ward. Any new work known in the world of letters, must command the attention of the reading public, and this new book is well worth while. As its name indicates, the new book is a love story, and a very charming one. It is perhaps no wonder of the present day, but it is a picture of an environment, in painting backgrounds, as does Mrs. Ward. Every detail is well worked out, and the background alone would make a delightful story. Mrs. Ward is at home in the story—it represents that part of the English which she loves. In writing about society in England's upper class, Mrs. Ward is especially happy, because she is writing of that life which she knows from the inside of the life of which she is a part.

One feels in this story that Mrs. Ward has herself gone a long way down the lane of progress. She has always announced herself as against woman's suffrage, but she has now taken a more independent young woman, than the Lydia who is the heroine of the story. She is very fond of Lydia, and one feels that Lydia is quite as much American as she is English.

Mrs. Ward has spent a great deal of time in America, and she has studied the American girl to very good advantage. It is the well bred independent American girl—the cultured, charming girl who is vividly portrayed in "The Making of Lydia." There is a restful charm surrounding a story of English life, that it makes it wonderfully fascinating. It is what made Anthony Trollope's books so very fascinating and there is much in "The Making of Lydia" to remind one of "The Small House at Allington."

There is much similarity in the English conditions for Mrs. Ward. She is a widow, and she lives a quiet life in this quaint English village, with her two daughters, Lydia and Susan. Lydia is "Exquisite," "Lady Rose's Daughter." Lydia is perhaps the most attractive heroine Mrs. Ward has given us. She tells us of her.

"During her training in London, Lydia had drawn of the modern spring like other girls. She had been brought up in a small, old fashioned way, by her foolish little mother, and by her father, a stupid, honorable, affectionate man—whom she had loved with a half tender, half rebellious affection."

There had been no education to speak of, but the qualities and gifts of her mother had appeared in her to the bewilderment of her parents.

TEMPERAMENT CONSERVATIVE.
At bottom her temperament always remained, on the whole, conservative, and she was not at all disposed to the humorist, in whose heart the old loyalties lie warm.

But that remarkable change in the whole position and outlook of women which has marked the last half century, Lydia had not known. She was upon other things. For such persons as Lydia it has added dignity and joy to a woman's life.

PERFECT beauty, said that well known authority, Marcus Aurelius, has no need of praise. That's a nice sentence and sounds fine. But it doesn't stand up. Lovely women like to hear about it—the lovelier she is the more she likes to listen. Figures of femininity inspire figures of speech. Men like to talk of lissome forms and rave of rosy cheeks. So let's do a little raving while we have a good chance. Mr. Keats said beauty was its own excuse for being. Here are some beauties who need no excuse. The group upon this page represents various noted women of history. The past did not have many things that the present has. But if the originals of these pictures were anything like their impersonators, it was about as easy to live previously as now. In the Palace of Beauty scene in "Ziegfeld's Follies" the beauties of all ages are gathered together. They step from the frames of old masters. They dance from out the pages of "The Arabian Nights." They pose as the marbles which graced the halls of Pericles. Then the curtains are drawn back and the regal American girl steps out and takes the palm. Scheherazade, according to the book, was the niftiest little story teller on record. But could the oriental lady with the accordion plaited name have been any prettier than her personification shown herewith? Cleopatra and Salome snake in with a jangle of jewels, beads, and metals, and perfectly good reasons are divulged for the folly of Antony and Herod. Marguerite appears, and it is obvious why Mephisto has no heart. Queen Louise of Prussia, modernized, is revealed, and the peach crop is safe. Could Carmen have been more insolent, La Pompadour more mild, the Duchess of Devonshire more haughty, Joan of Arc more militant, Mme. Recamier more languid, or any of them more enchanting? Some poet's only books were woman's looks. He kicked about it. He oughtn't to. Might's good reading.
